Dear Parents,

Young children are naturally curious about the world around them. It is through real-life experiences that they begin to gradually broaden their world from self and family to neighborhood, community and beyond, and to develop a sense of identity within their world.

This collection of stories takes preschoolers to familiar, everyday places, bringing a better understanding of the people and routines that young children typically encounter. As you read these stories with your child, talk about the people, their jobs, and their places of work. The realistic photographs coupled with simple storylines make this collection the perfect introduction to the child's world.

We consider books to be lifelong gifts that develop and enhance the love of reading. We hope you enjoy reading along with Barney, Baby Bop and BJ!

Don't forget to wash and dry your hands before eating your snack.

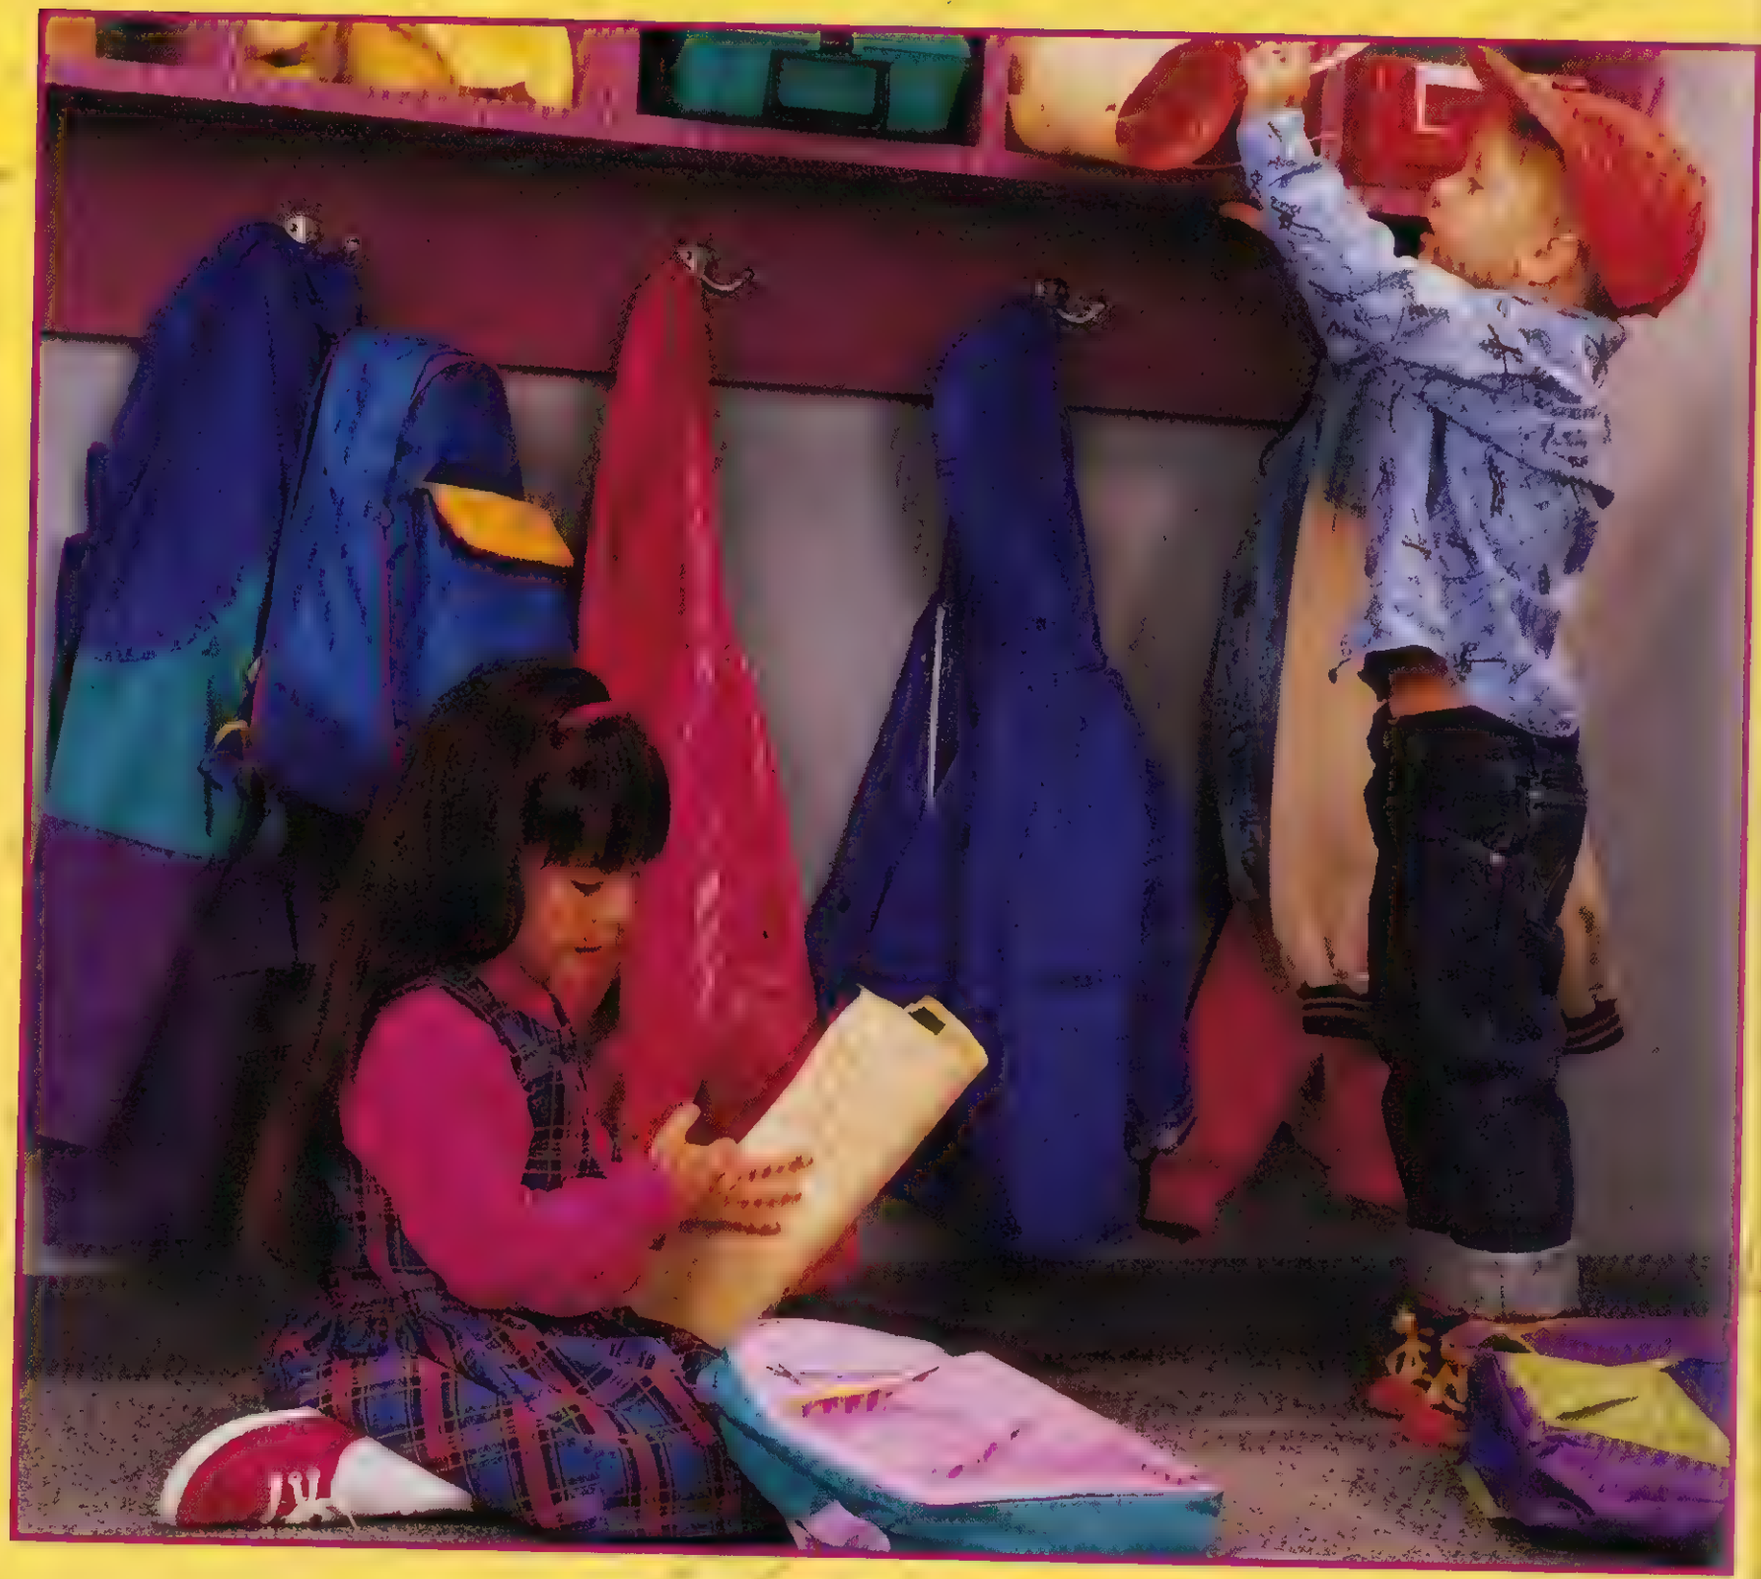
Yum! Yum! Snack time is so much fun.

Wheeeee! Baby Bop is riding her tricycle on the playground.

Here comes the ball! Catch it!



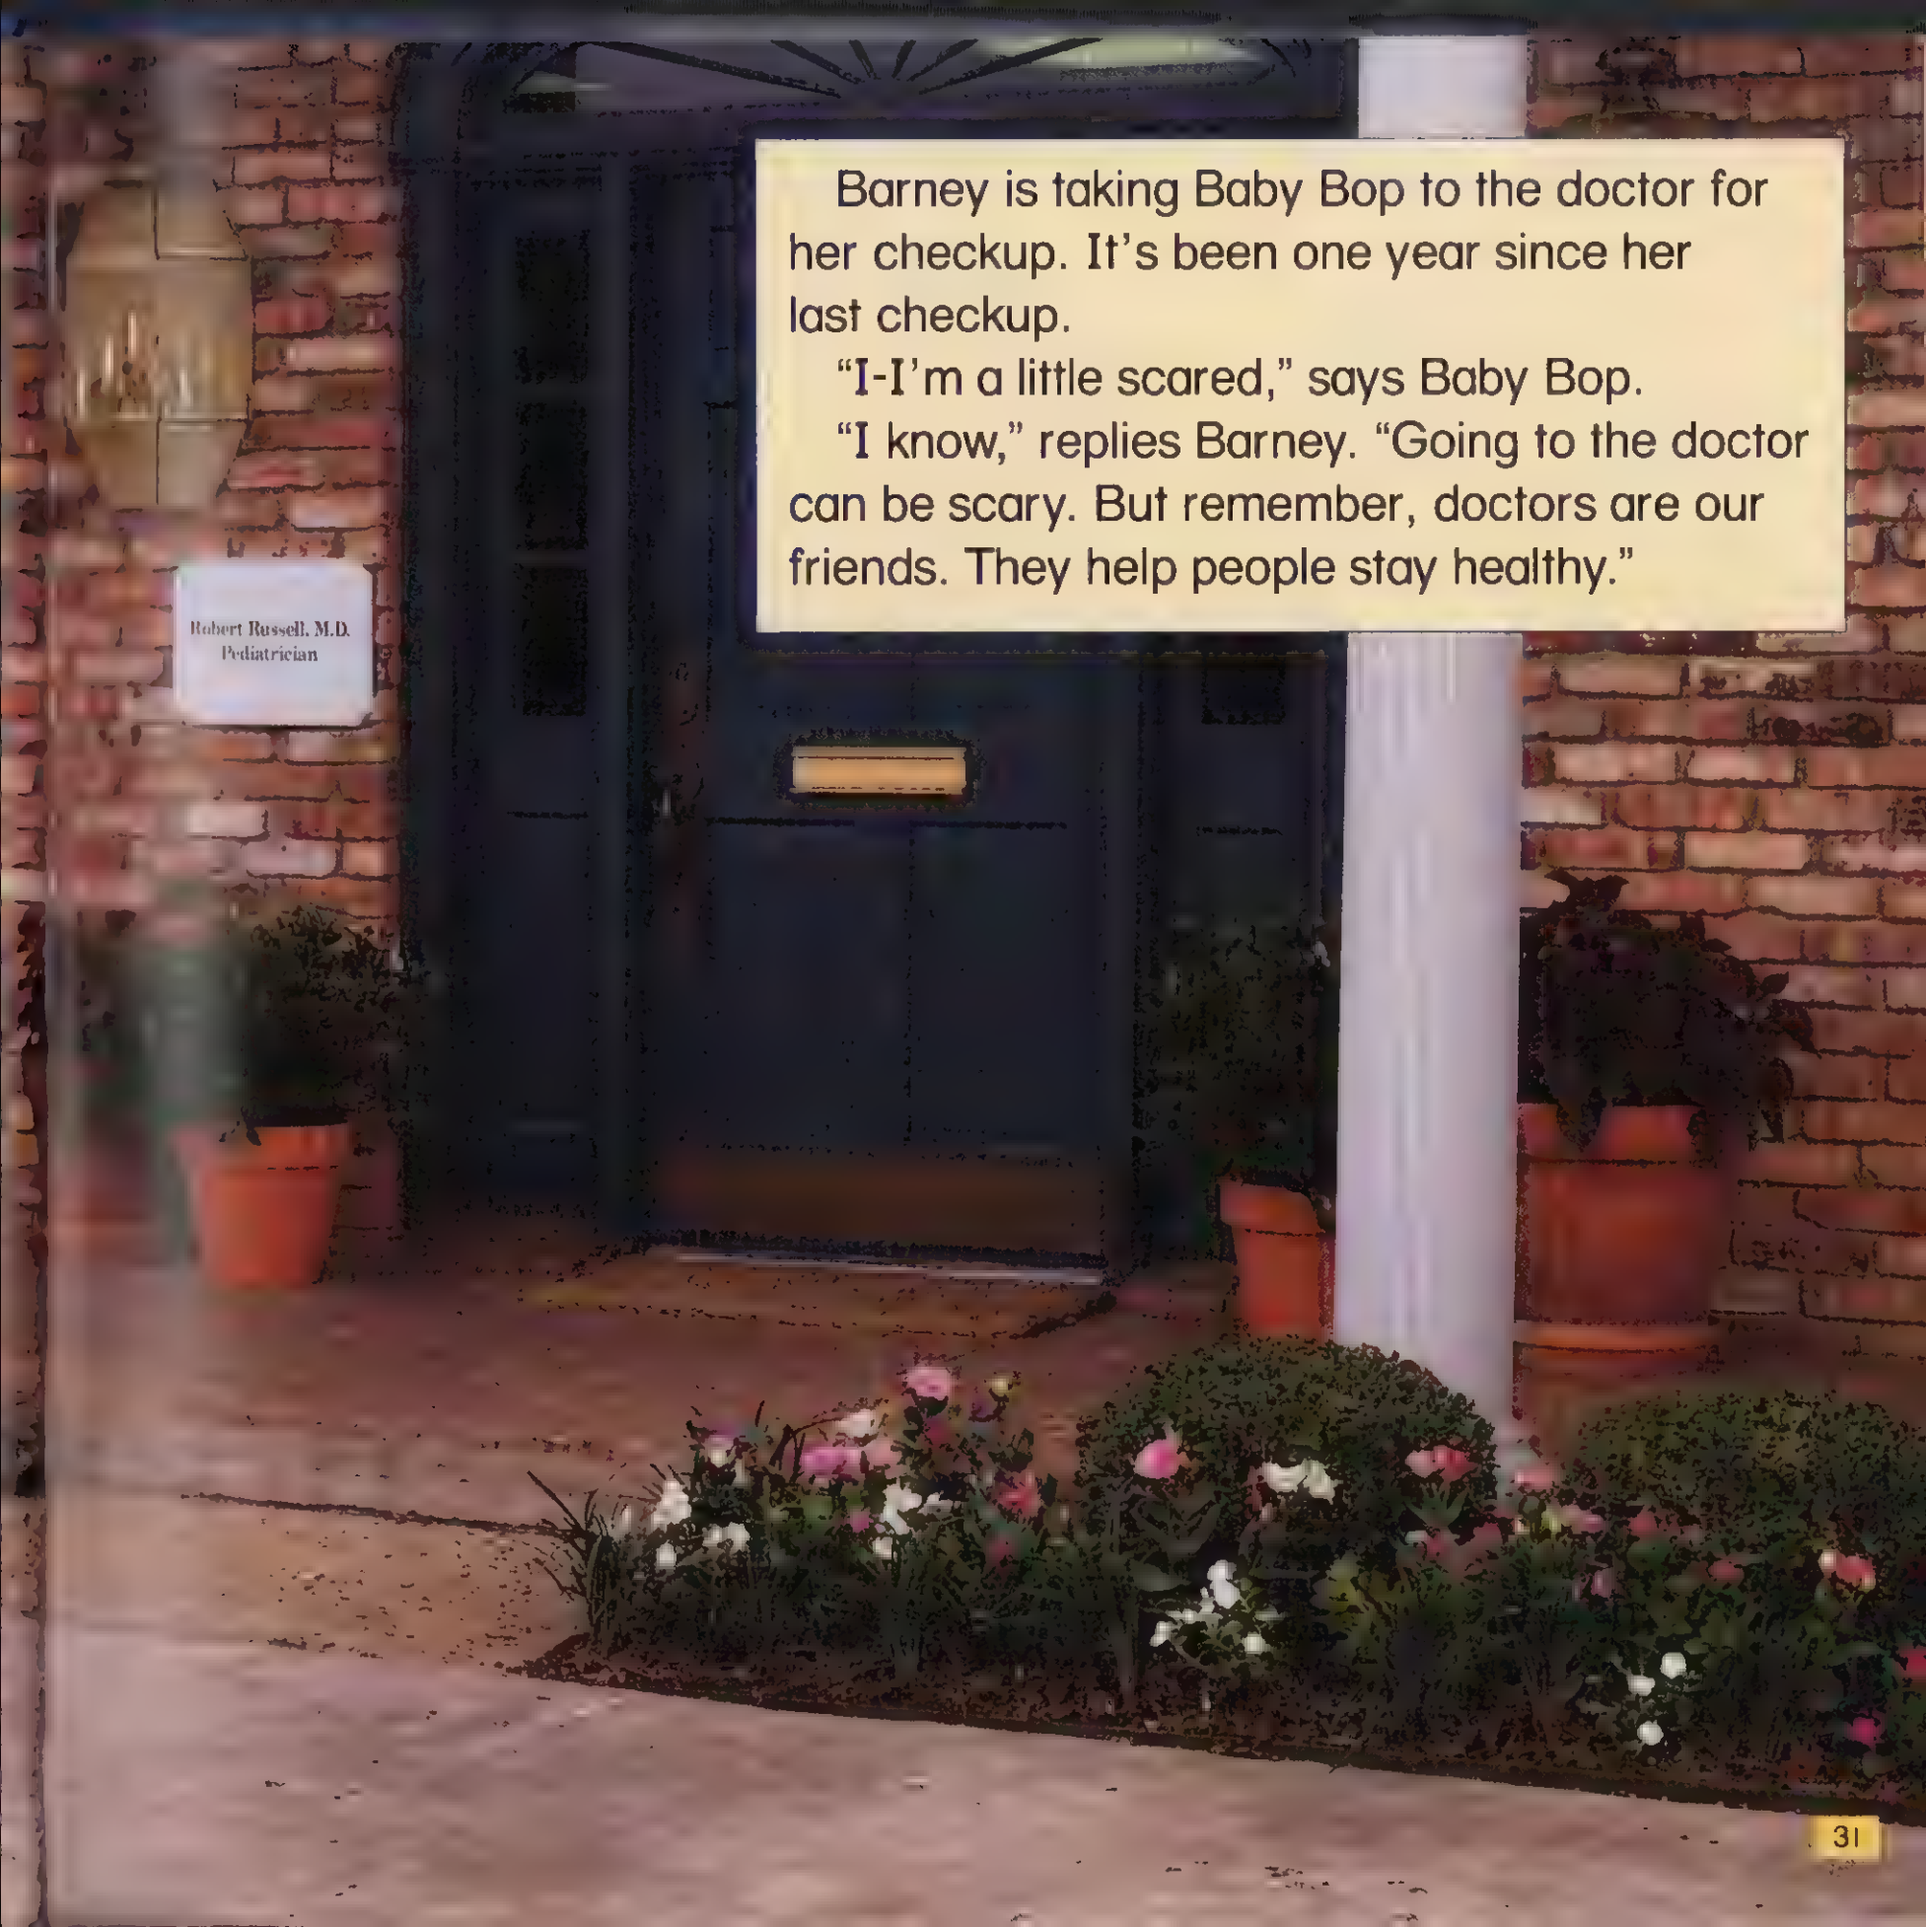
Is it time to go home already?

"See the picture I painted?" asks Baby Bop.
"It's super-dee-duper!" says Barney.

Baby Bop waves good-bye.
"School is fun. I can't wait to come again!"

Barney & Baby Bop Go To The Doctor

Written by Margie Larsen, M.Ed. • Photography by Dennis Full



Barney is taking Baby Bop to the doctor for her checkup. It's been one year since her last checkup.

"I-I'm a little scared," says Baby Bop.

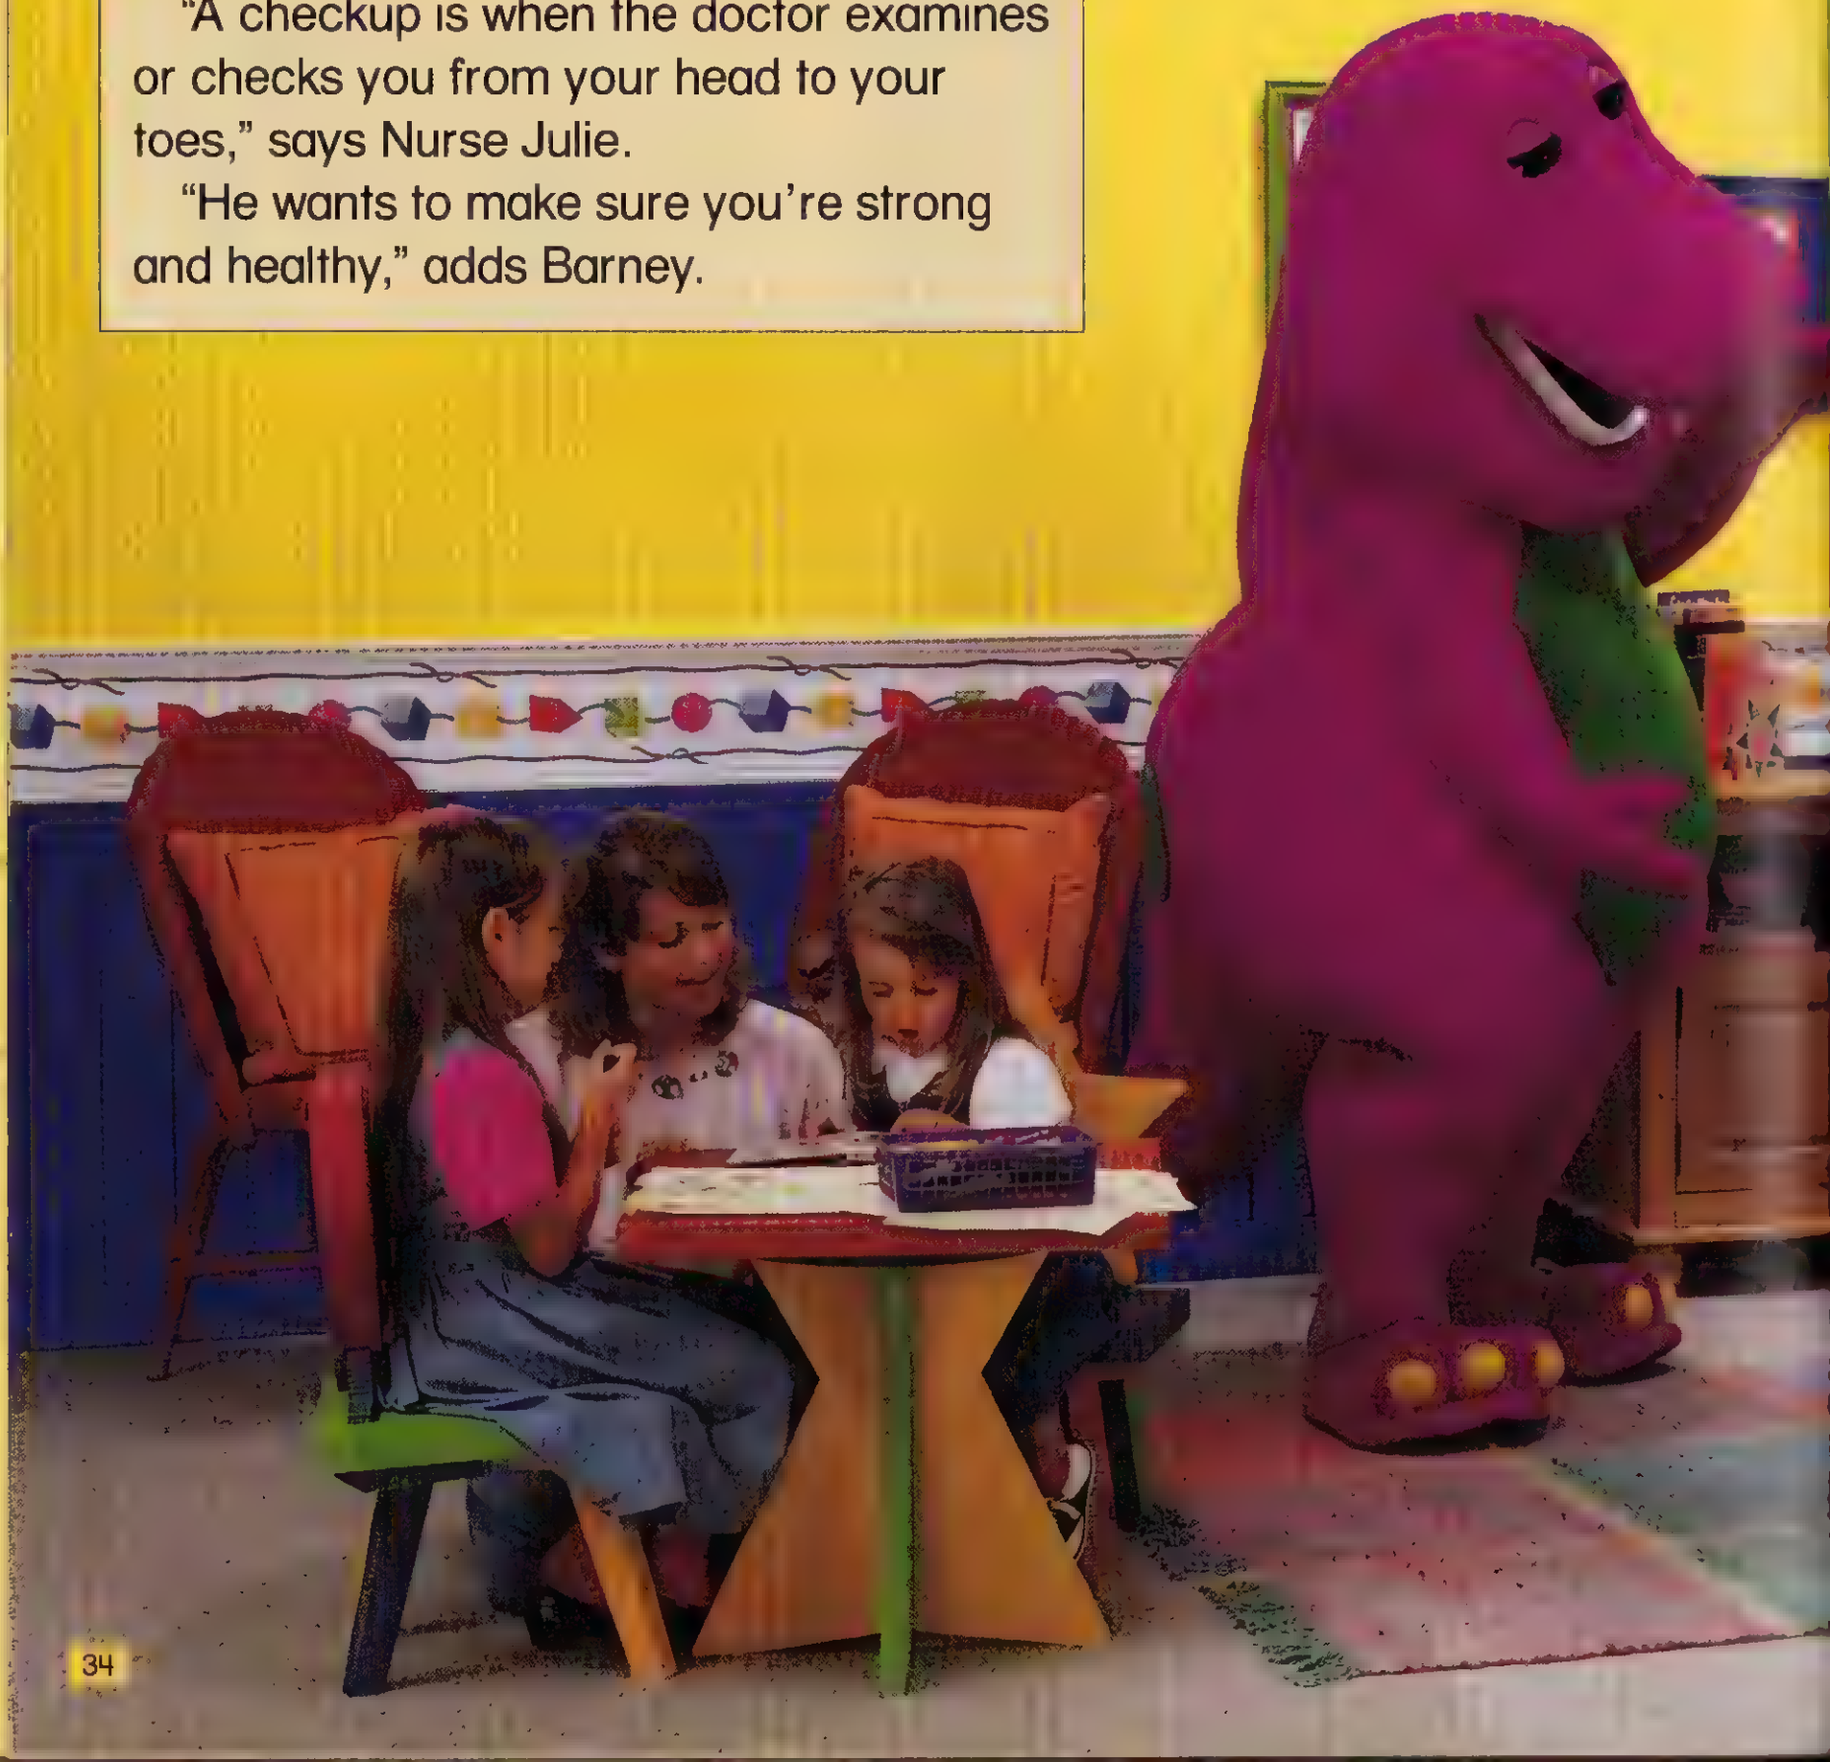
"I know," replies Barney. "Going to the doctor can be scary. But remember, doctors are our friends. They help people stay healthy."

At the doctor's office, Julie the nurse says, "Hi, Baby Bop. It's good to see you again."

"I'm here for my checkup. What is a checkup?" asks Baby Bop.

"A checkup is when the doctor examines or checks you from your head to your toes," says Nurse Julie.

"He wants to make sure you're strong and healthy," adds Barney.



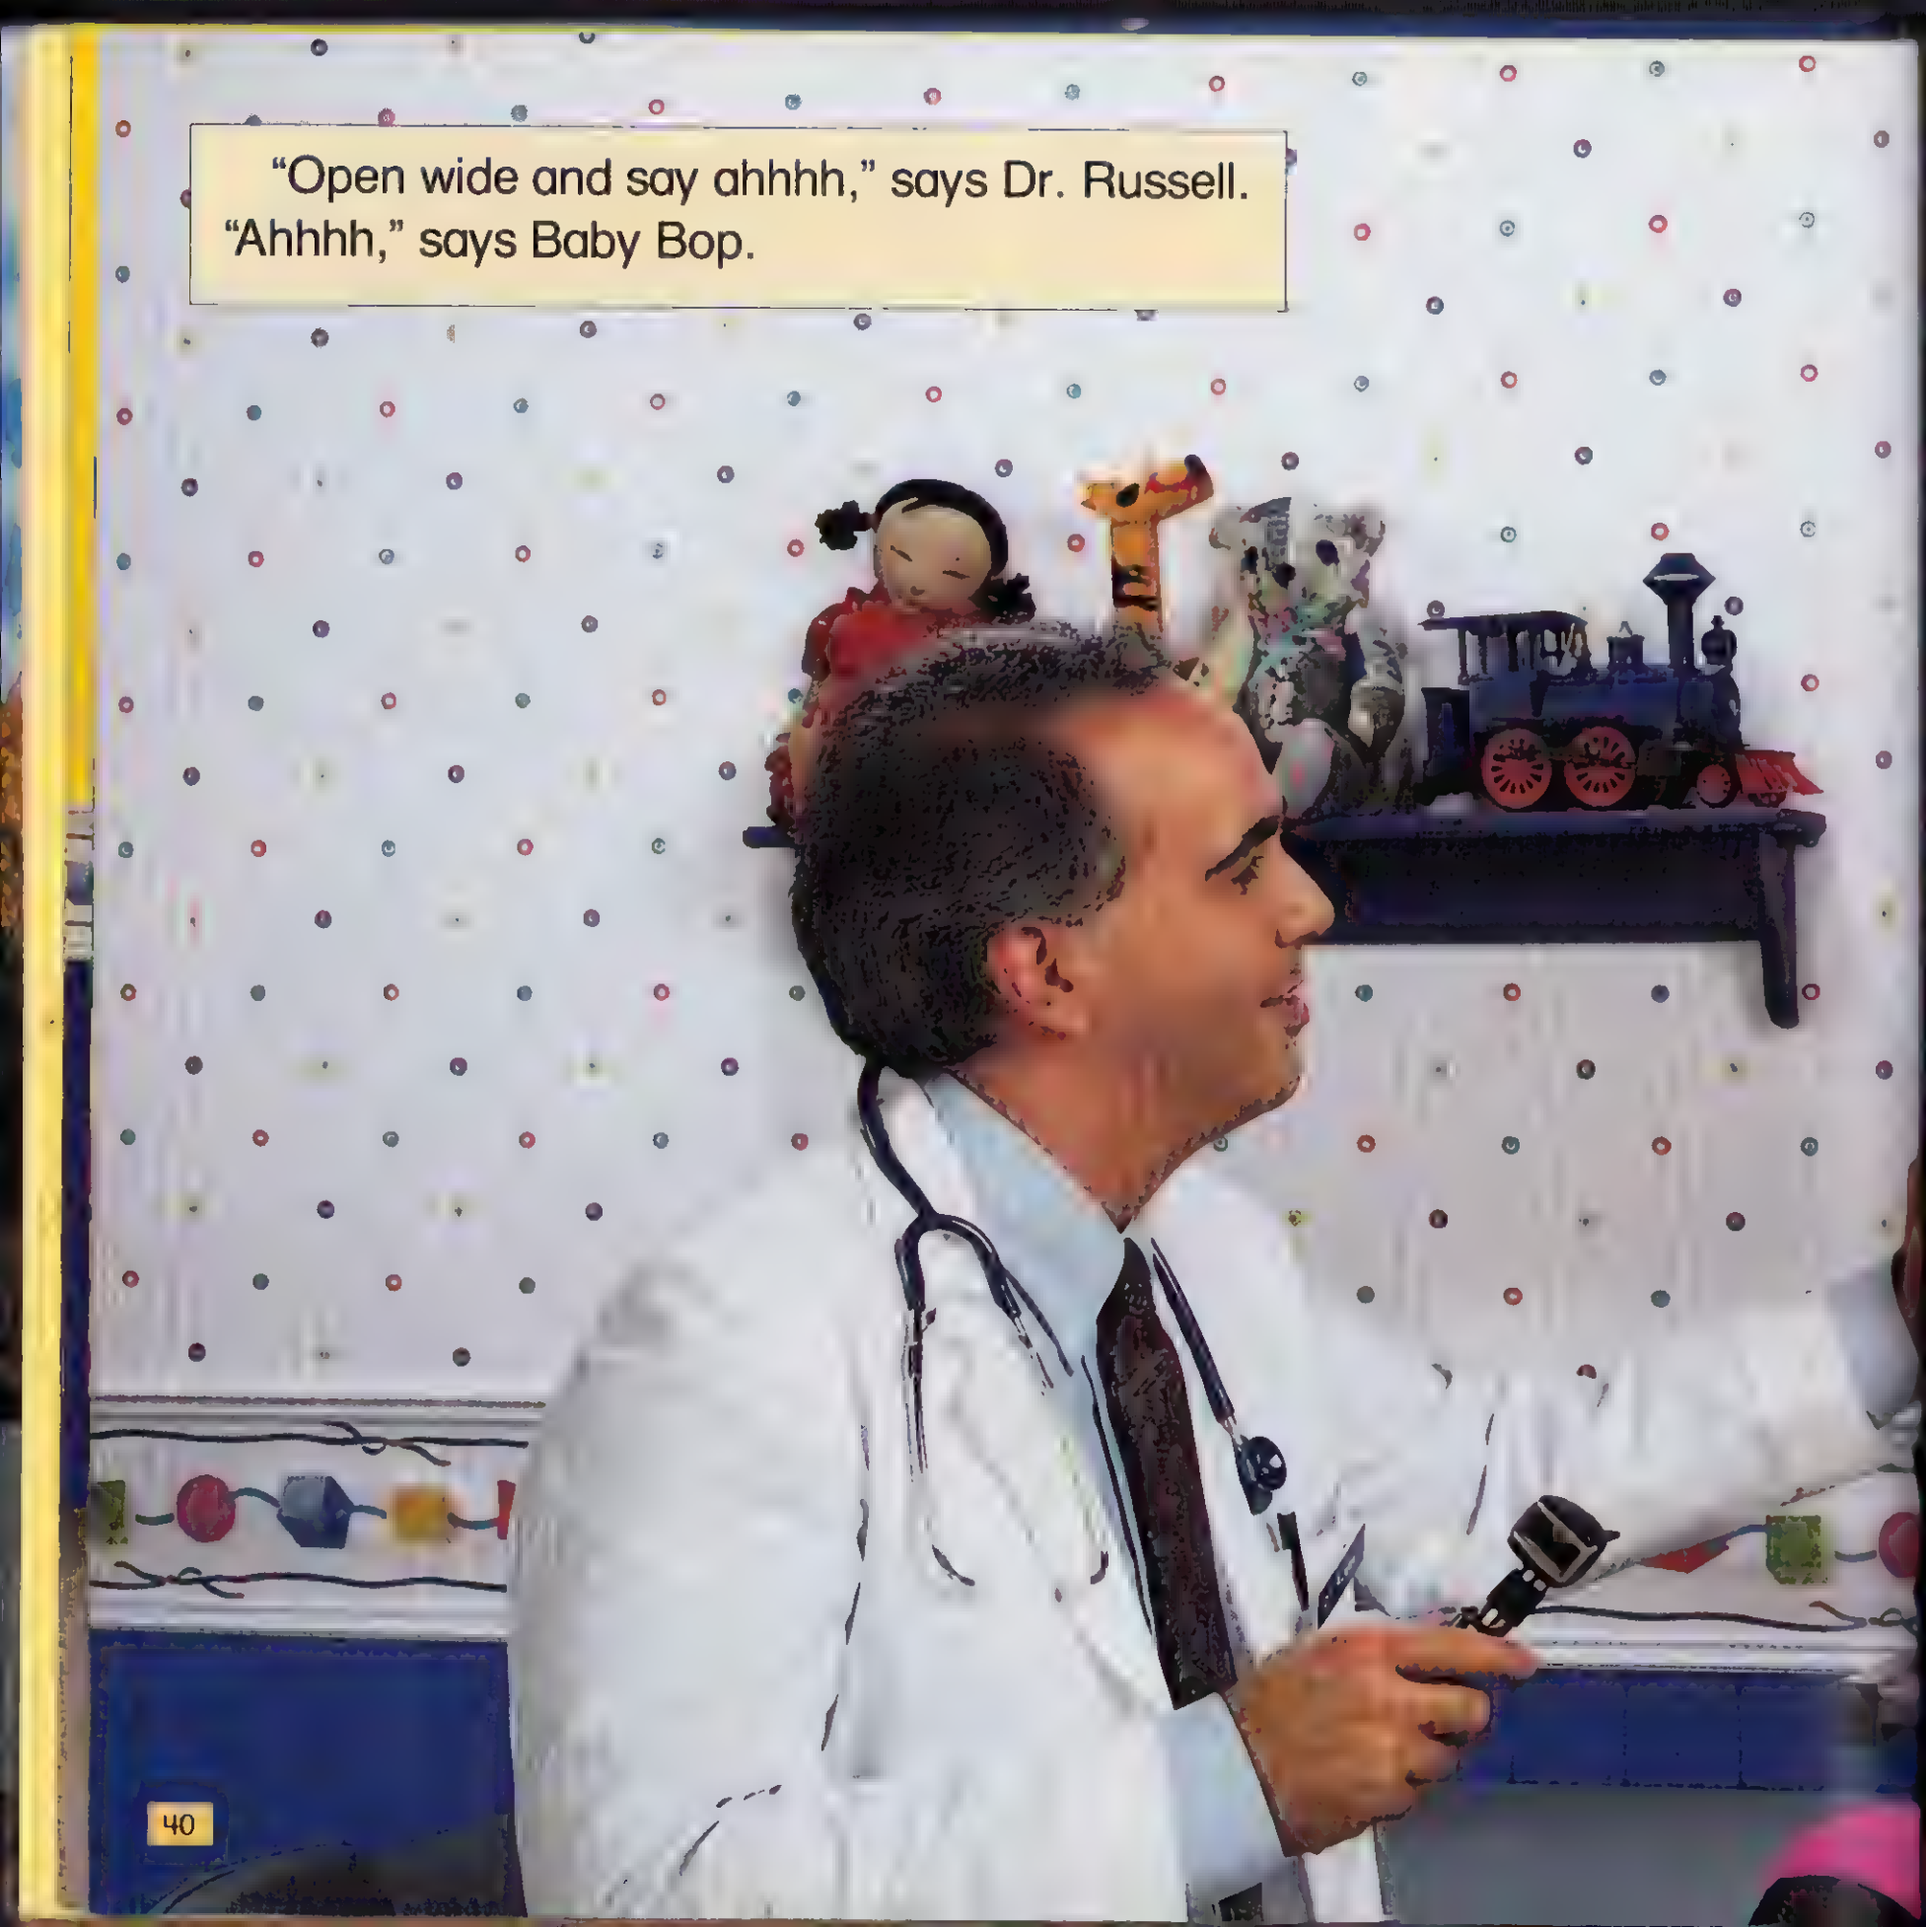
The doctor comes in to see Baby Bop. "How are you doing?" asks Dr. Russell.

"I'm strong and healthy," says Baby Bop. She thinks her doctor is very nice.

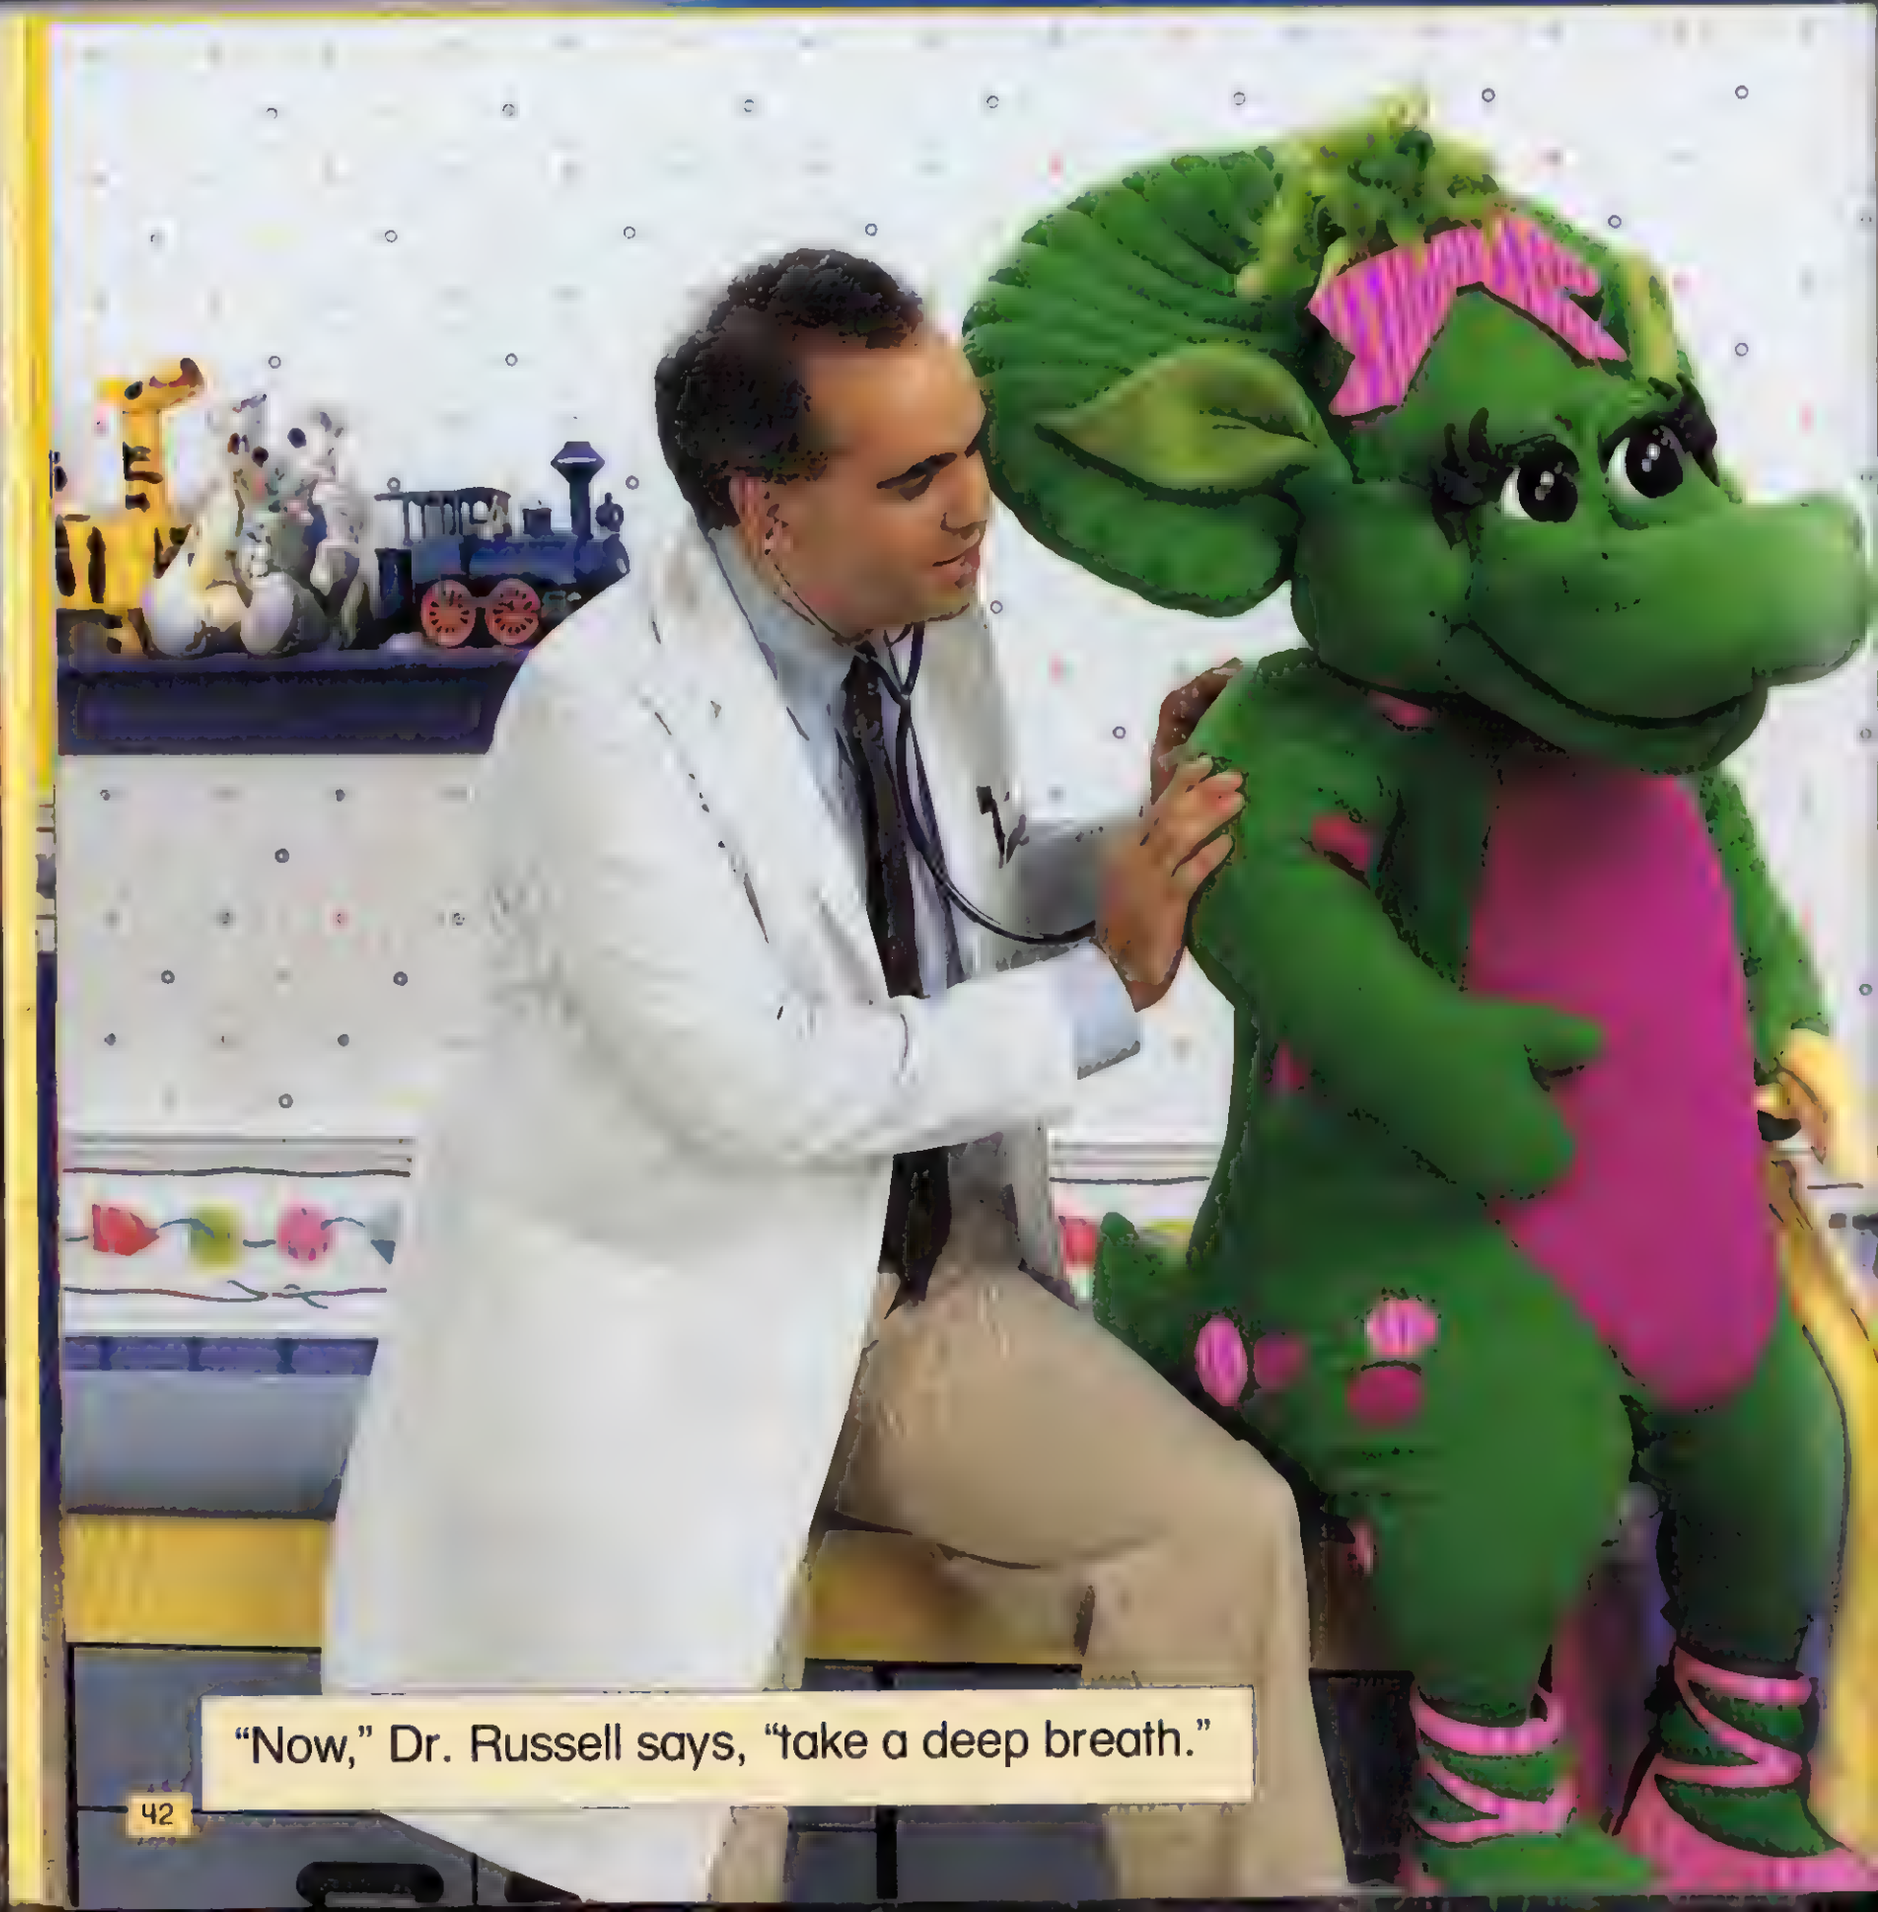
First, Nurse Julie and Dr. Russell weigh Baby Bop on a scale. Then they measure her height to see how much she has grown.

"Look! I'm a big girl now!" says Baby Bop.

Next, Baby Bop sits on a table so Dr. Russell can examine her.

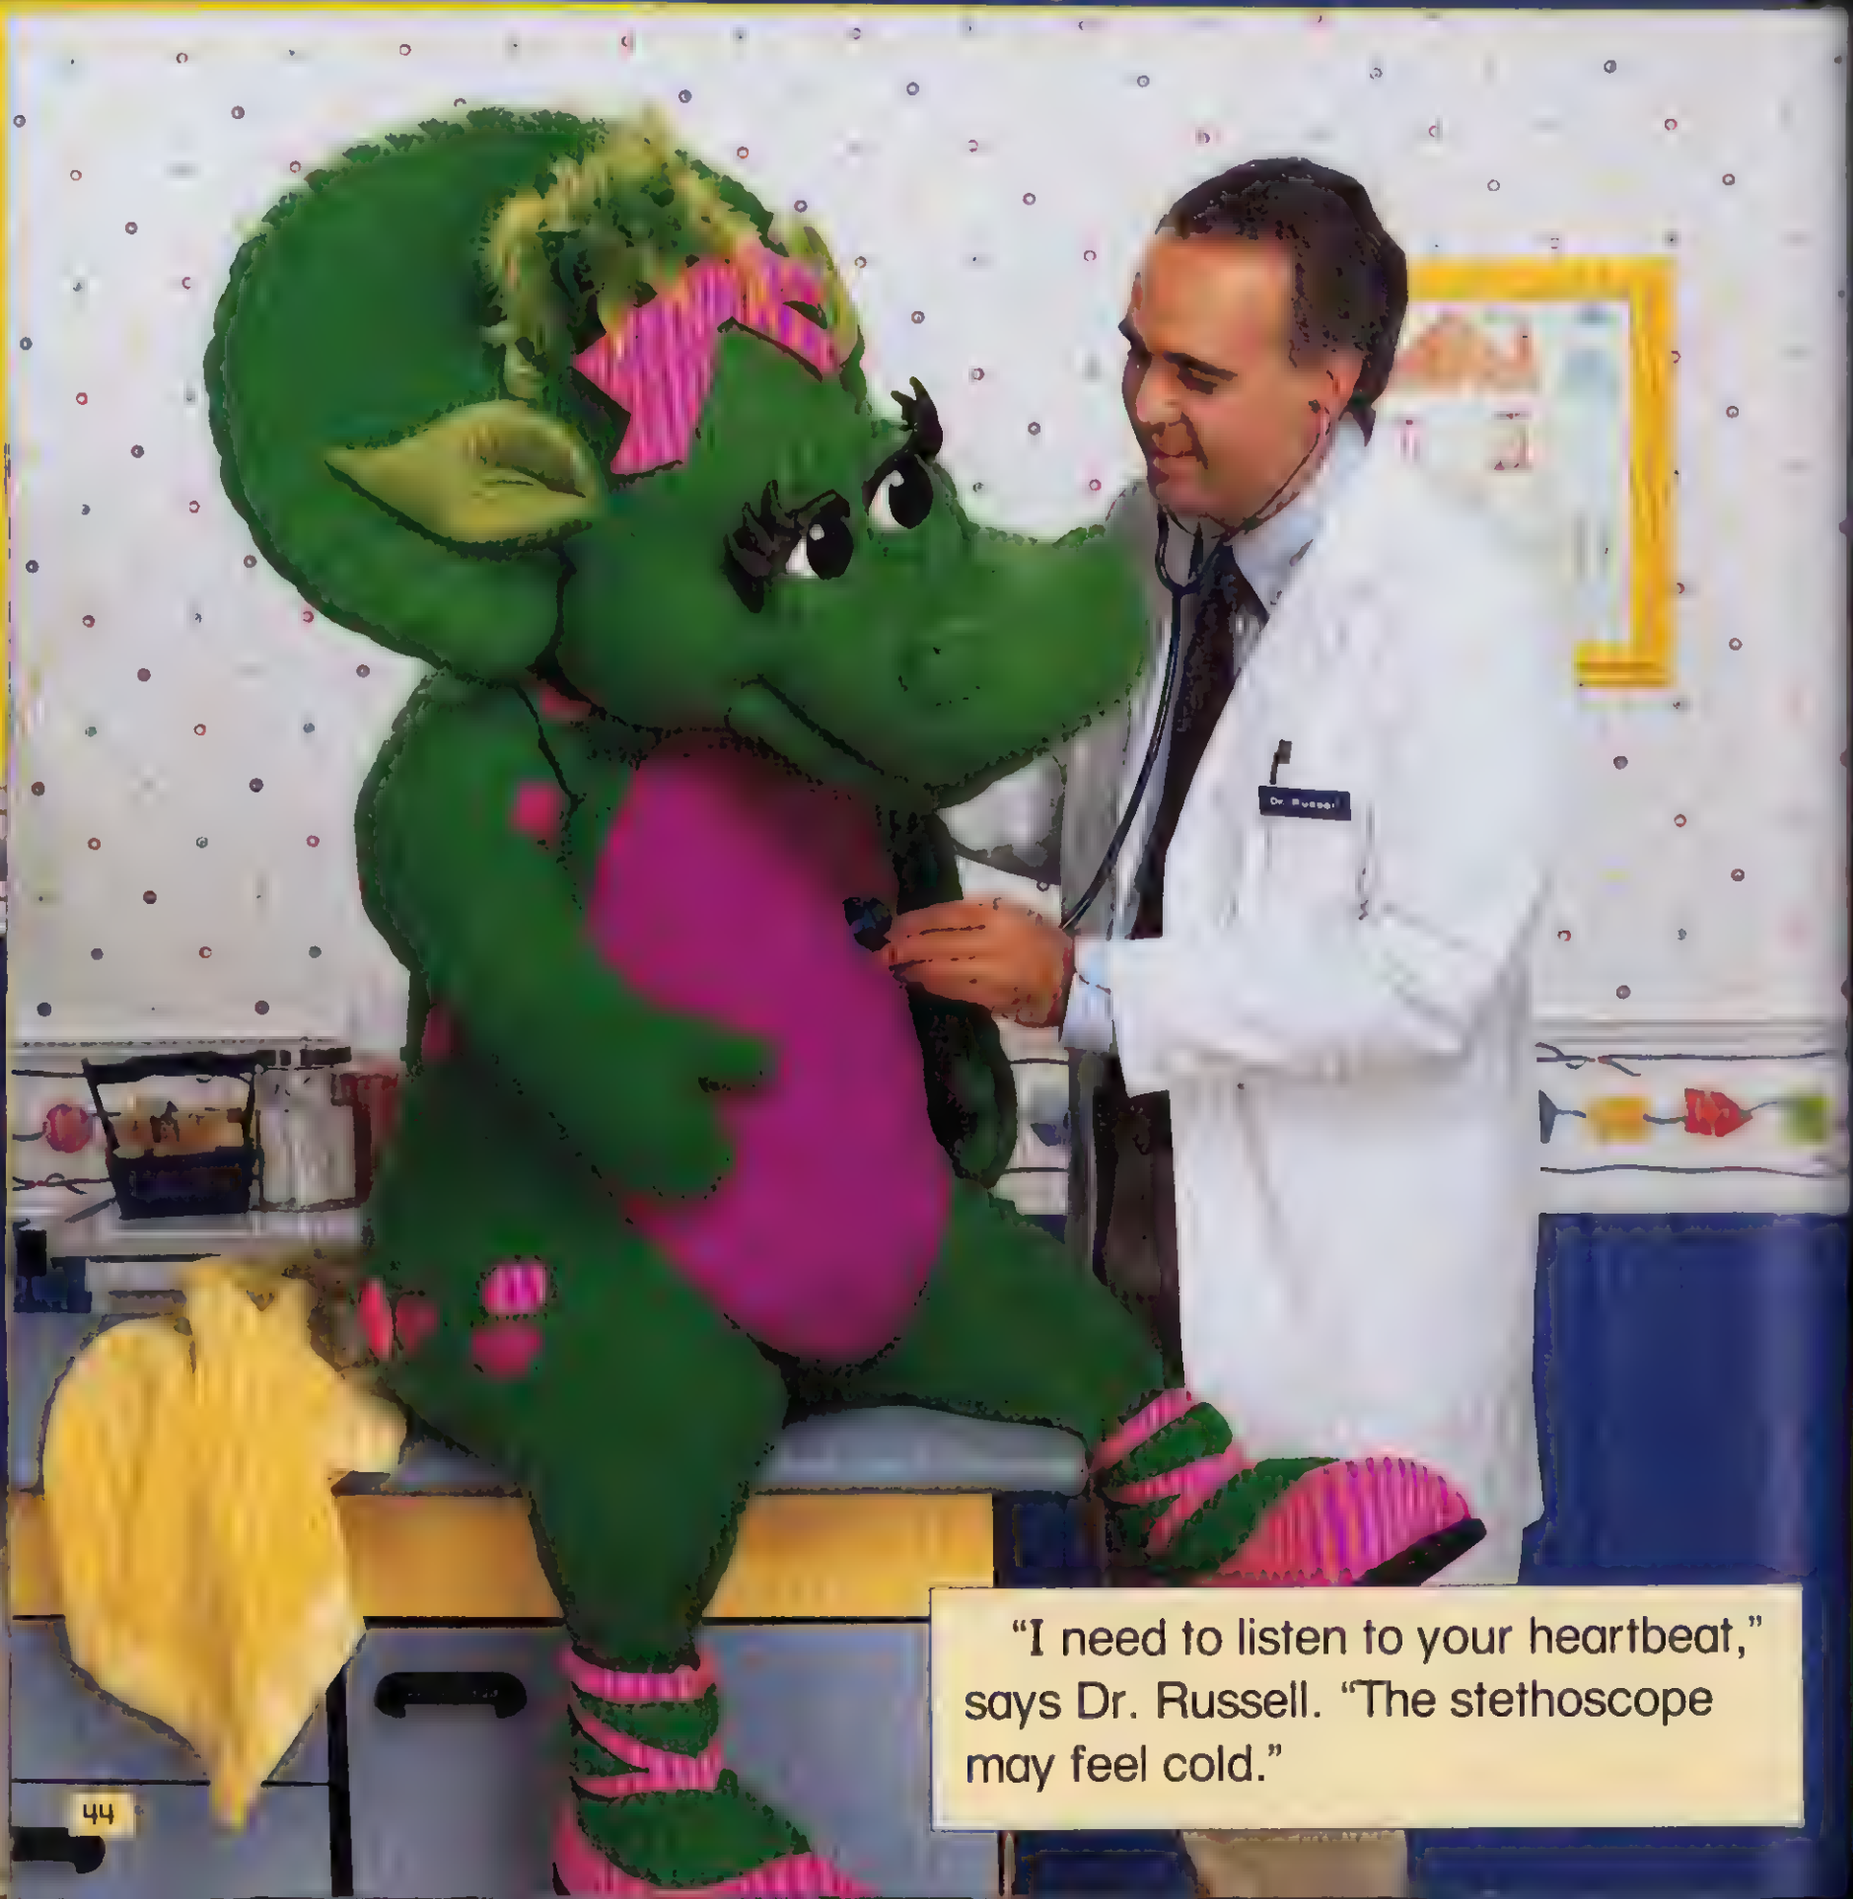


"Open wide and say ahhhh," says Dr. Russell.
"Ahhhh," says Baby Bop.

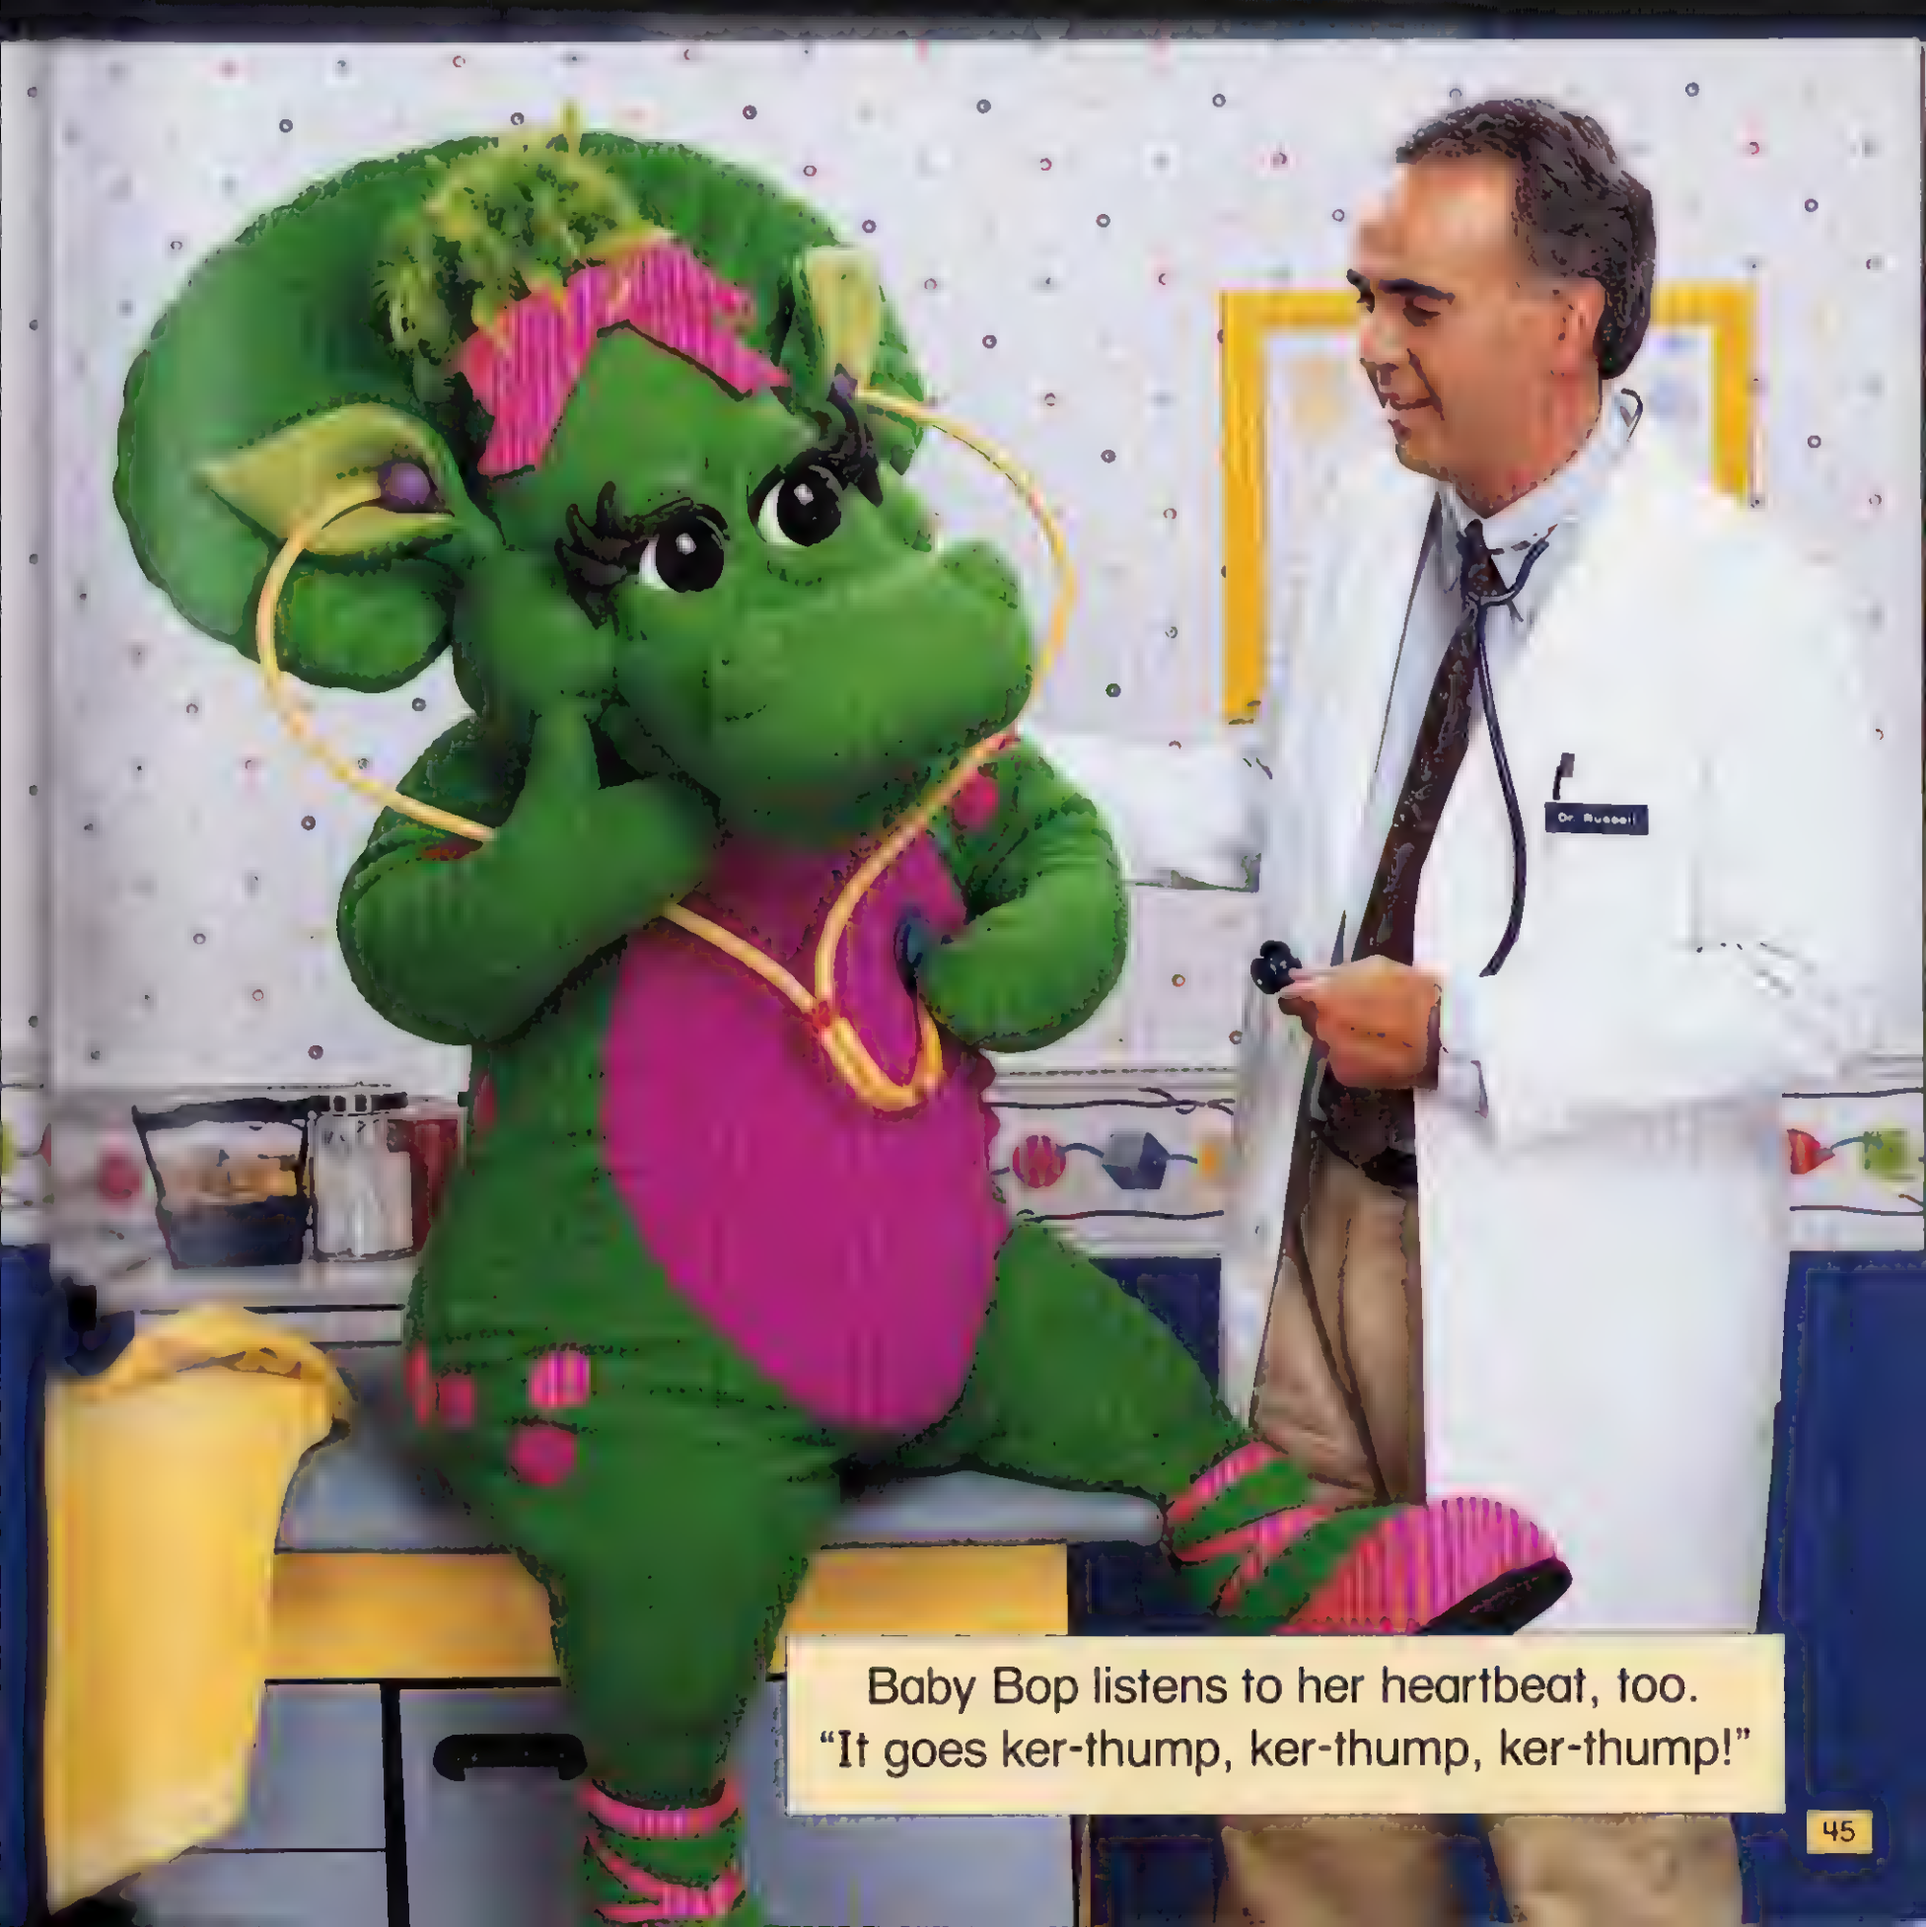


"Now," Dr. Russell says, "take a deep breath."

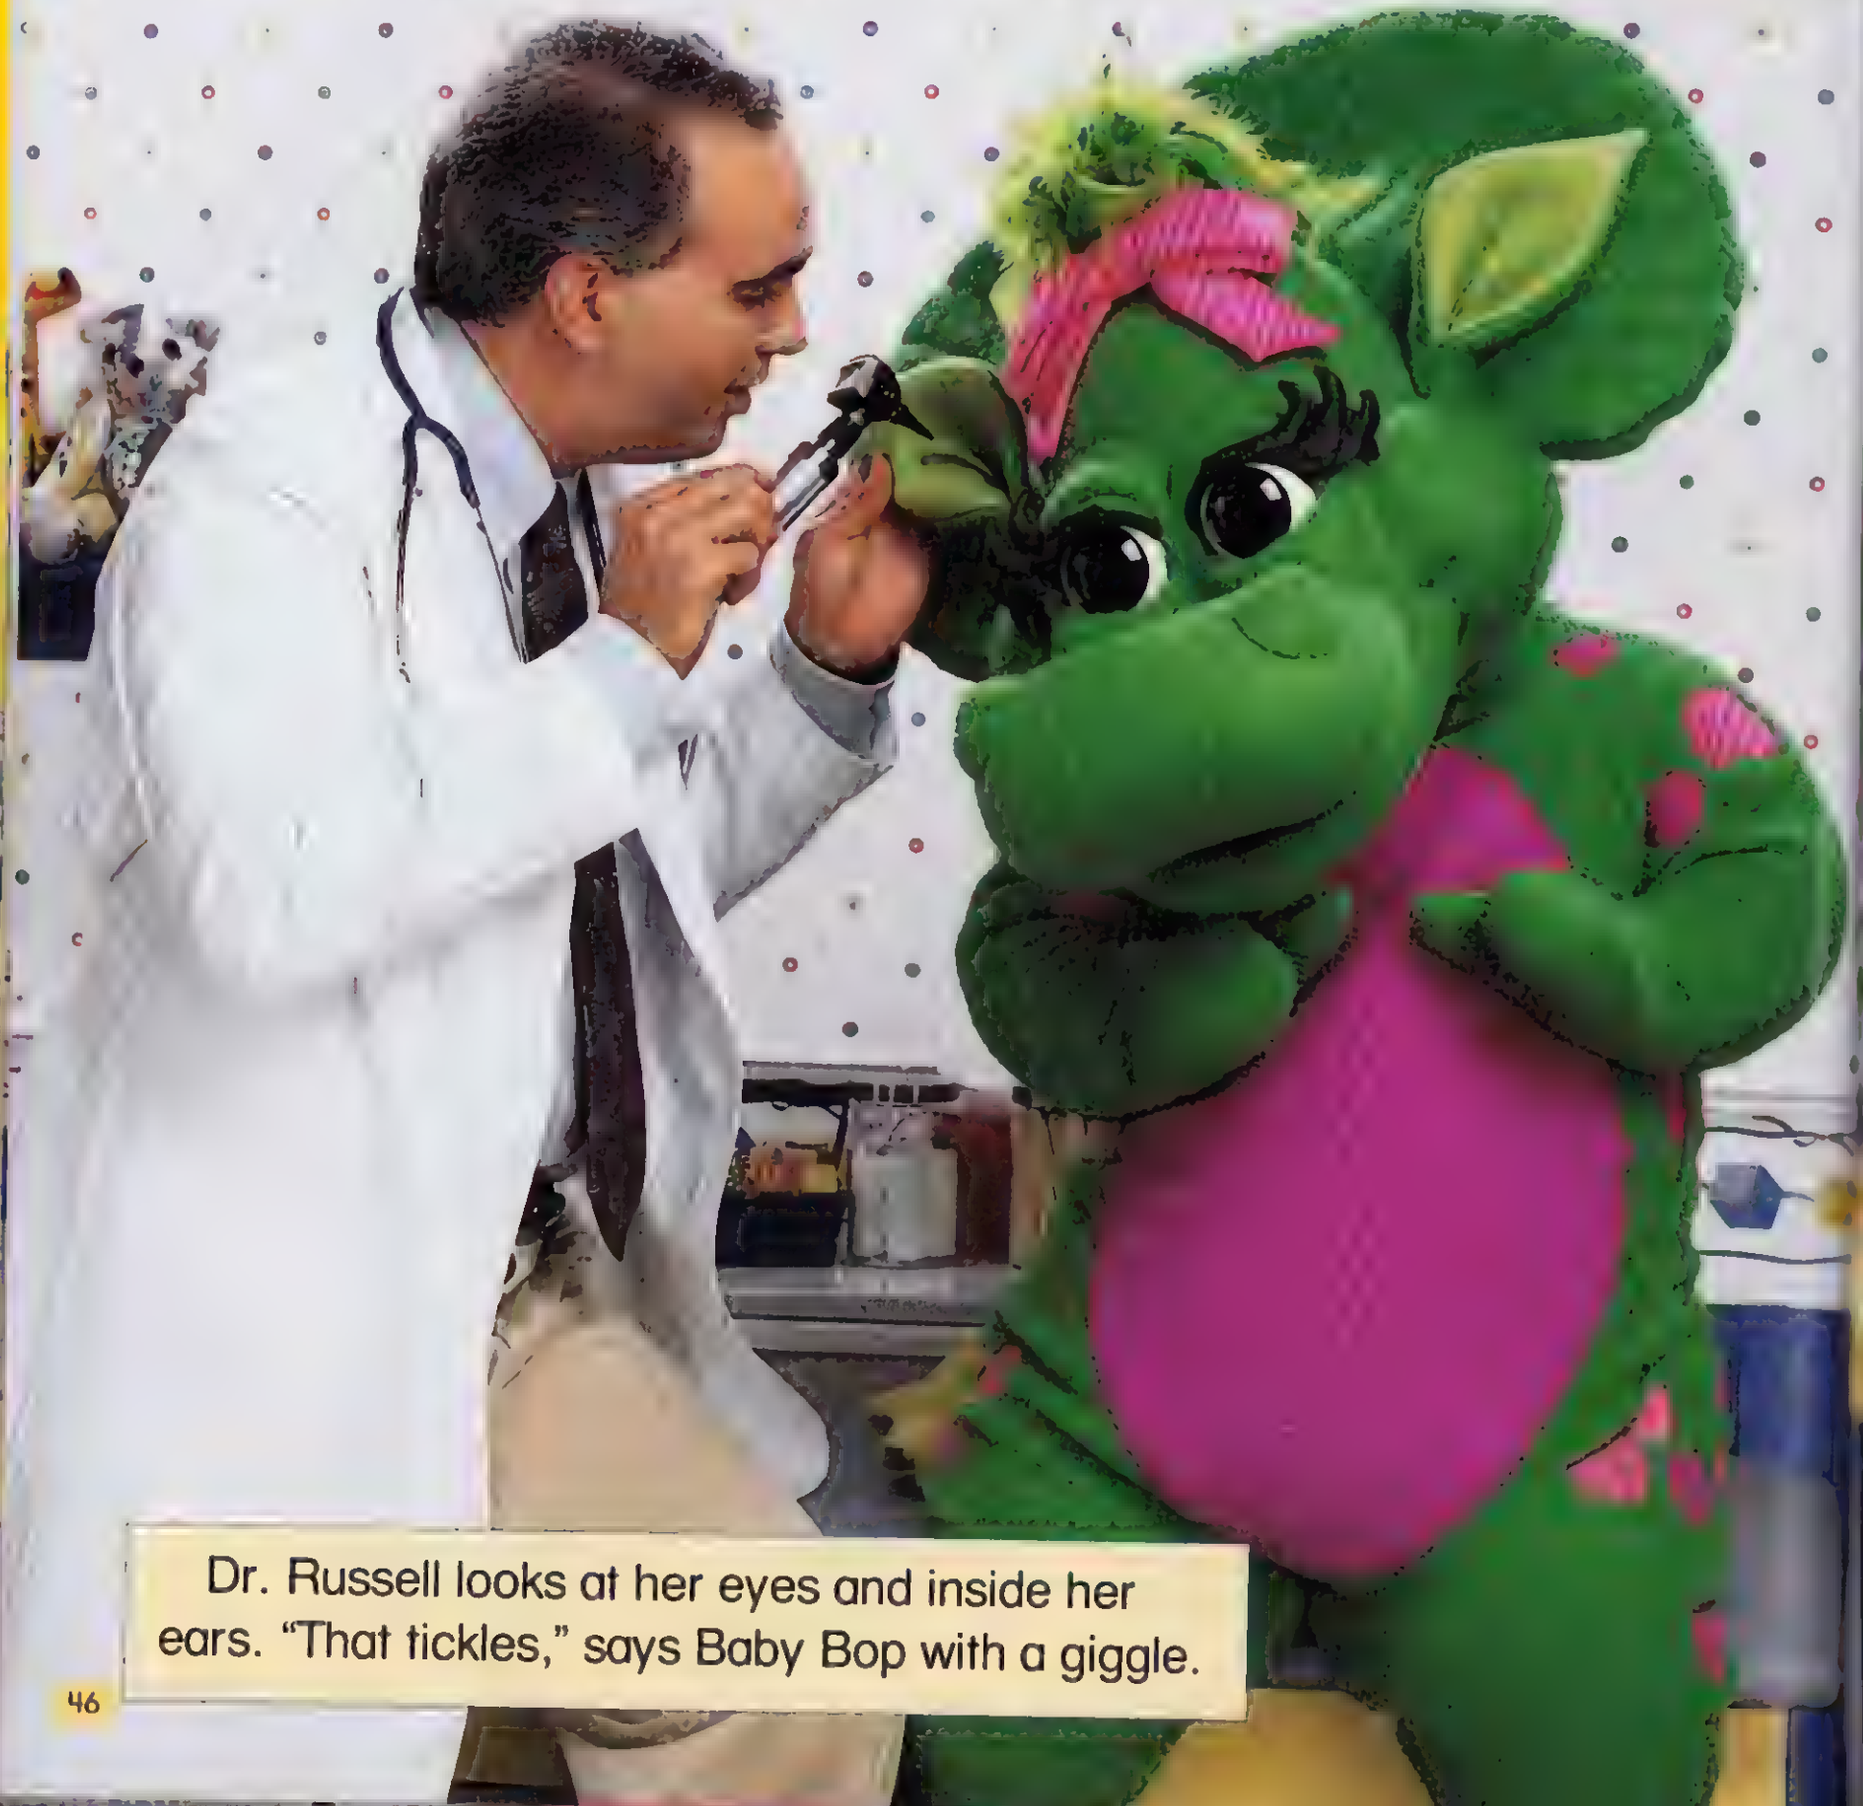
Baby Bop takes a deep breath. "Good job, Baby Bop," says Dr. Russell.



"I need to listen to your heartbeat," says Dr. Russell. "The stethoscope may feel cold."

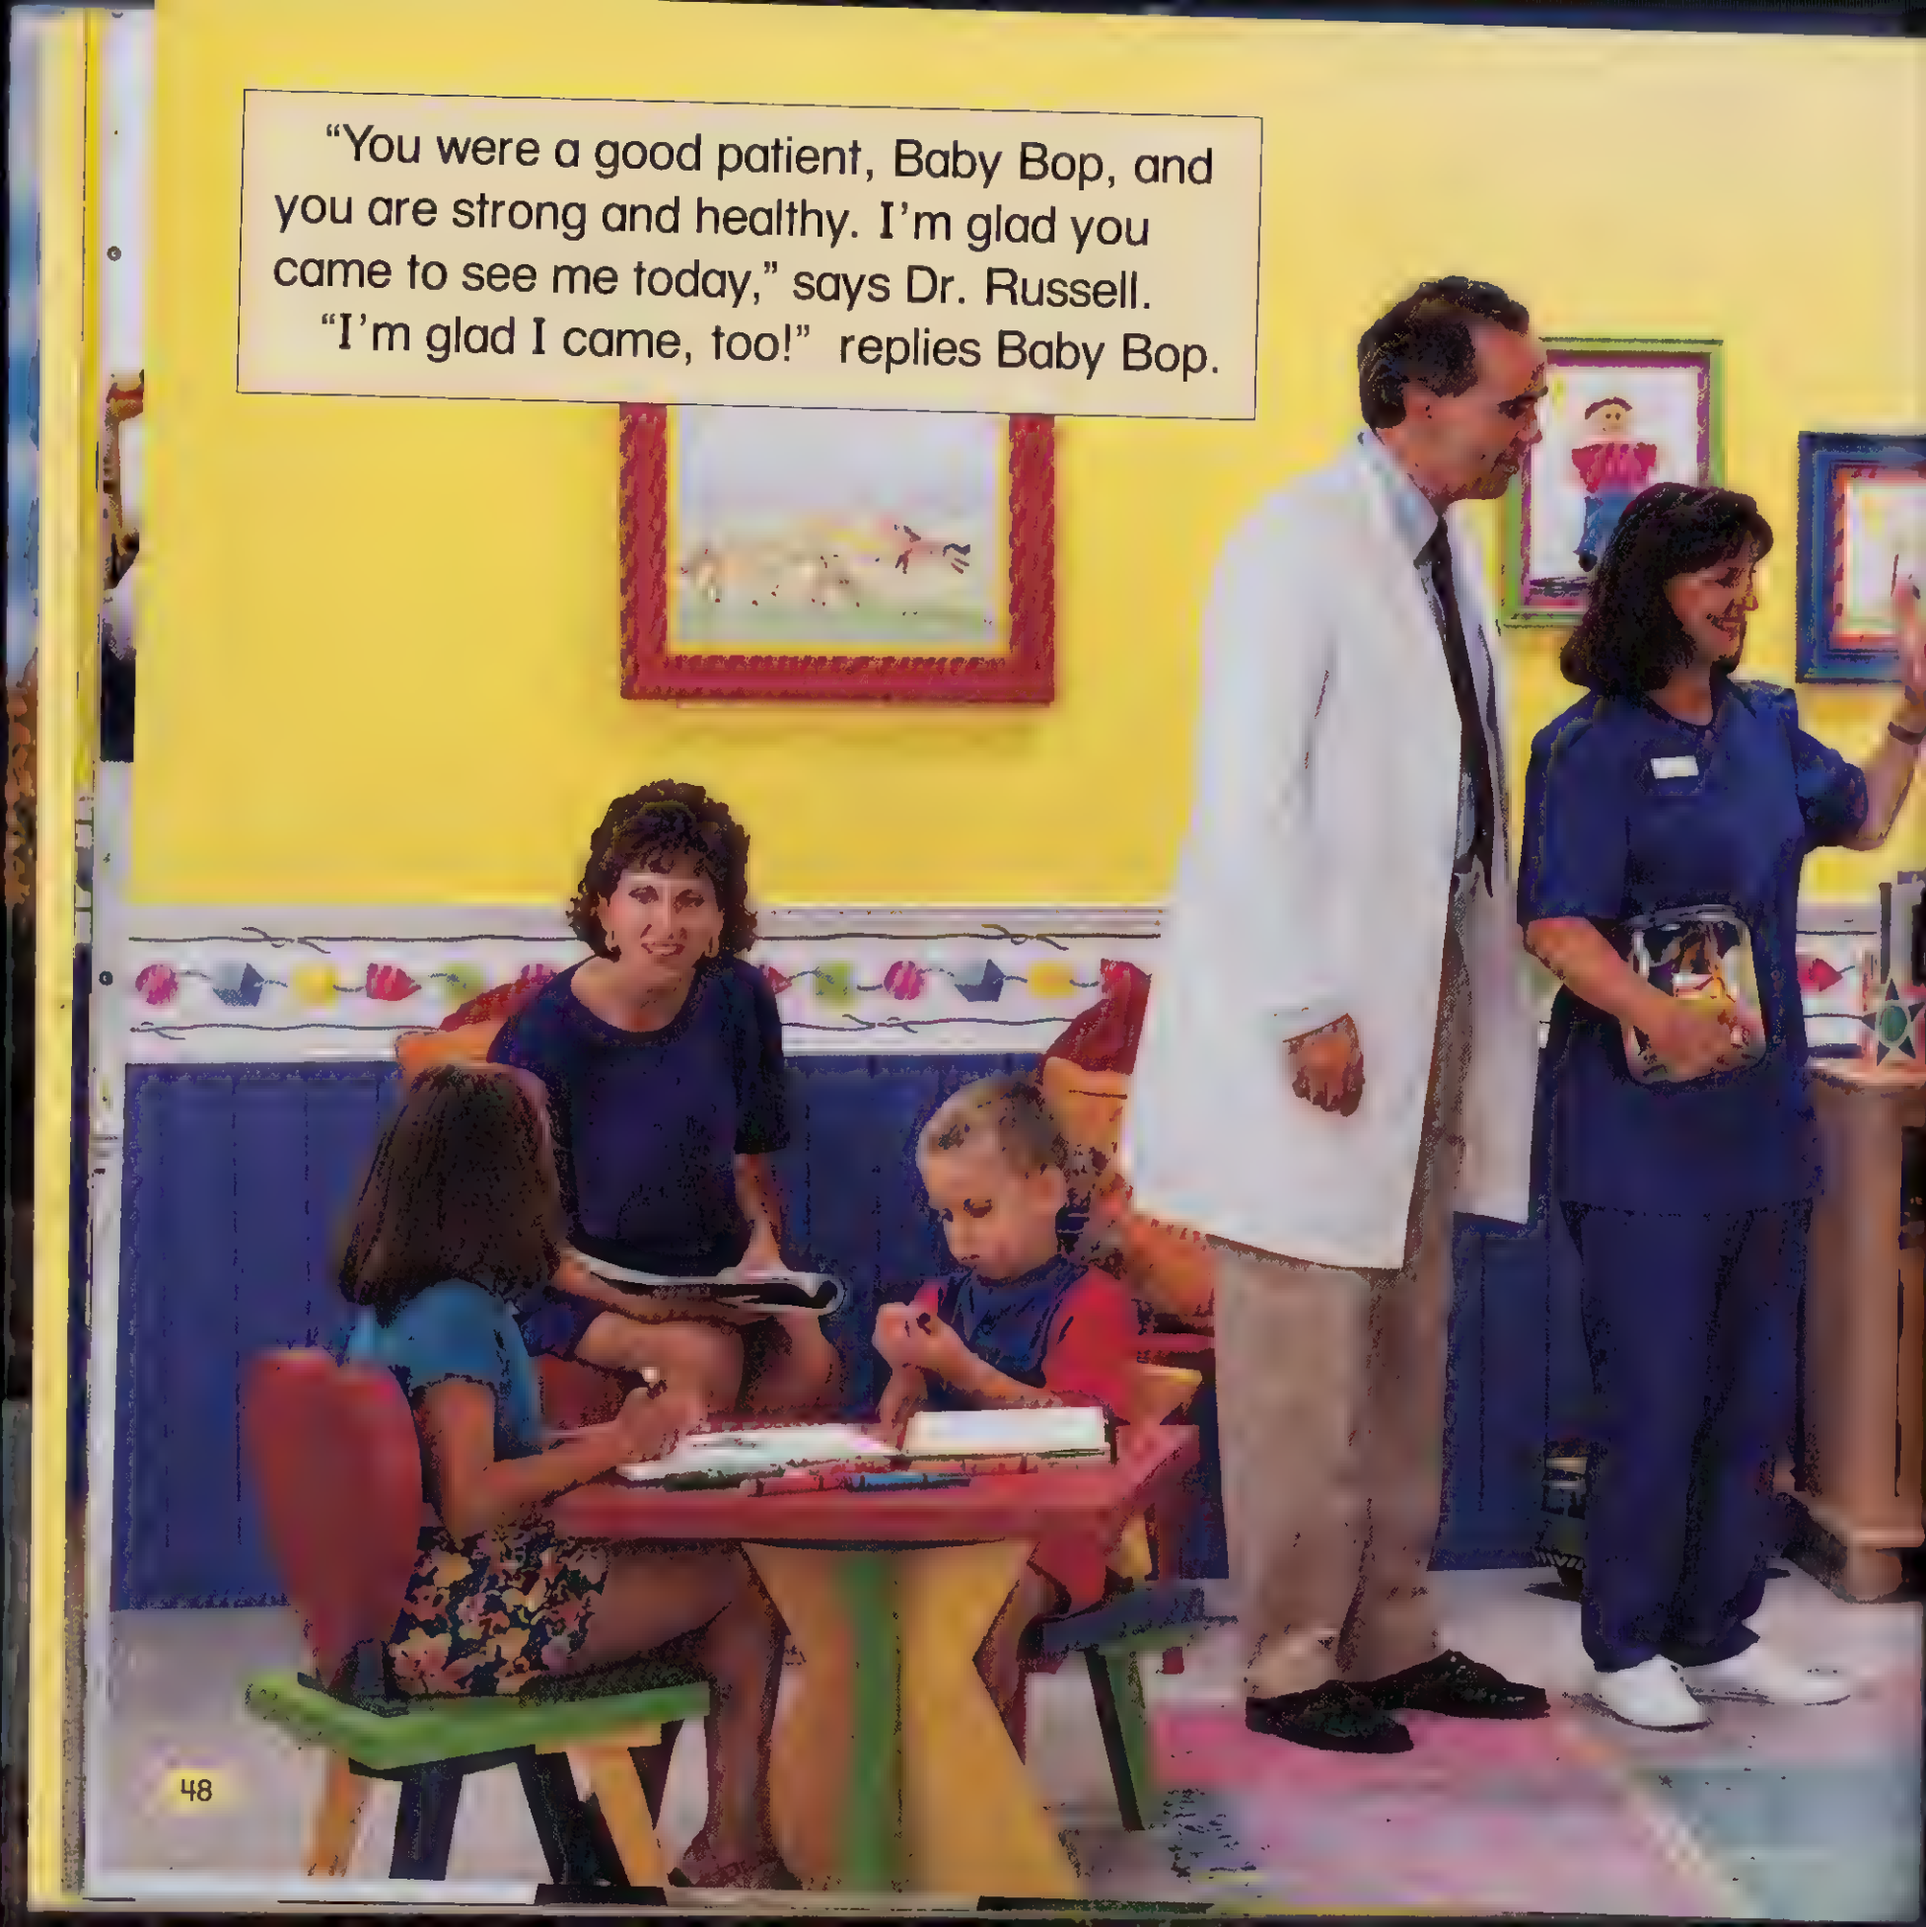


Baby Bop listens to her heartbeat, too.
"It goes ker-thump, ker-thump, ker-thump!"



Dr. Russell looks at her eyes and inside her ears. "That tickles," says Baby Bop with a giggle.

The doctor taps Baby Bop's knee, and her foot jumps up! "That feels funny," giggles Baby Bop.



"You were a good patient, Baby Bop, and you are strong and healthy. I'm glad you came to see me today," says Dr. Russell.
"I'm glad I came, too!" replies Baby Bop.

"Going to the doctor isn't so scary, Barney. Doctors help people stay healthy!" says Baby Bop.

Barney™ Goes To The Farm

Written by Mark S. Bernthal • Photography by Dennis Full

It was a beautiful morning on the farm! The sun was rising, and the rooster was crowing, "Cock-a-doodle-dooooo!"

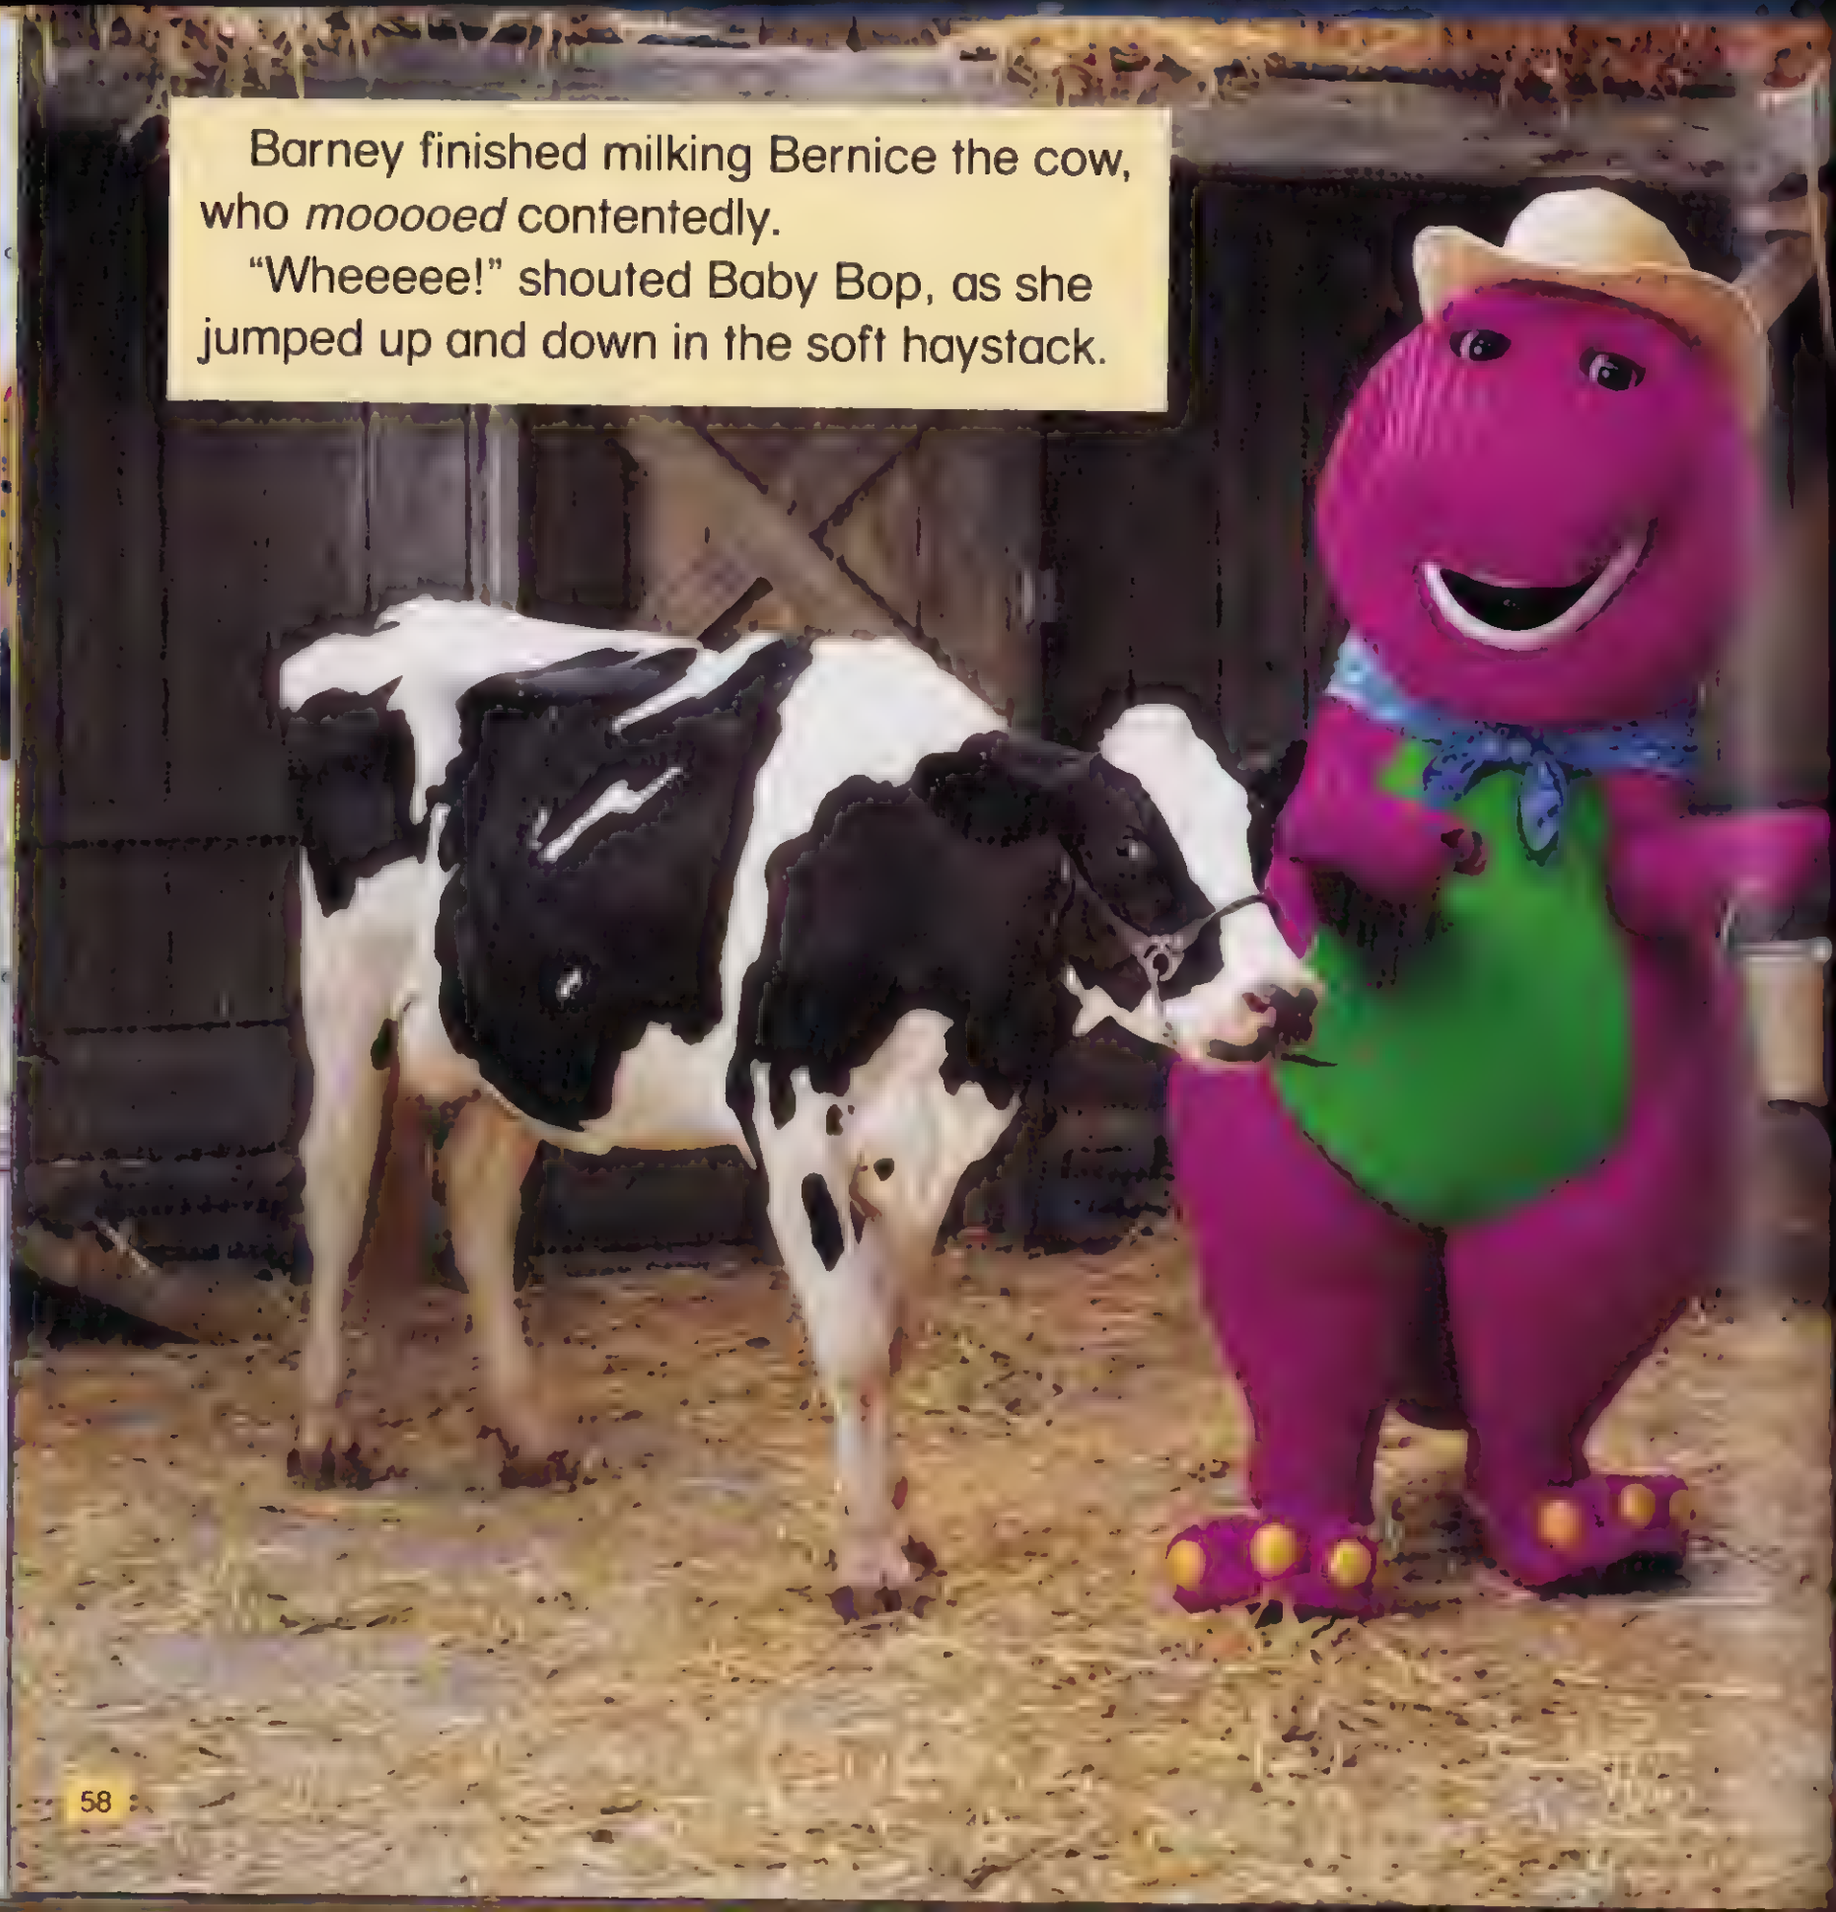
Barney jumped for joy shouting, "Boy, oh boy! Another day of fun on the farm!"

"I like to play on the farm," giggled Baby Bop.

"But Sissy," said BJ, "we can't just play all day."

"That's right," said Barney. "Farmers start their days early because they always have lots of chores. Our first chore is to feed all the animals in the barn."

BJ fed fresh hay to Agnes the horse. "Here's your breakfast," BJ said, as Agnes happily nibbled away.

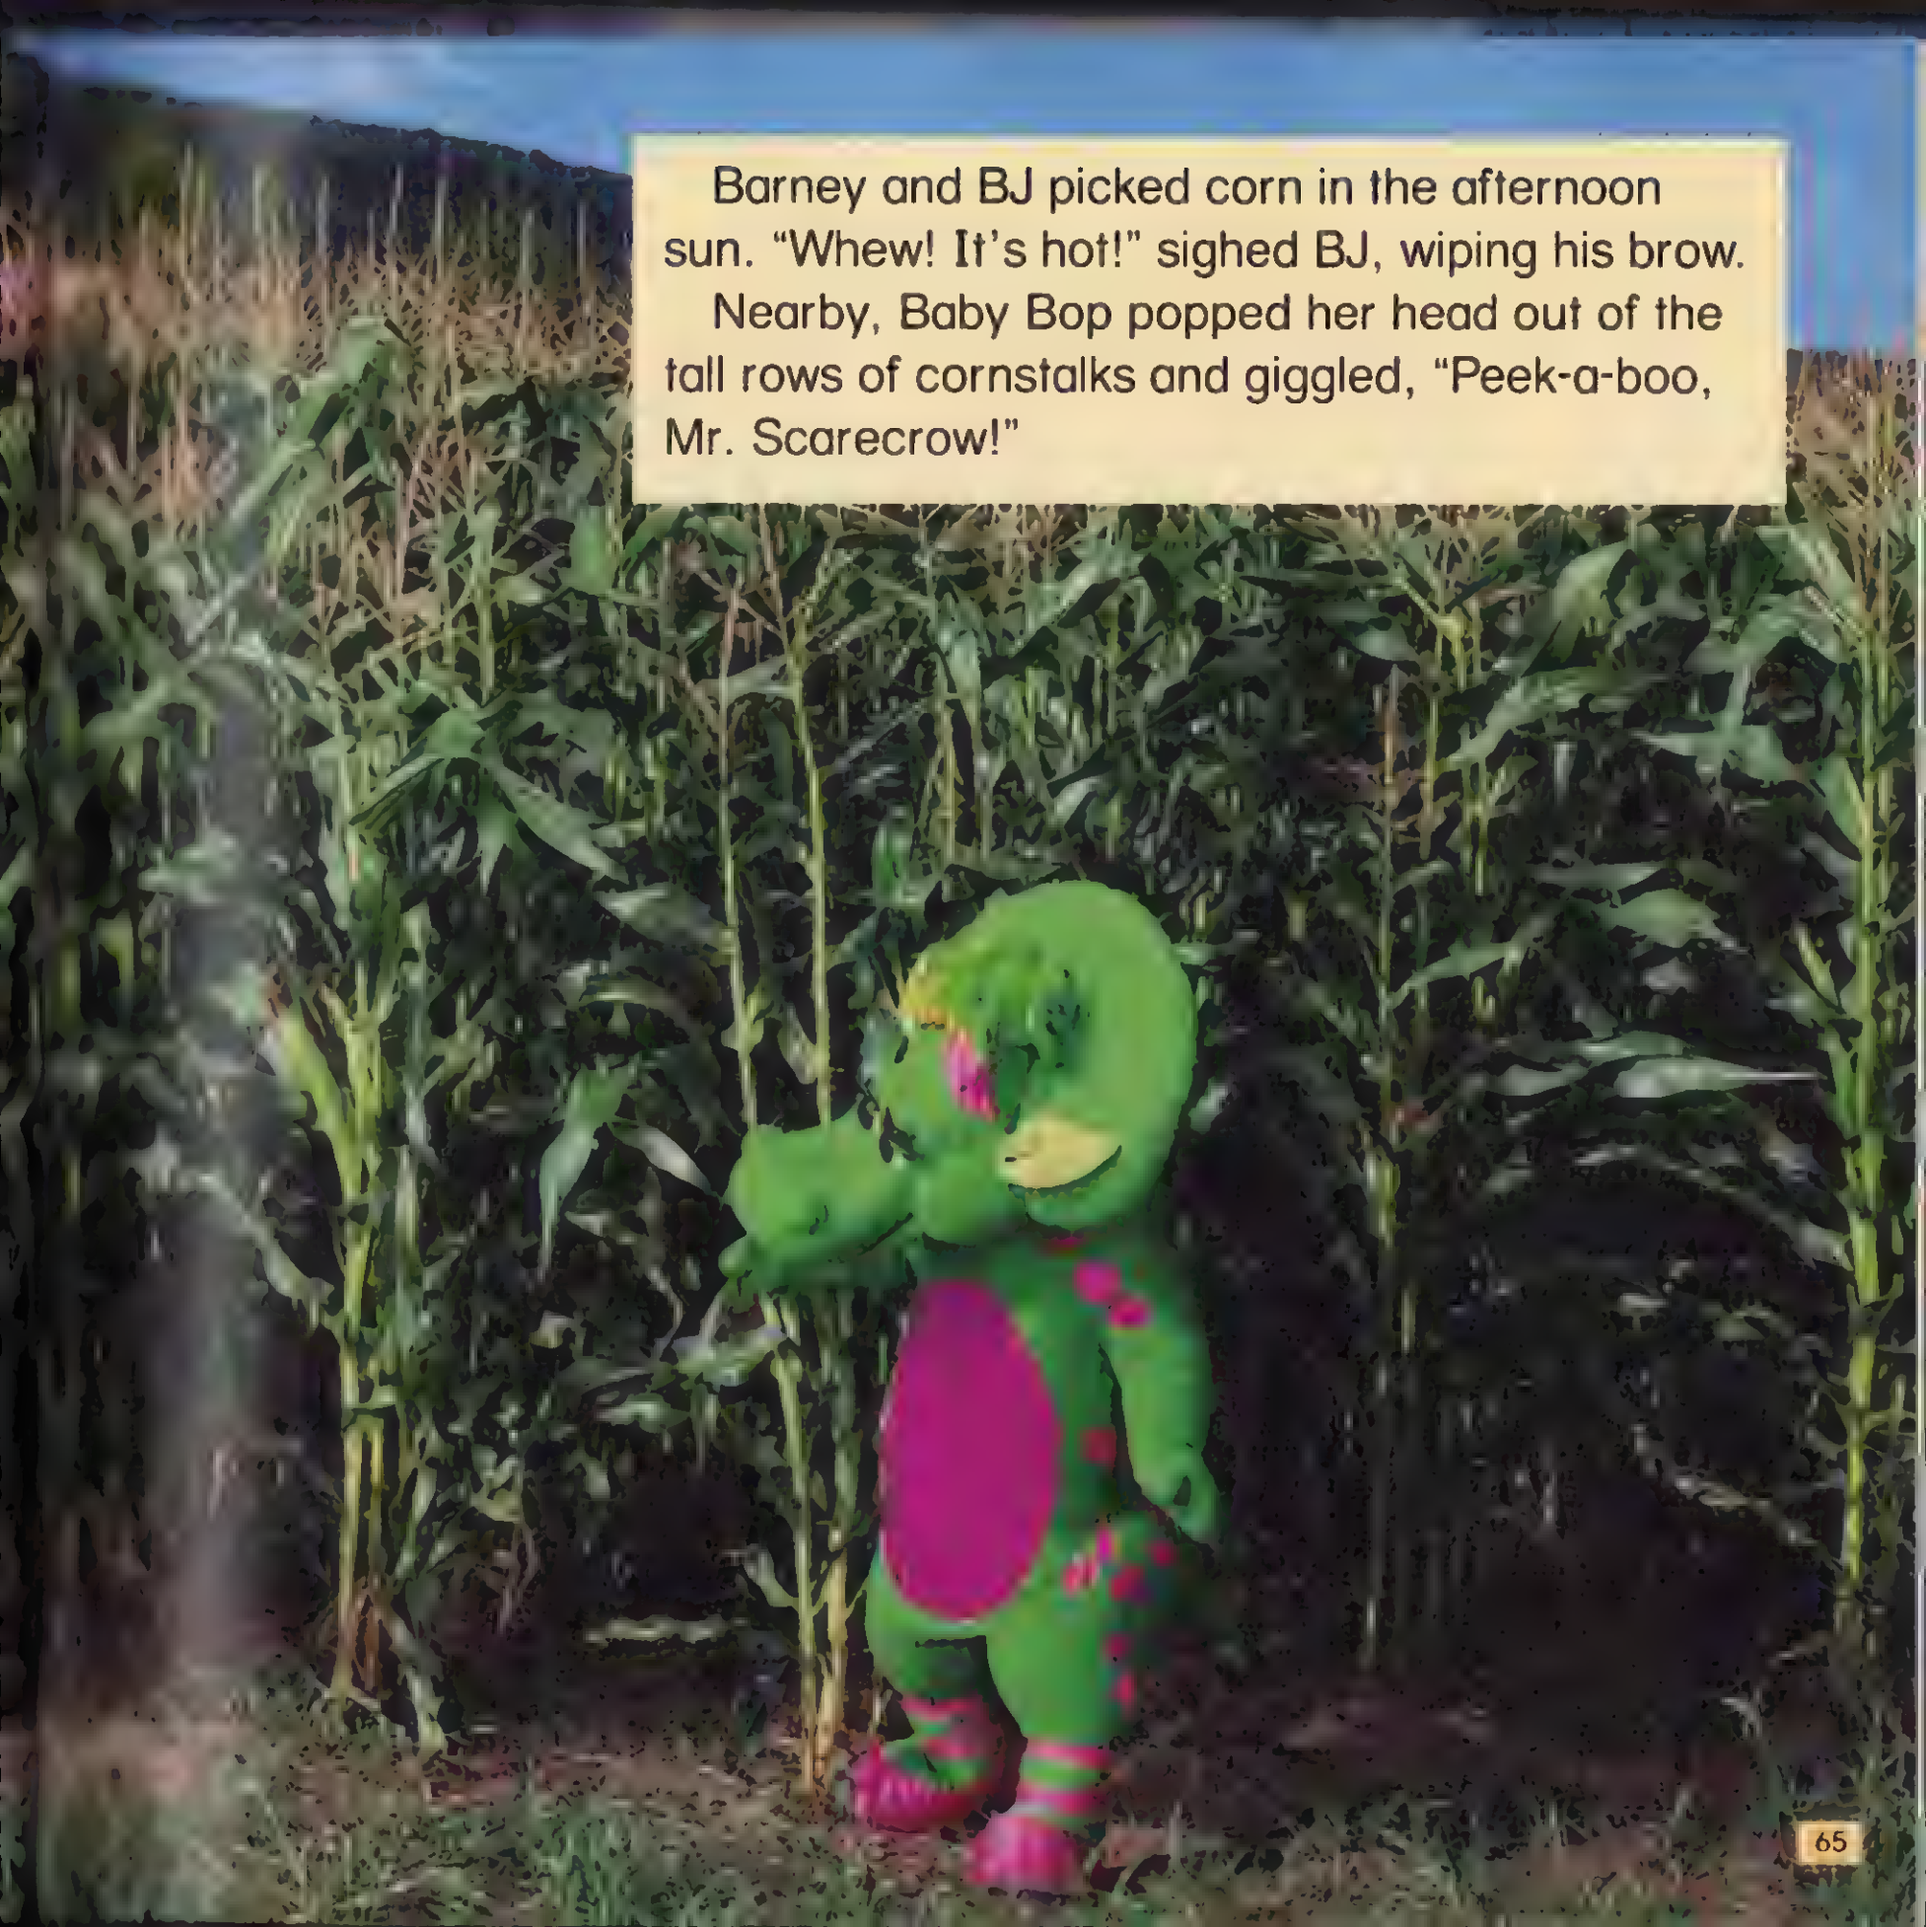


Barney finished milking Bernice the cow, who mooooed contentedly.

"Wheeeee!" shouted Baby Bop, as she jumped up and down in the soft haystack.

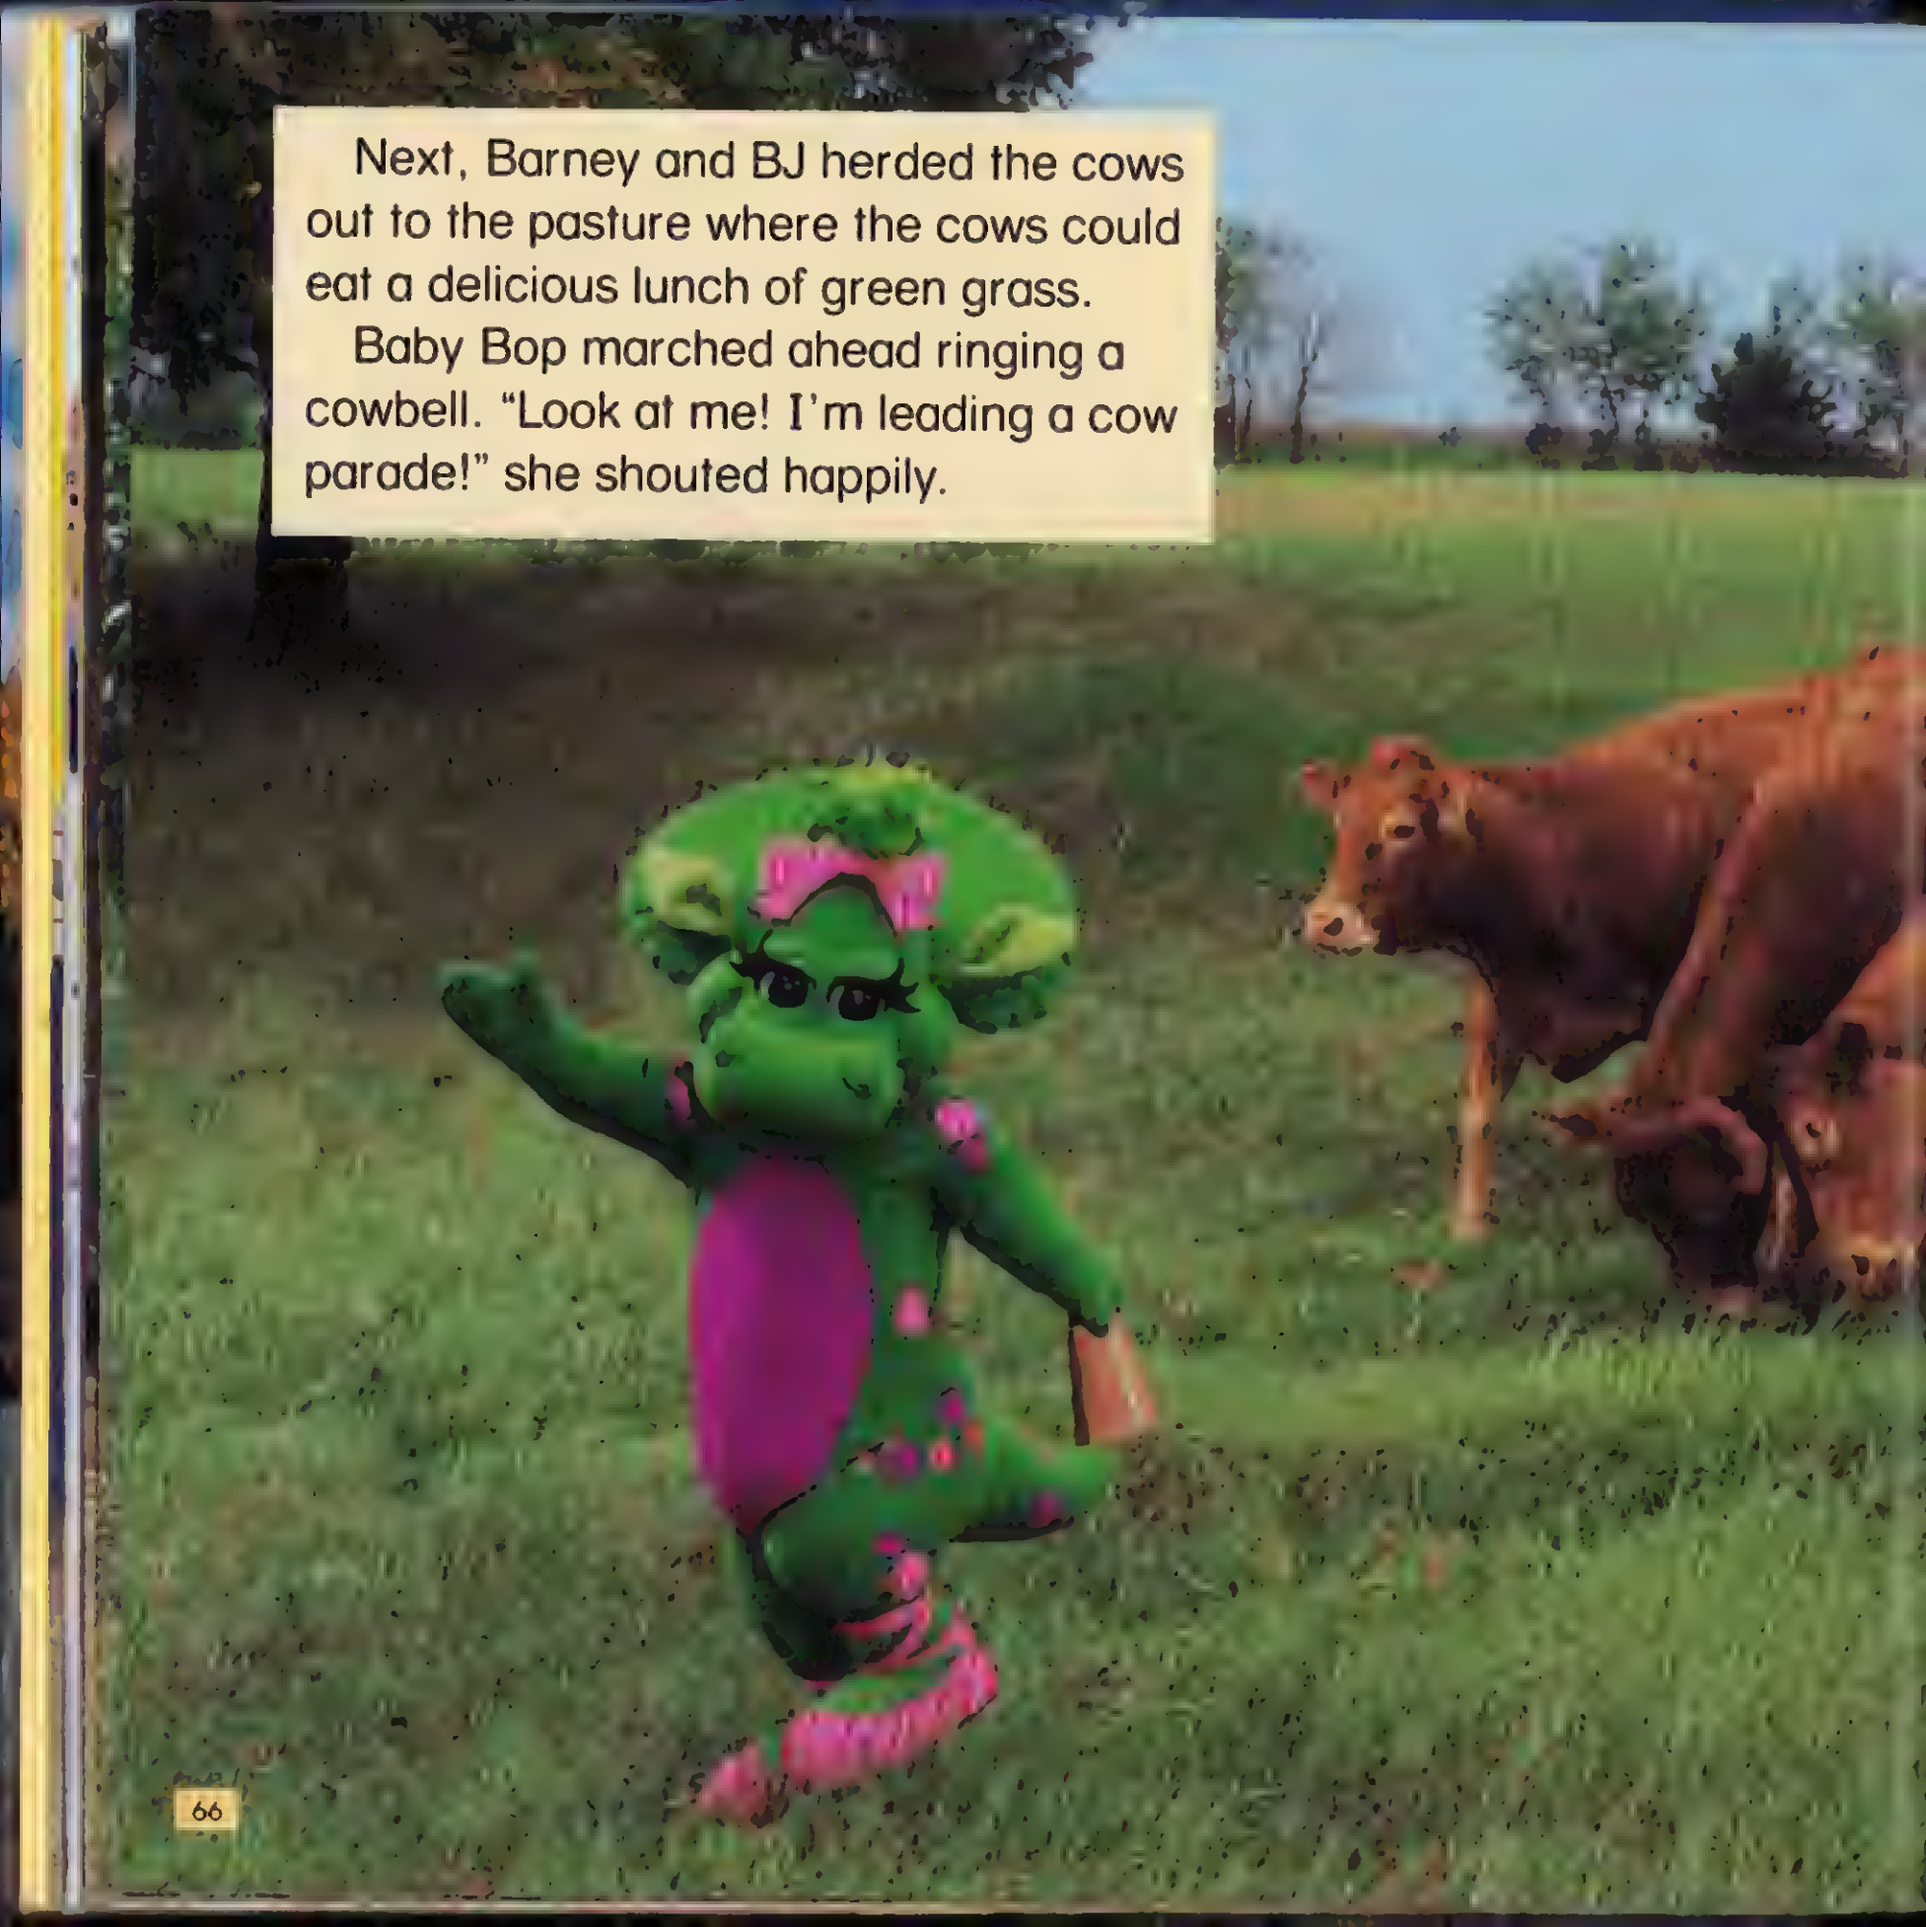
After feeding Agnes and Bernice, BJ gathered eggs which the chickens had laid. "Aye yie yie! Look at all these eggs!" said BJ.
Baby Bop strutted like a chicken and cackled, "Cluck, cluck, cluck, cluck!"

Barney got ready to drive the big tractor to the cornfield. "Vroooom vroooom," said Baby Bop.



Barney and BJ picked corn in the afternoon sun. "Whew! It's hot!" sighed BJ, wiping his brow.

Nearby, Baby Bop popped her head out of the tall rows of cornstalks and giggled, "Peek-a-boo, Mr. Scarecrow!"

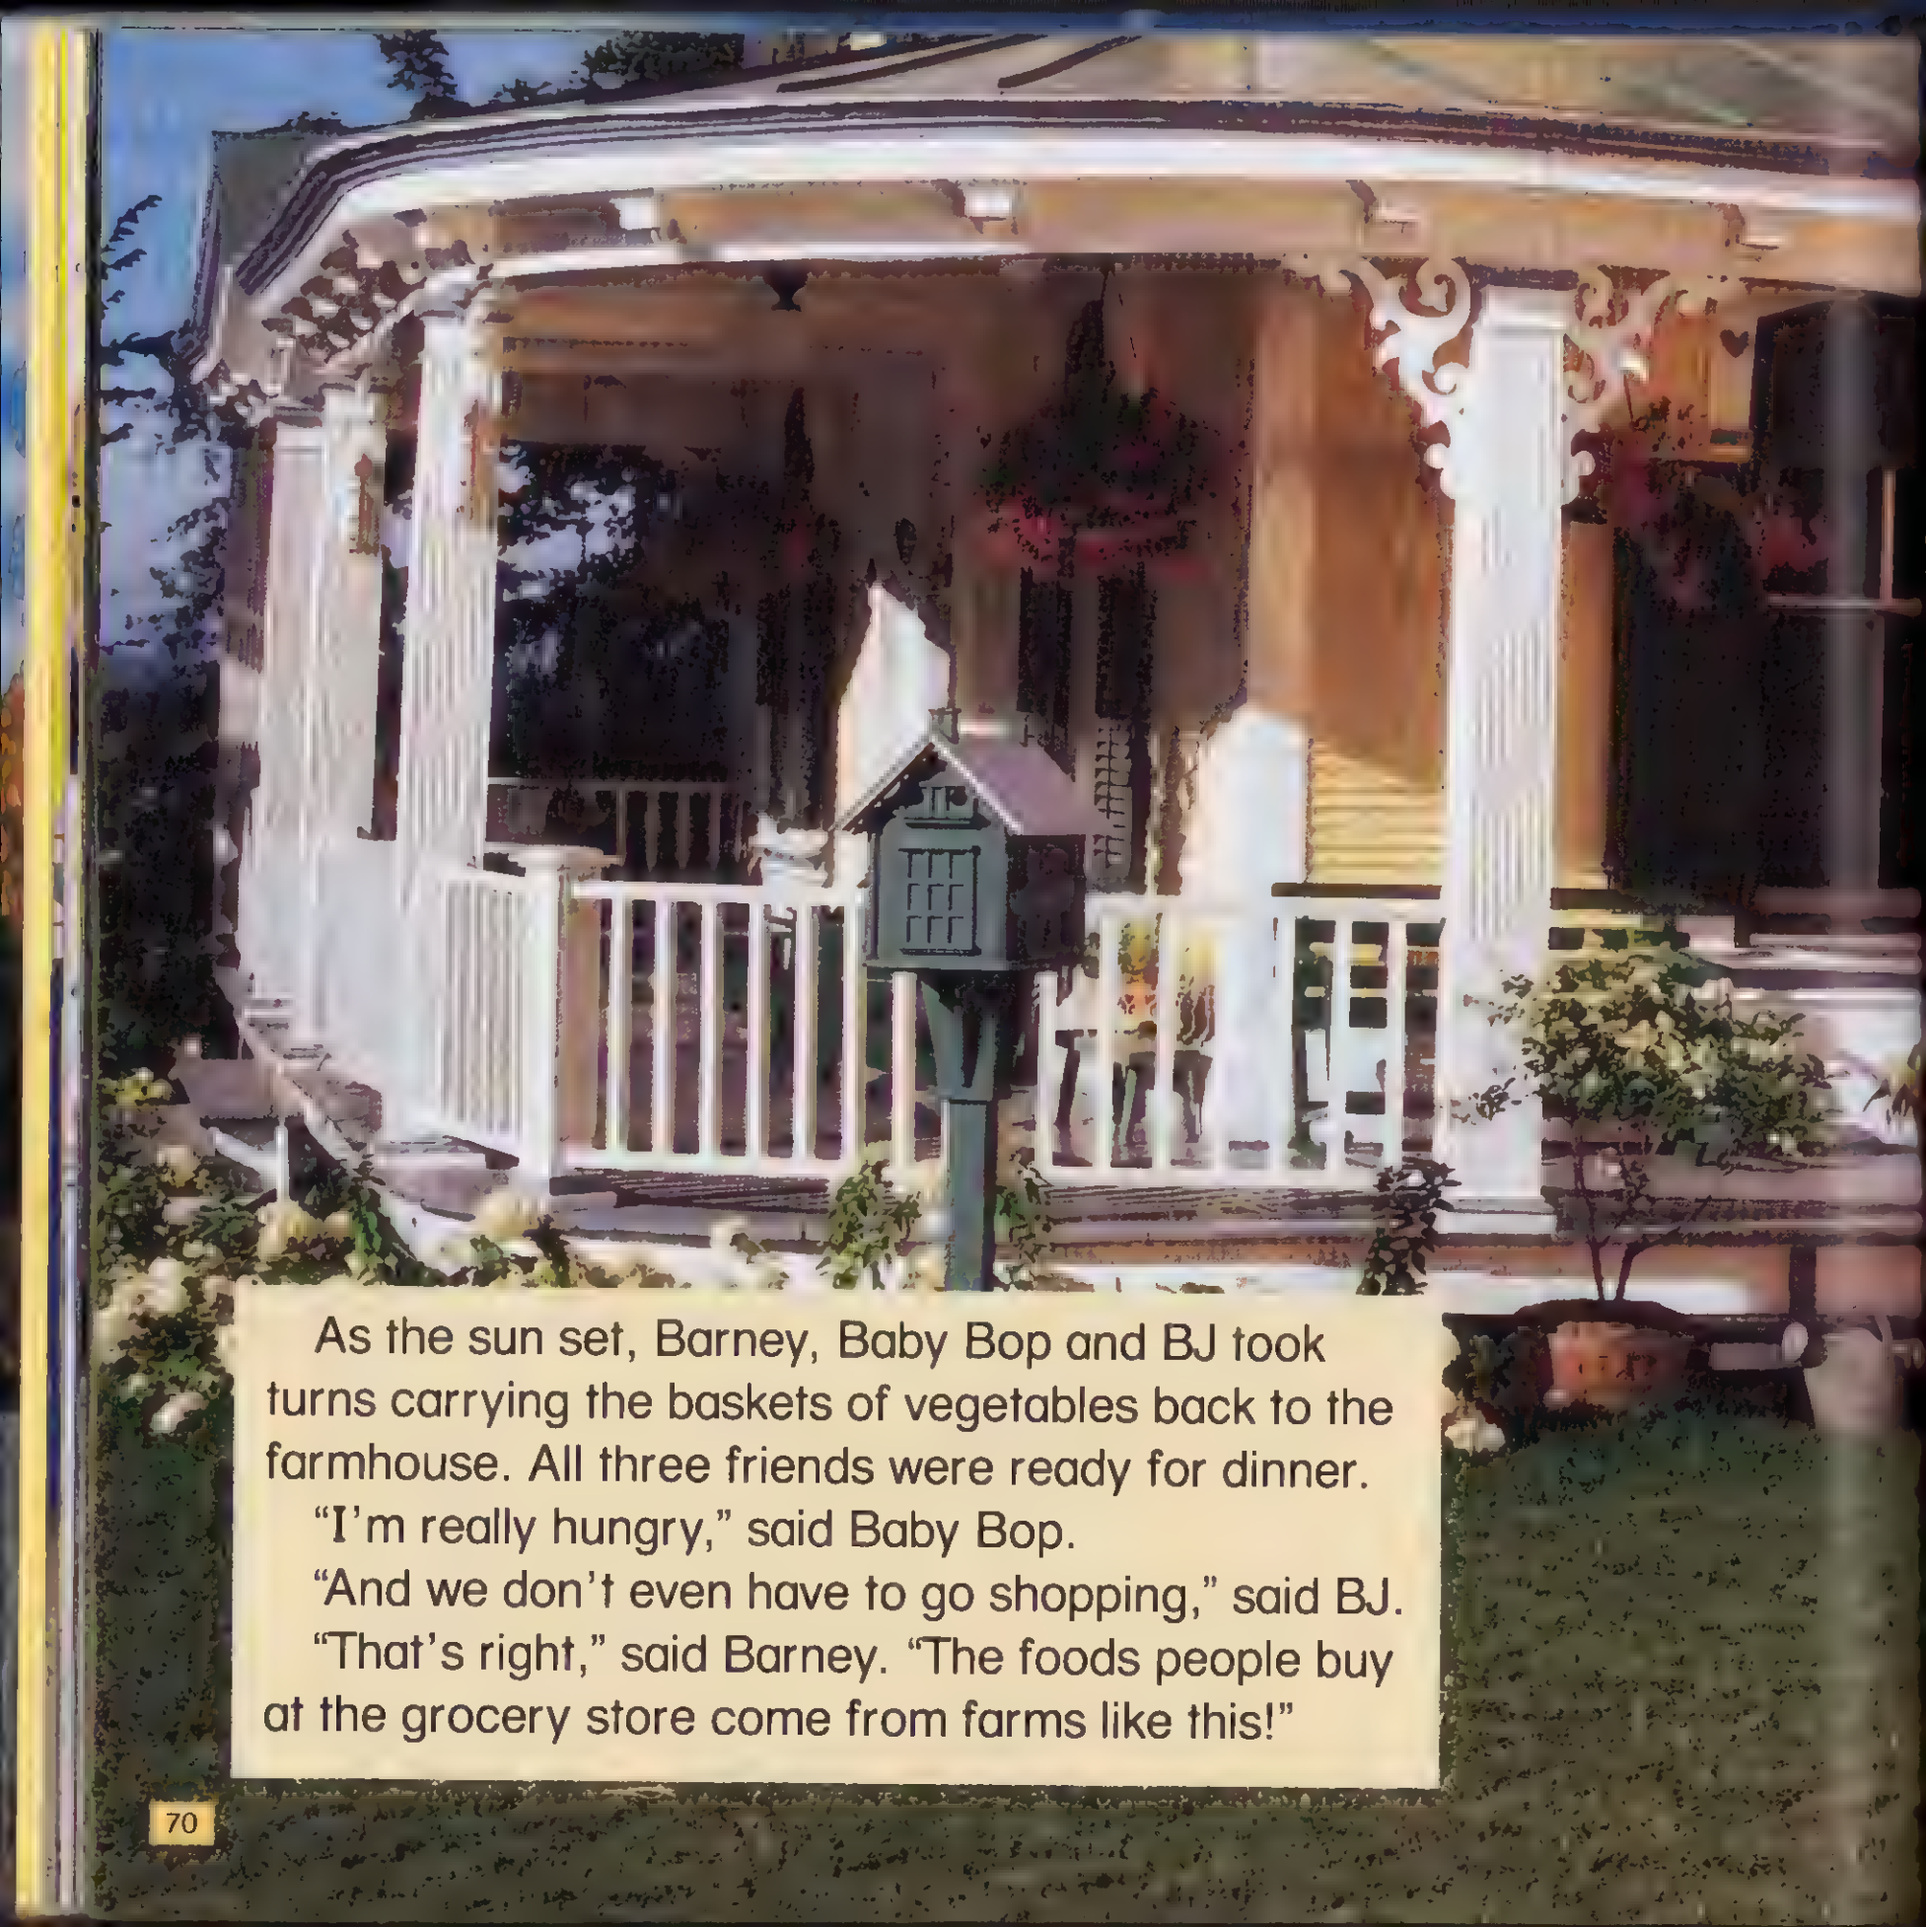


Next, Barney and BJ herded the cows out to the pasture where the cows could eat a delicious lunch of green grass.

Baby Bop marched ahead ringing a cowbell. "Look at me! I'm leading a cow parade!" she shouted happily.

But the chores still weren't finished! Barney and BJ picked lots of vegetables from the garden. They filled their baskets with red tomatoes, yellow squash, orange carrots, green beans, and one of Barney's favorite vegetables – purple eggplant!

Baby Bop watched from nearby. "This watermelon makes a good seat!" she giggled.



As the sun set, Barney, Baby Bop and BJ took turns carrying the baskets of vegetables back to the farmhouse. All three friends were ready for dinner.

"I'm really hungry," said Baby Bop.

"And we don't even have to go shopping," said BJ.

"That's right," said Barney. "The foods people buy at the grocery store come from farms like this!"

After dinner, Baby Bop fell fast asleep. "Aye yie yie, Barney! How can Sissy be so tired?" wondered BJ.

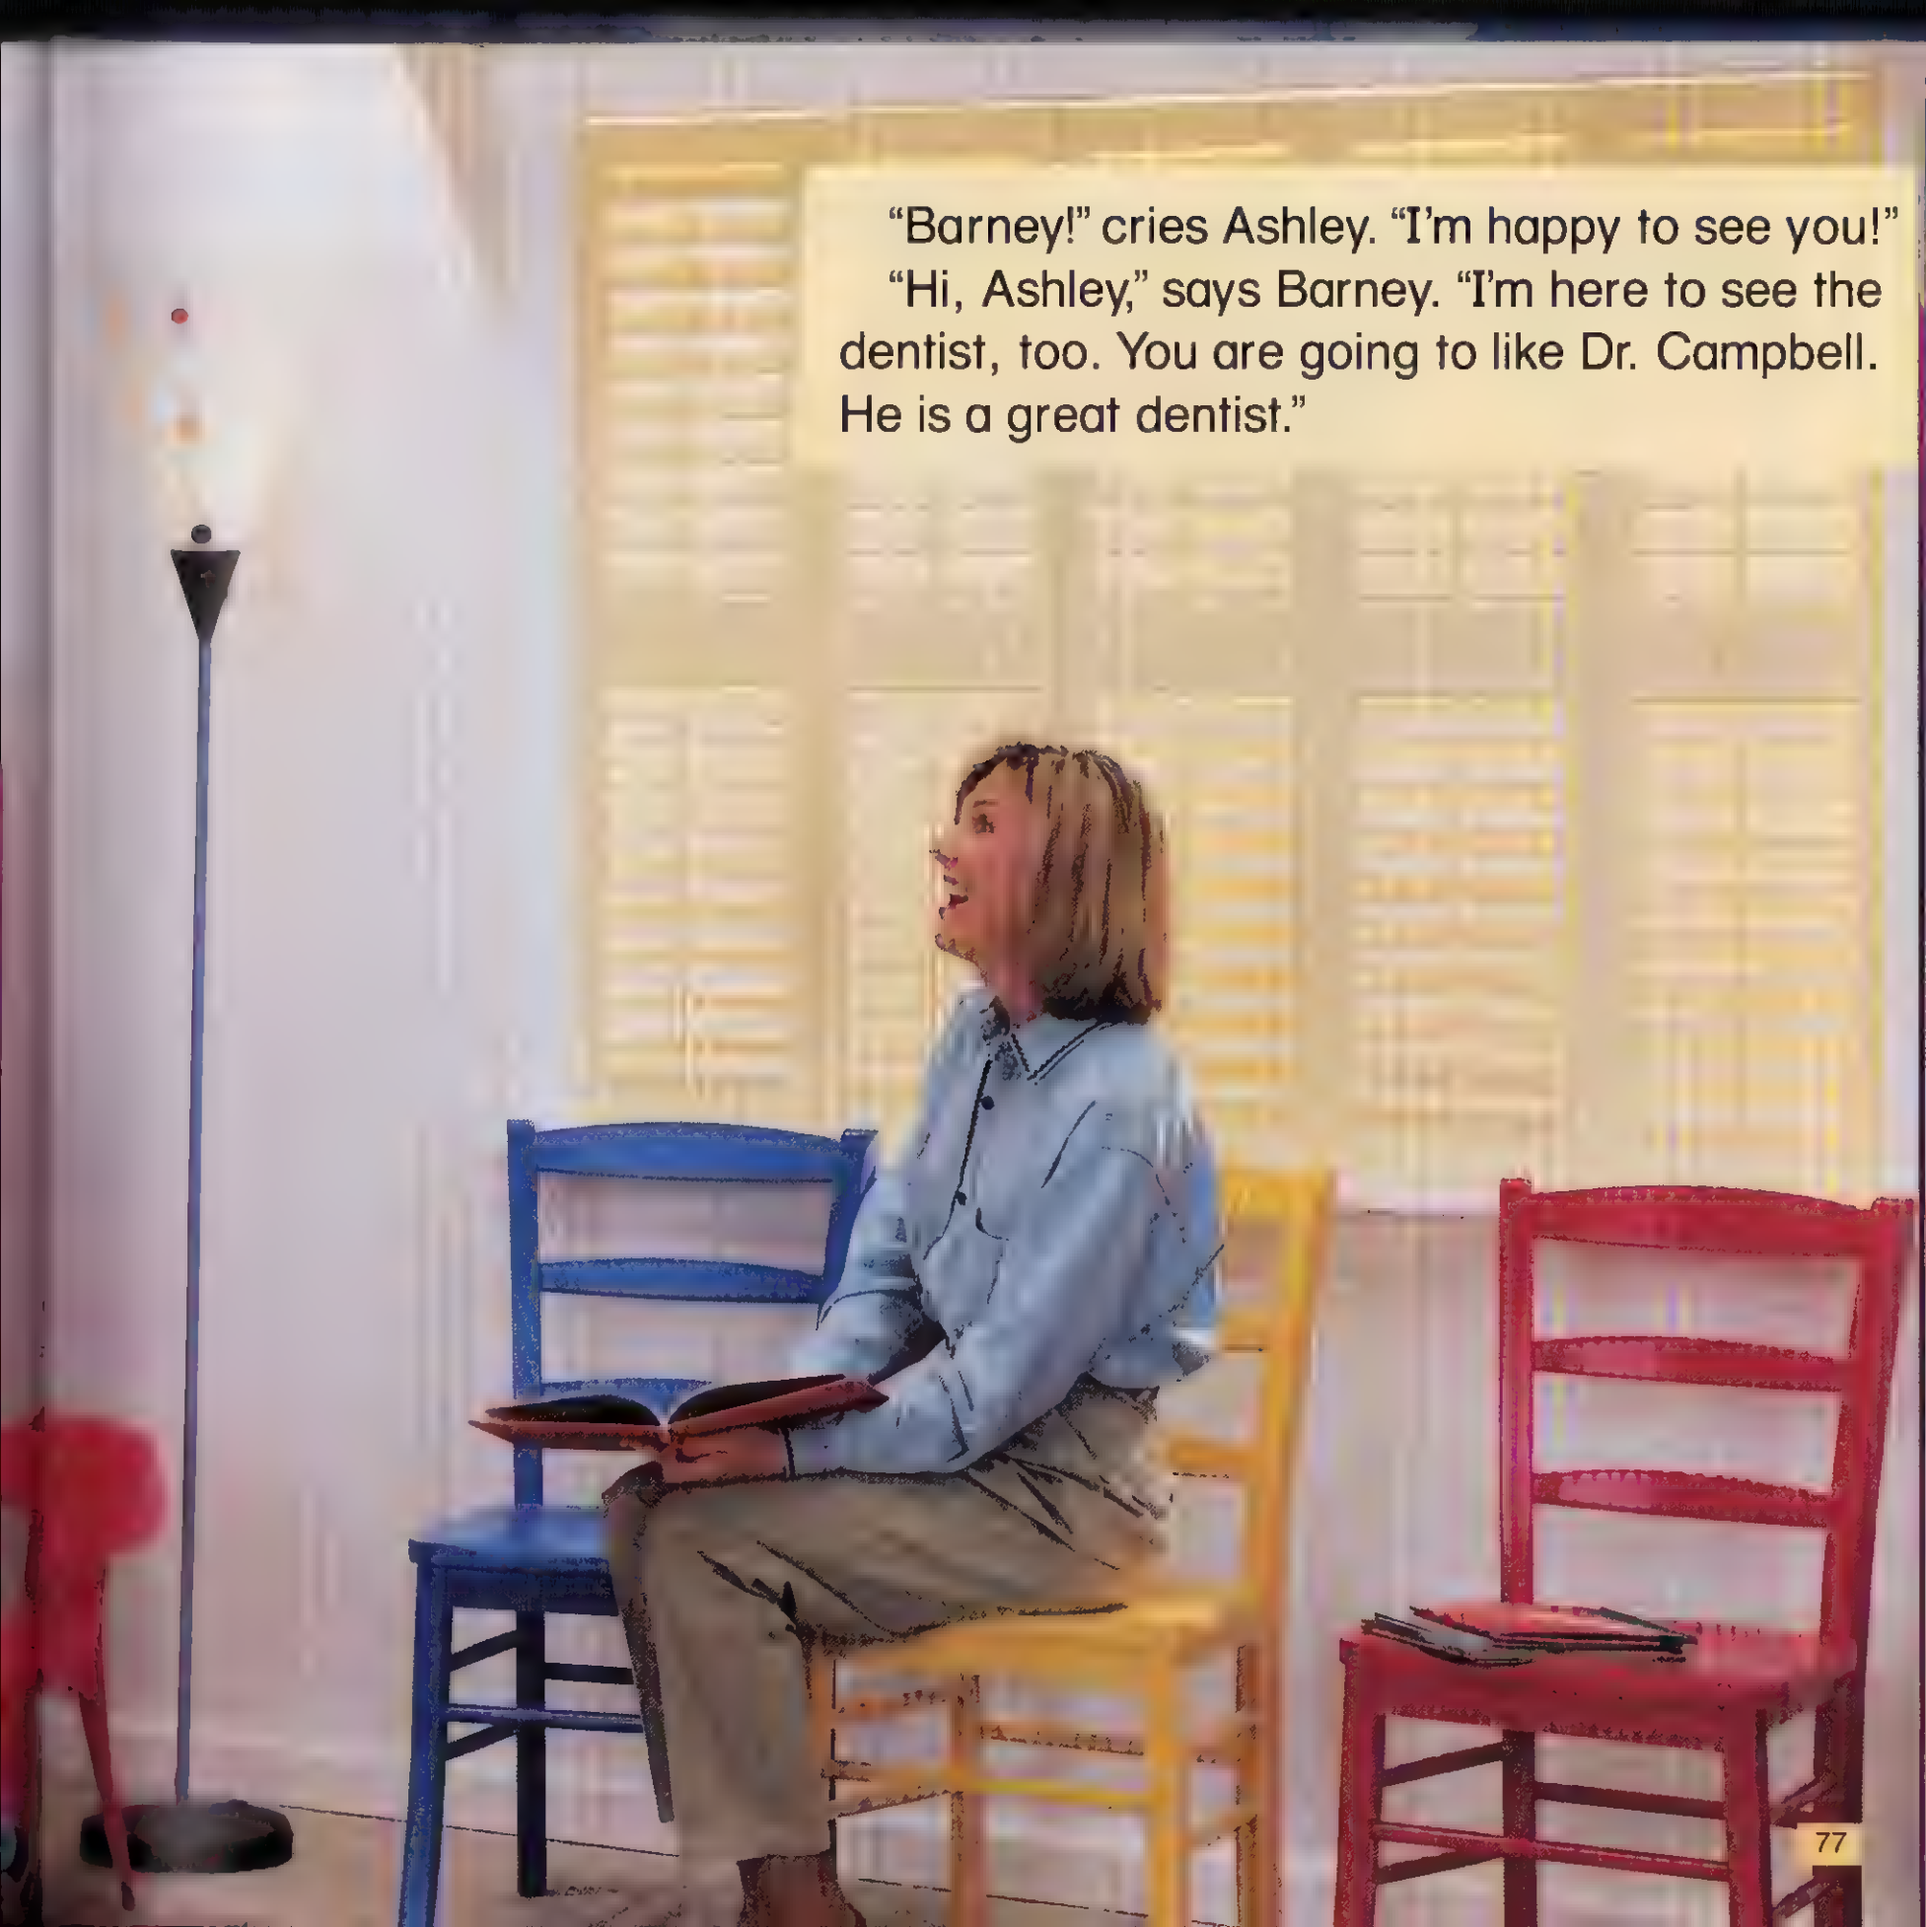
"She played as hard as we worked," said Barney with a chuckle.

Barney Goes To The Dentist

Written by Linda Cress Dowdy • Photography by Dennis Full

"Today we're going to visit the dentist," says Ashley's mother.
"What is a dentist?" asks Ashley.

"A dentist is a doctor who helps you take care of your teeth," says Ashley's mother. "The dentist knows all about keeping teeth clean and healthy."



"Barney!" cries Ashley. "I'm happy to see you!"

"Hi, Ashley," says Barney. "I'm here to see the dentist, too. You are going to like Dr. Campbell. He is a great dentist."

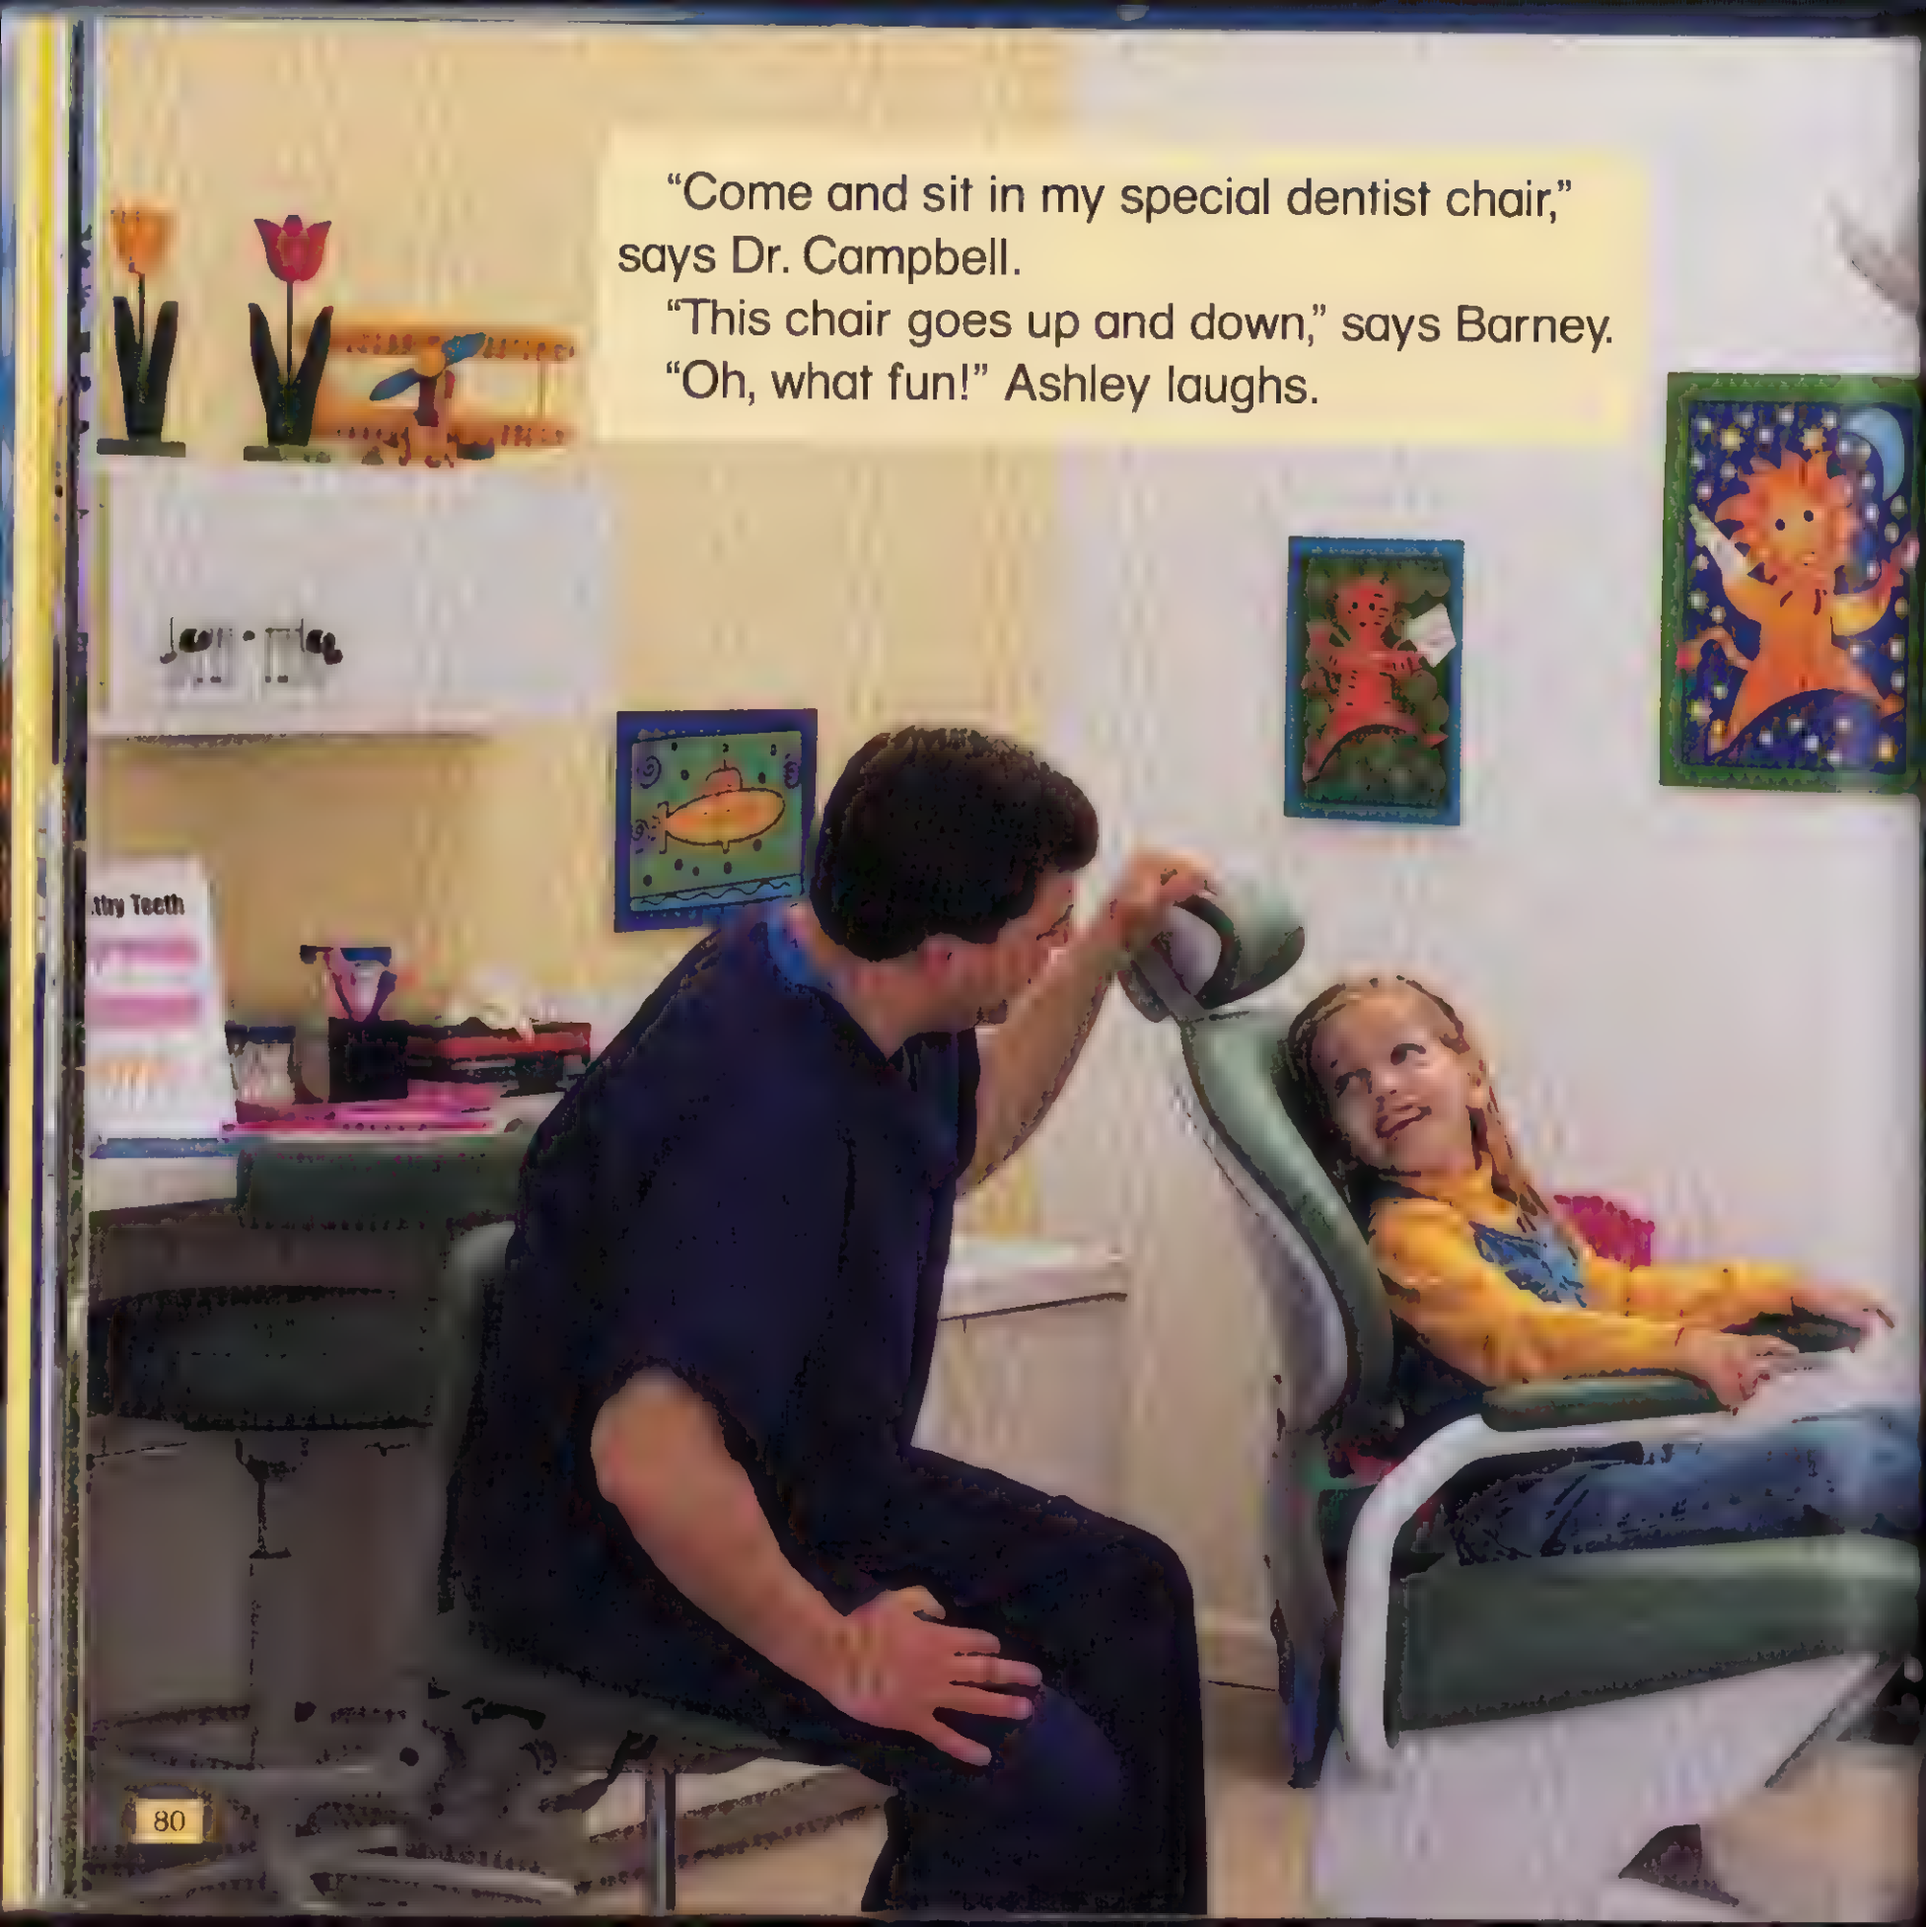
"First, the dentist will check your teeth," says Barney. "He'll make sure they're healthy. Then he will clean and shine them."

"Barney, will you stay with me?" asks Ashley.

"Yes, I will," says Barney.

"Ashley, this is my friend, Dr. Campbell," says Barney.

"Hello, Ashley. I'm glad you came to see me today," says Dr. Campbell.



"Come and sit in my special dentist chair," says Dr. Campbell.
"This chair goes up and down," says Barney.
"Oh, what fun!" Ashley laughs.
thy Teeth

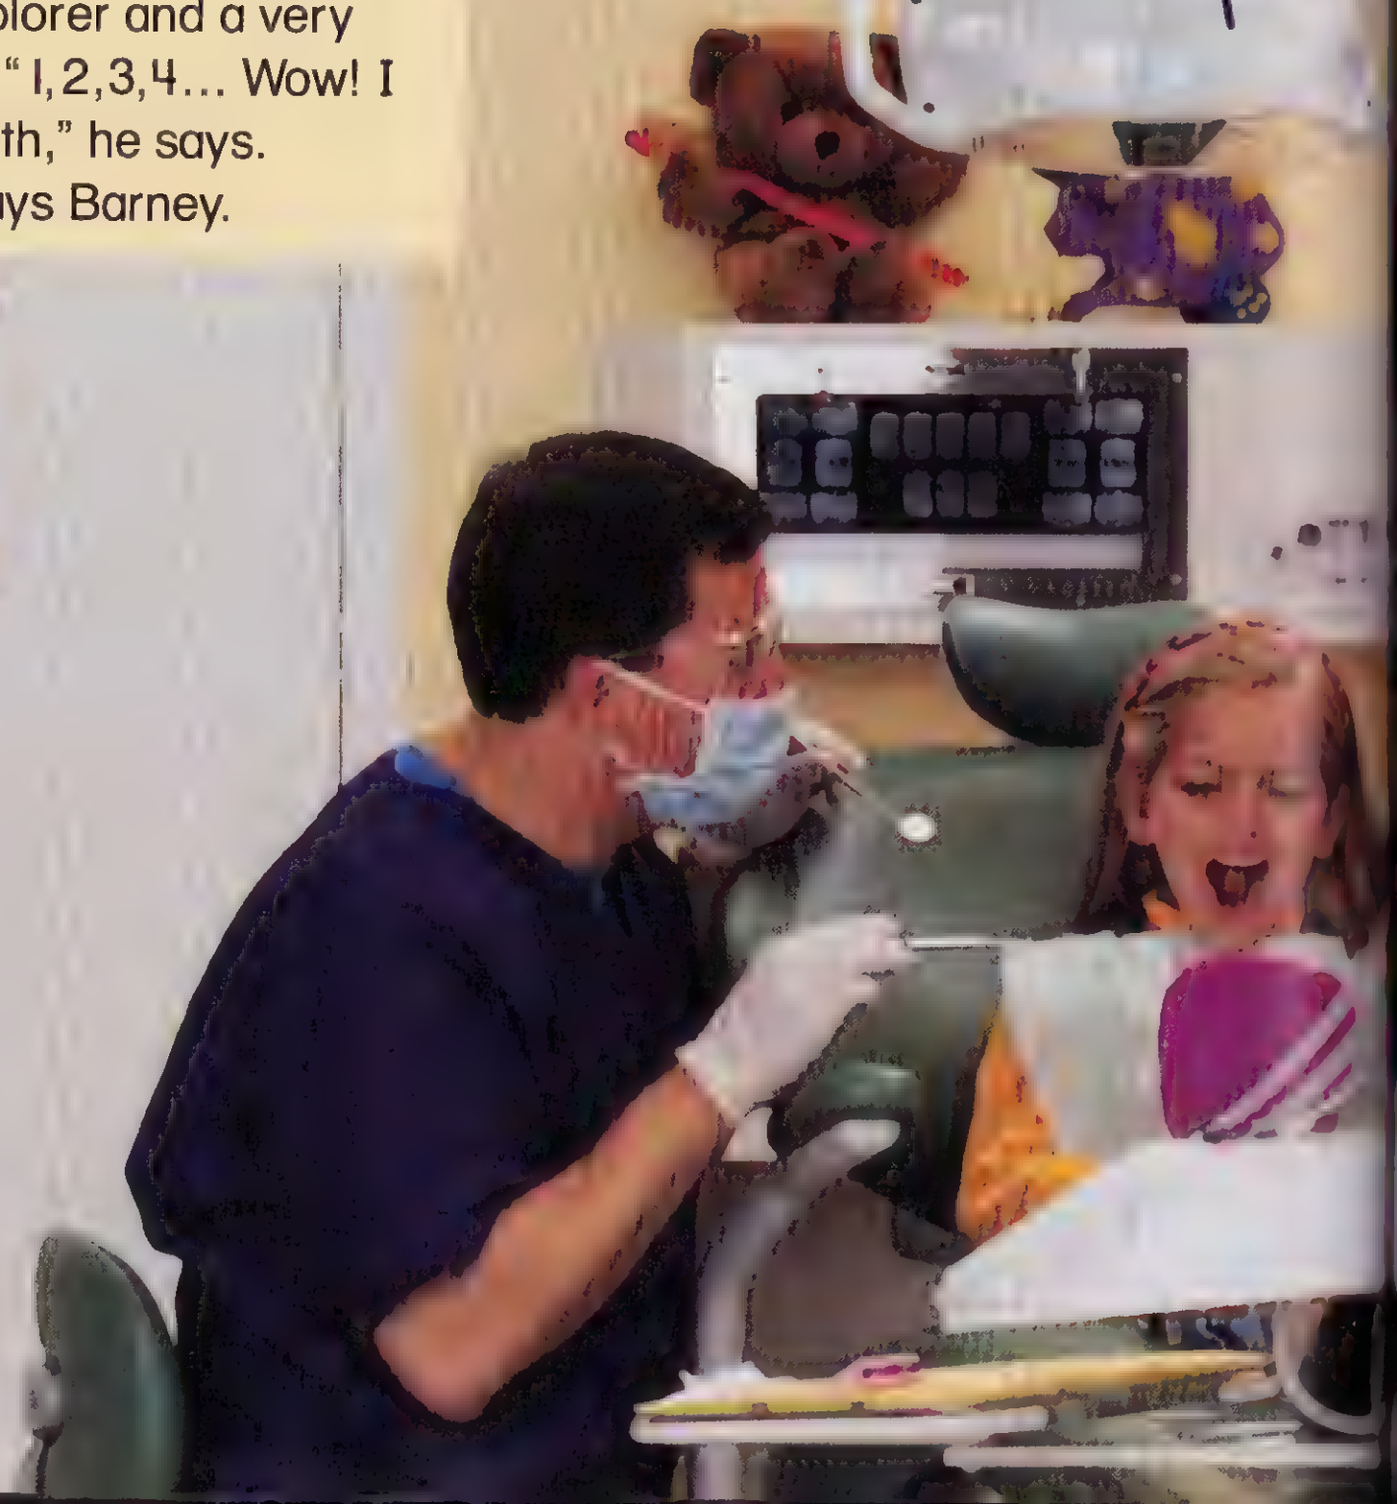
Dr. Campbell puts on gloves and puts a napkin around Ashley's neck. Then he moves a big light to shine on Ashley's mouth.

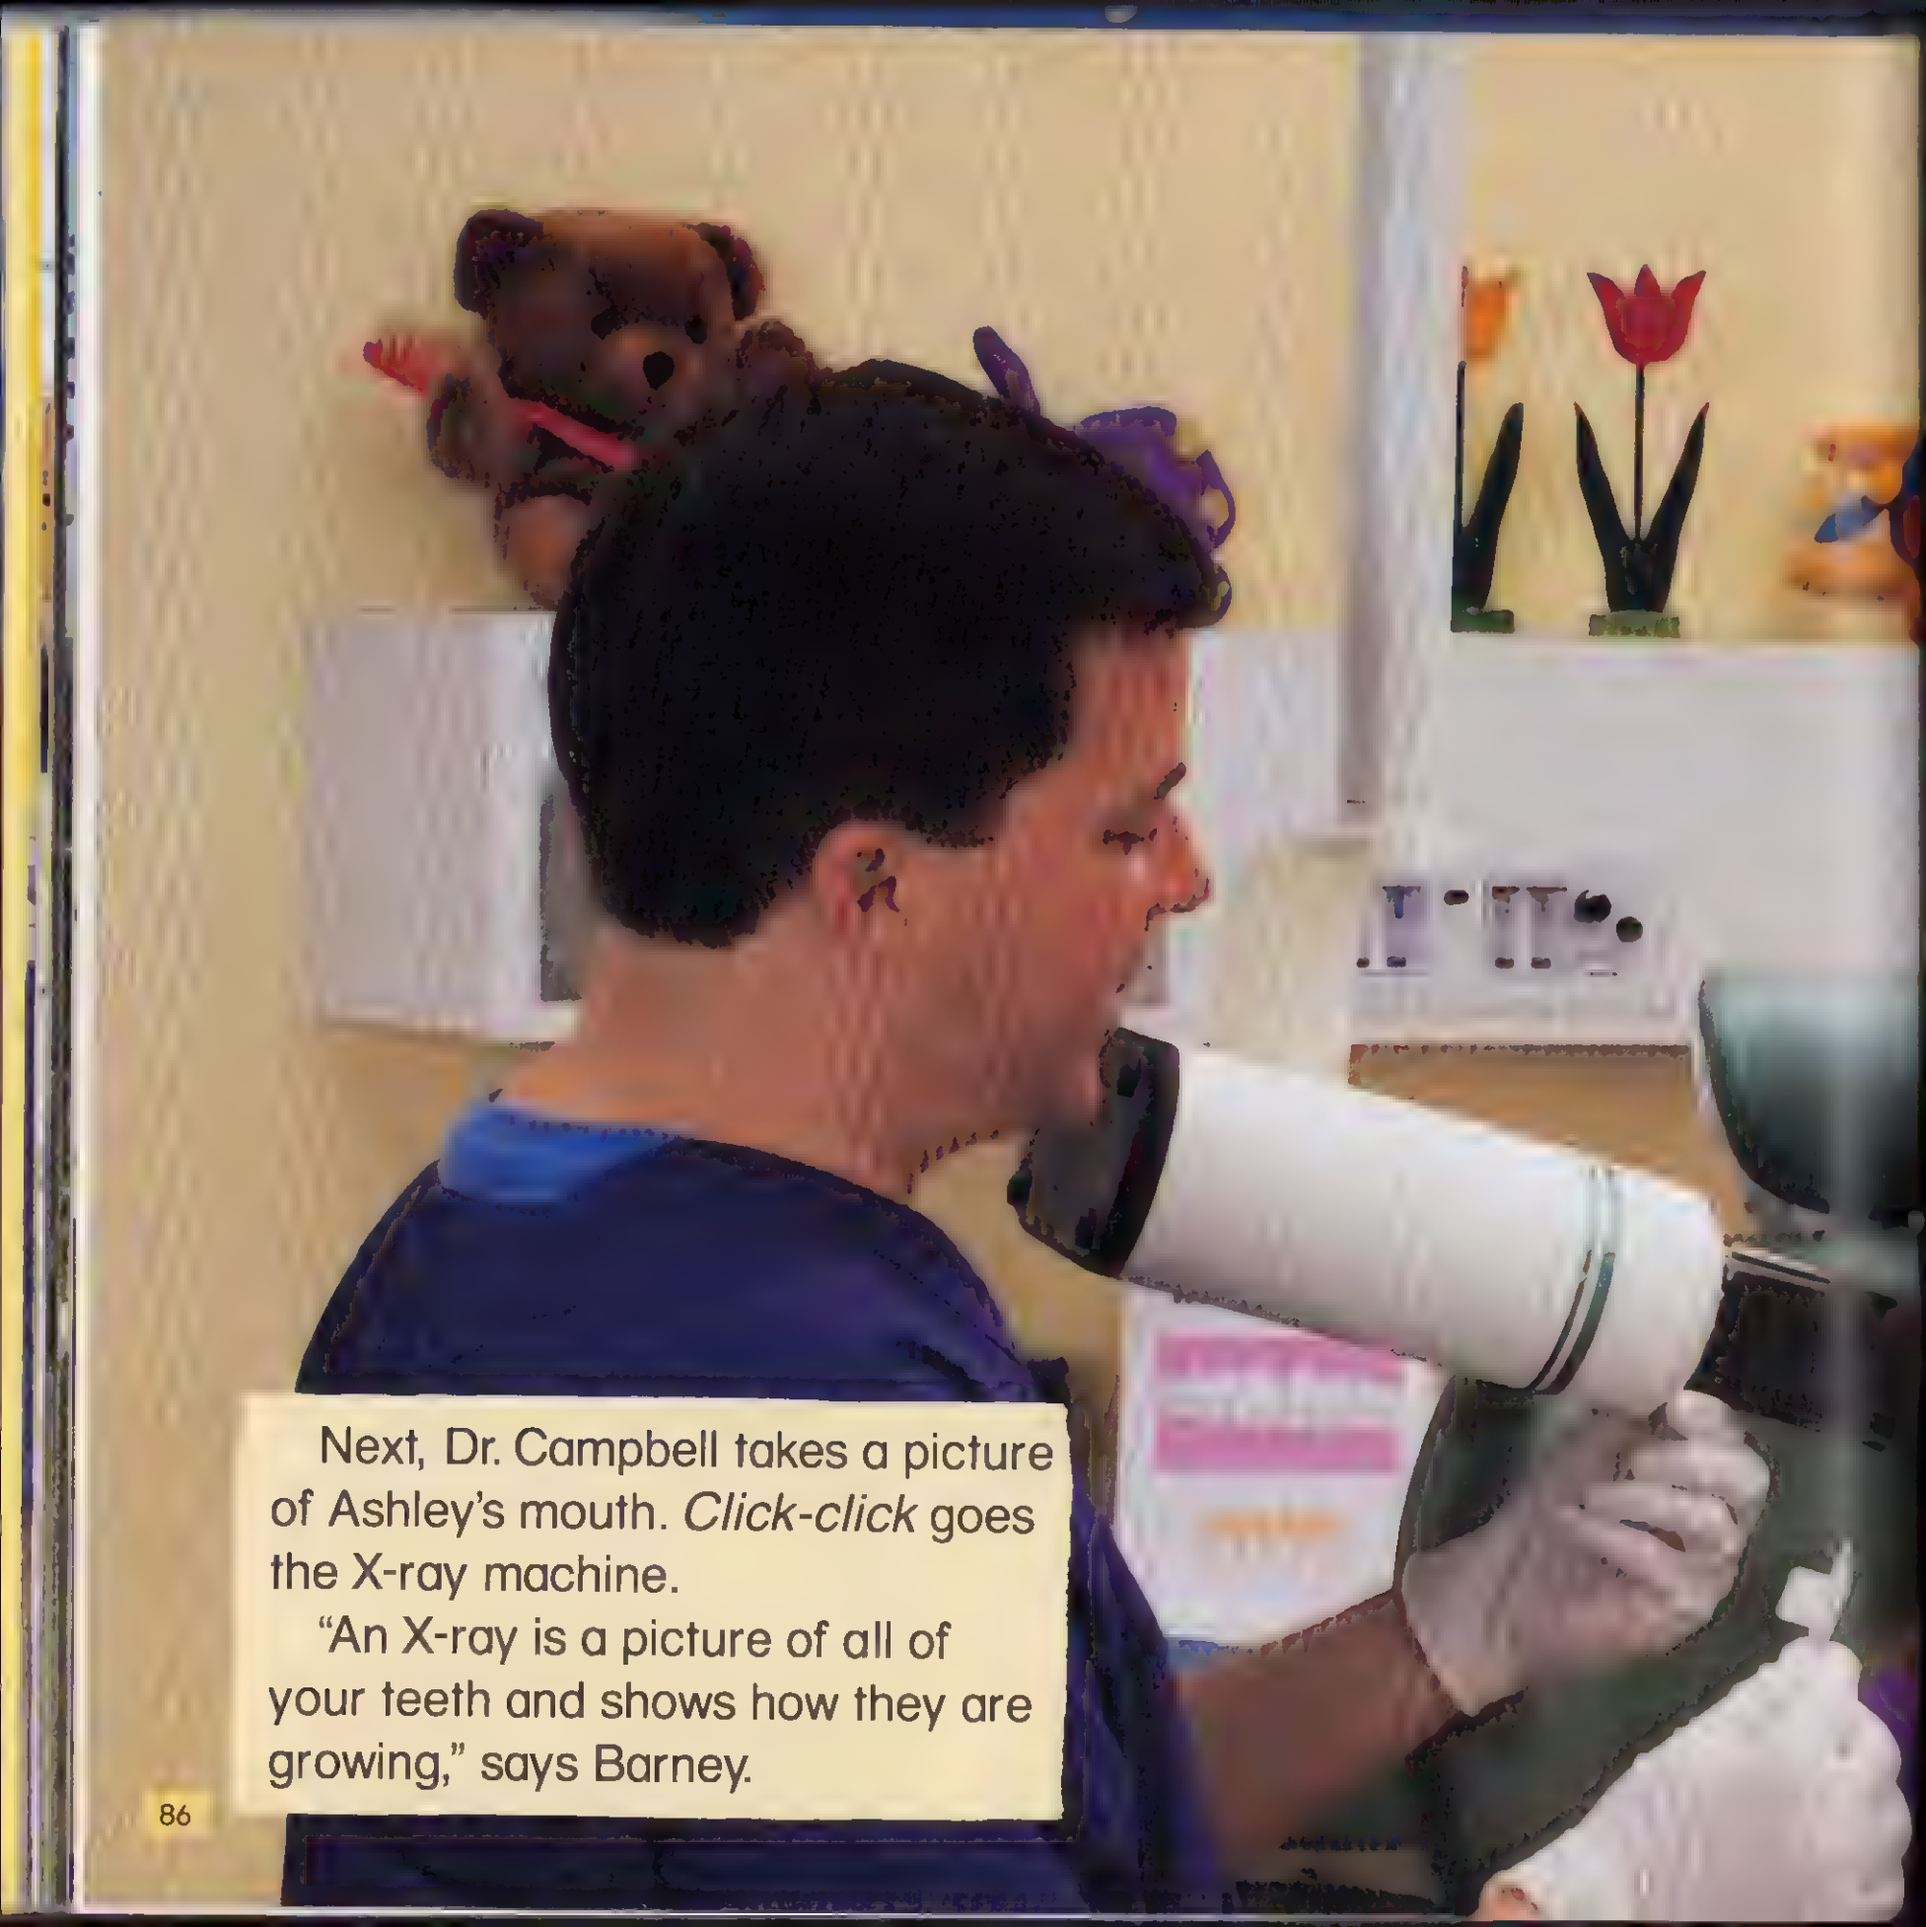
"If you open your mouth really wide, this bright light will help me see all of your teeth," says the dentist.

"Will you help me count your teeth?" asks the dentist. "You can hold this mirror."

Dr. Campbell uses a shiny tool called an explorer and a very small mirror. "1, 2, 3, 4... Wow! I count 20 teeth," he says.

"Great!" says Barney.





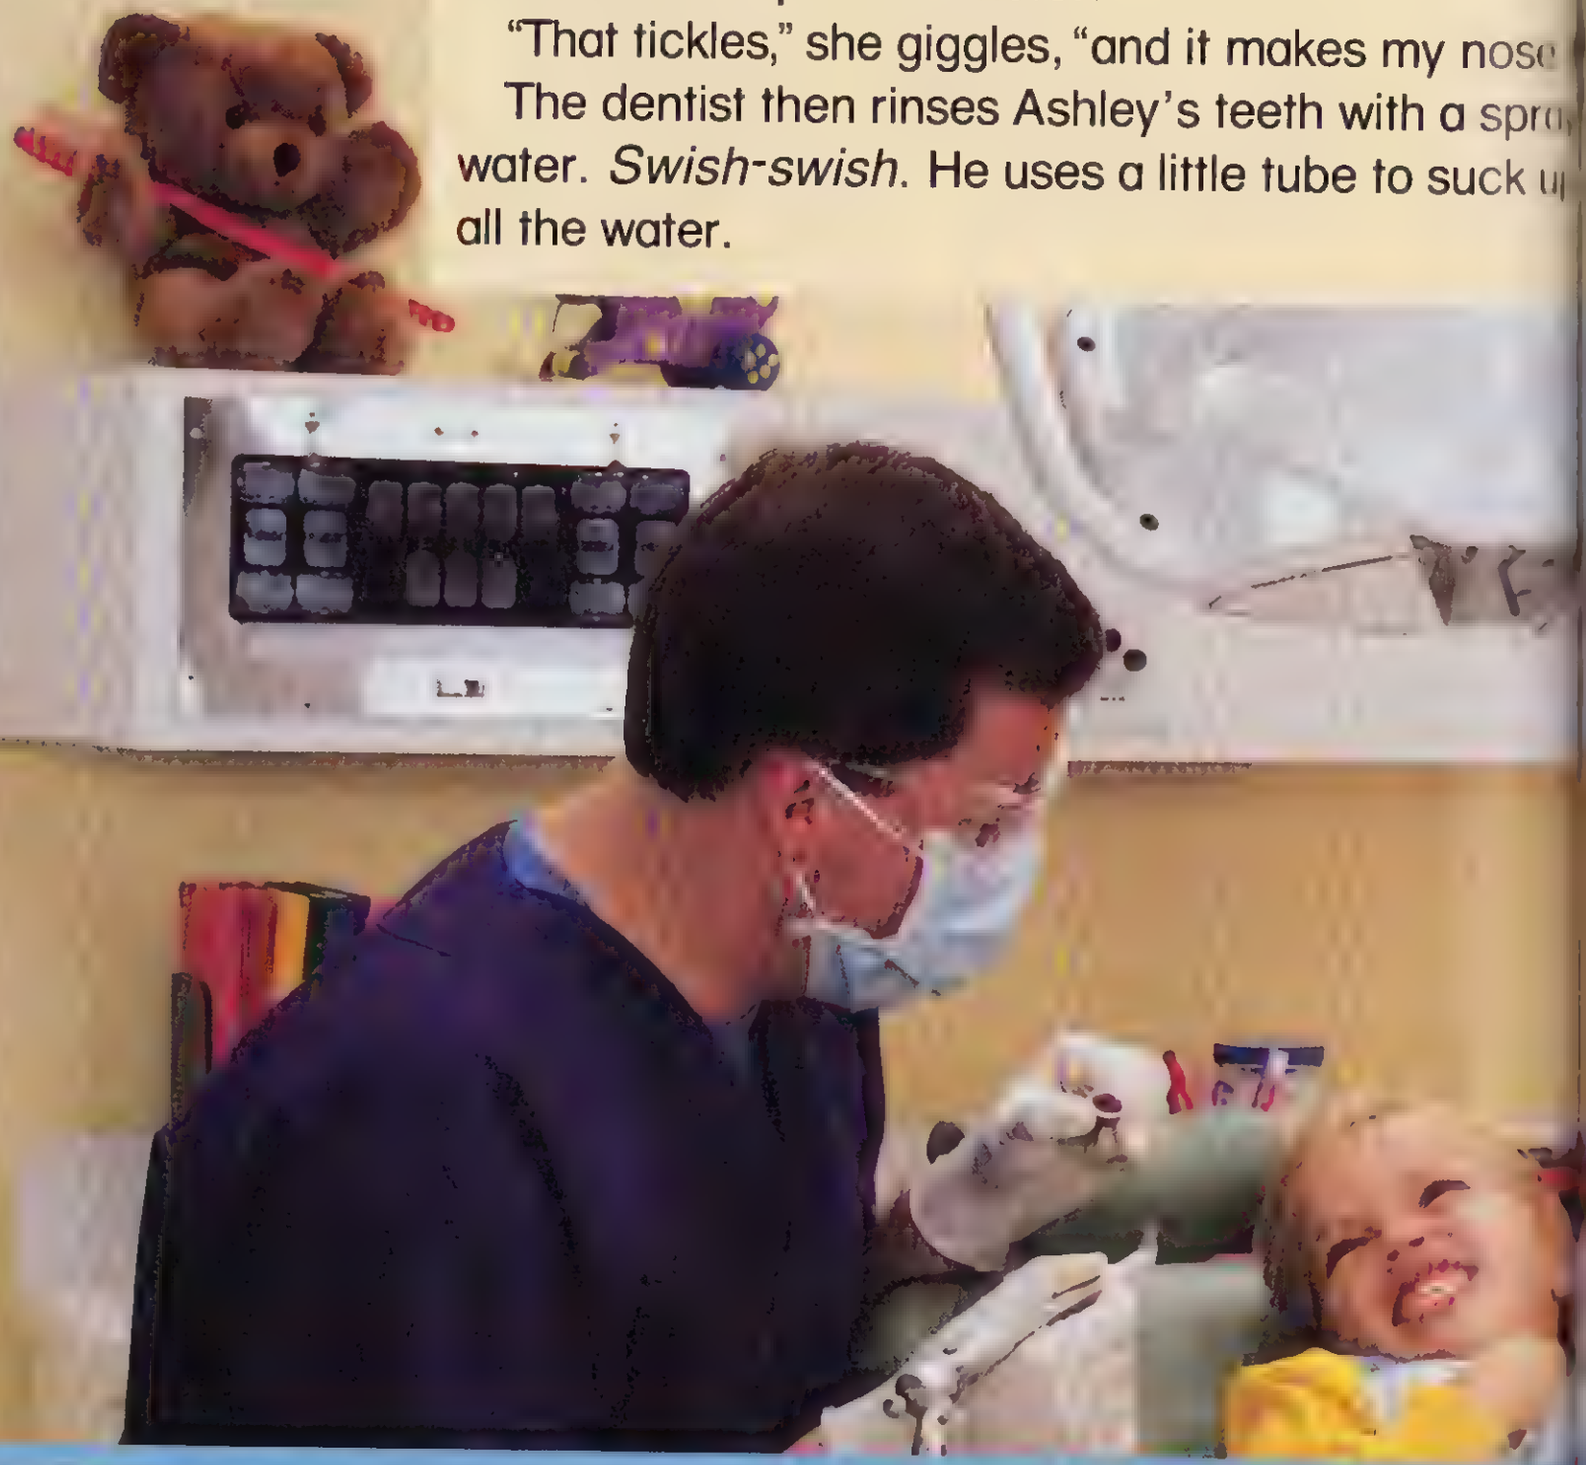
Next, Dr. Campbell takes a picture of Ashley's mouth. Click-click goes the X-ray machine.

"An X-ray is a picture of all of your teeth and shows how they are growing," says Barney.

Dr. Campbell then cleans Ashley's teeth. He show her his special machine and toothpaste for cleanin teeth. Zzzzz spins the motor.

"That tickles," she giggles, "and it makes my nose

The dentist then rinses Ashley's teeth with a spra water. Swish-swish. He uses a little tube to suck u all the water.



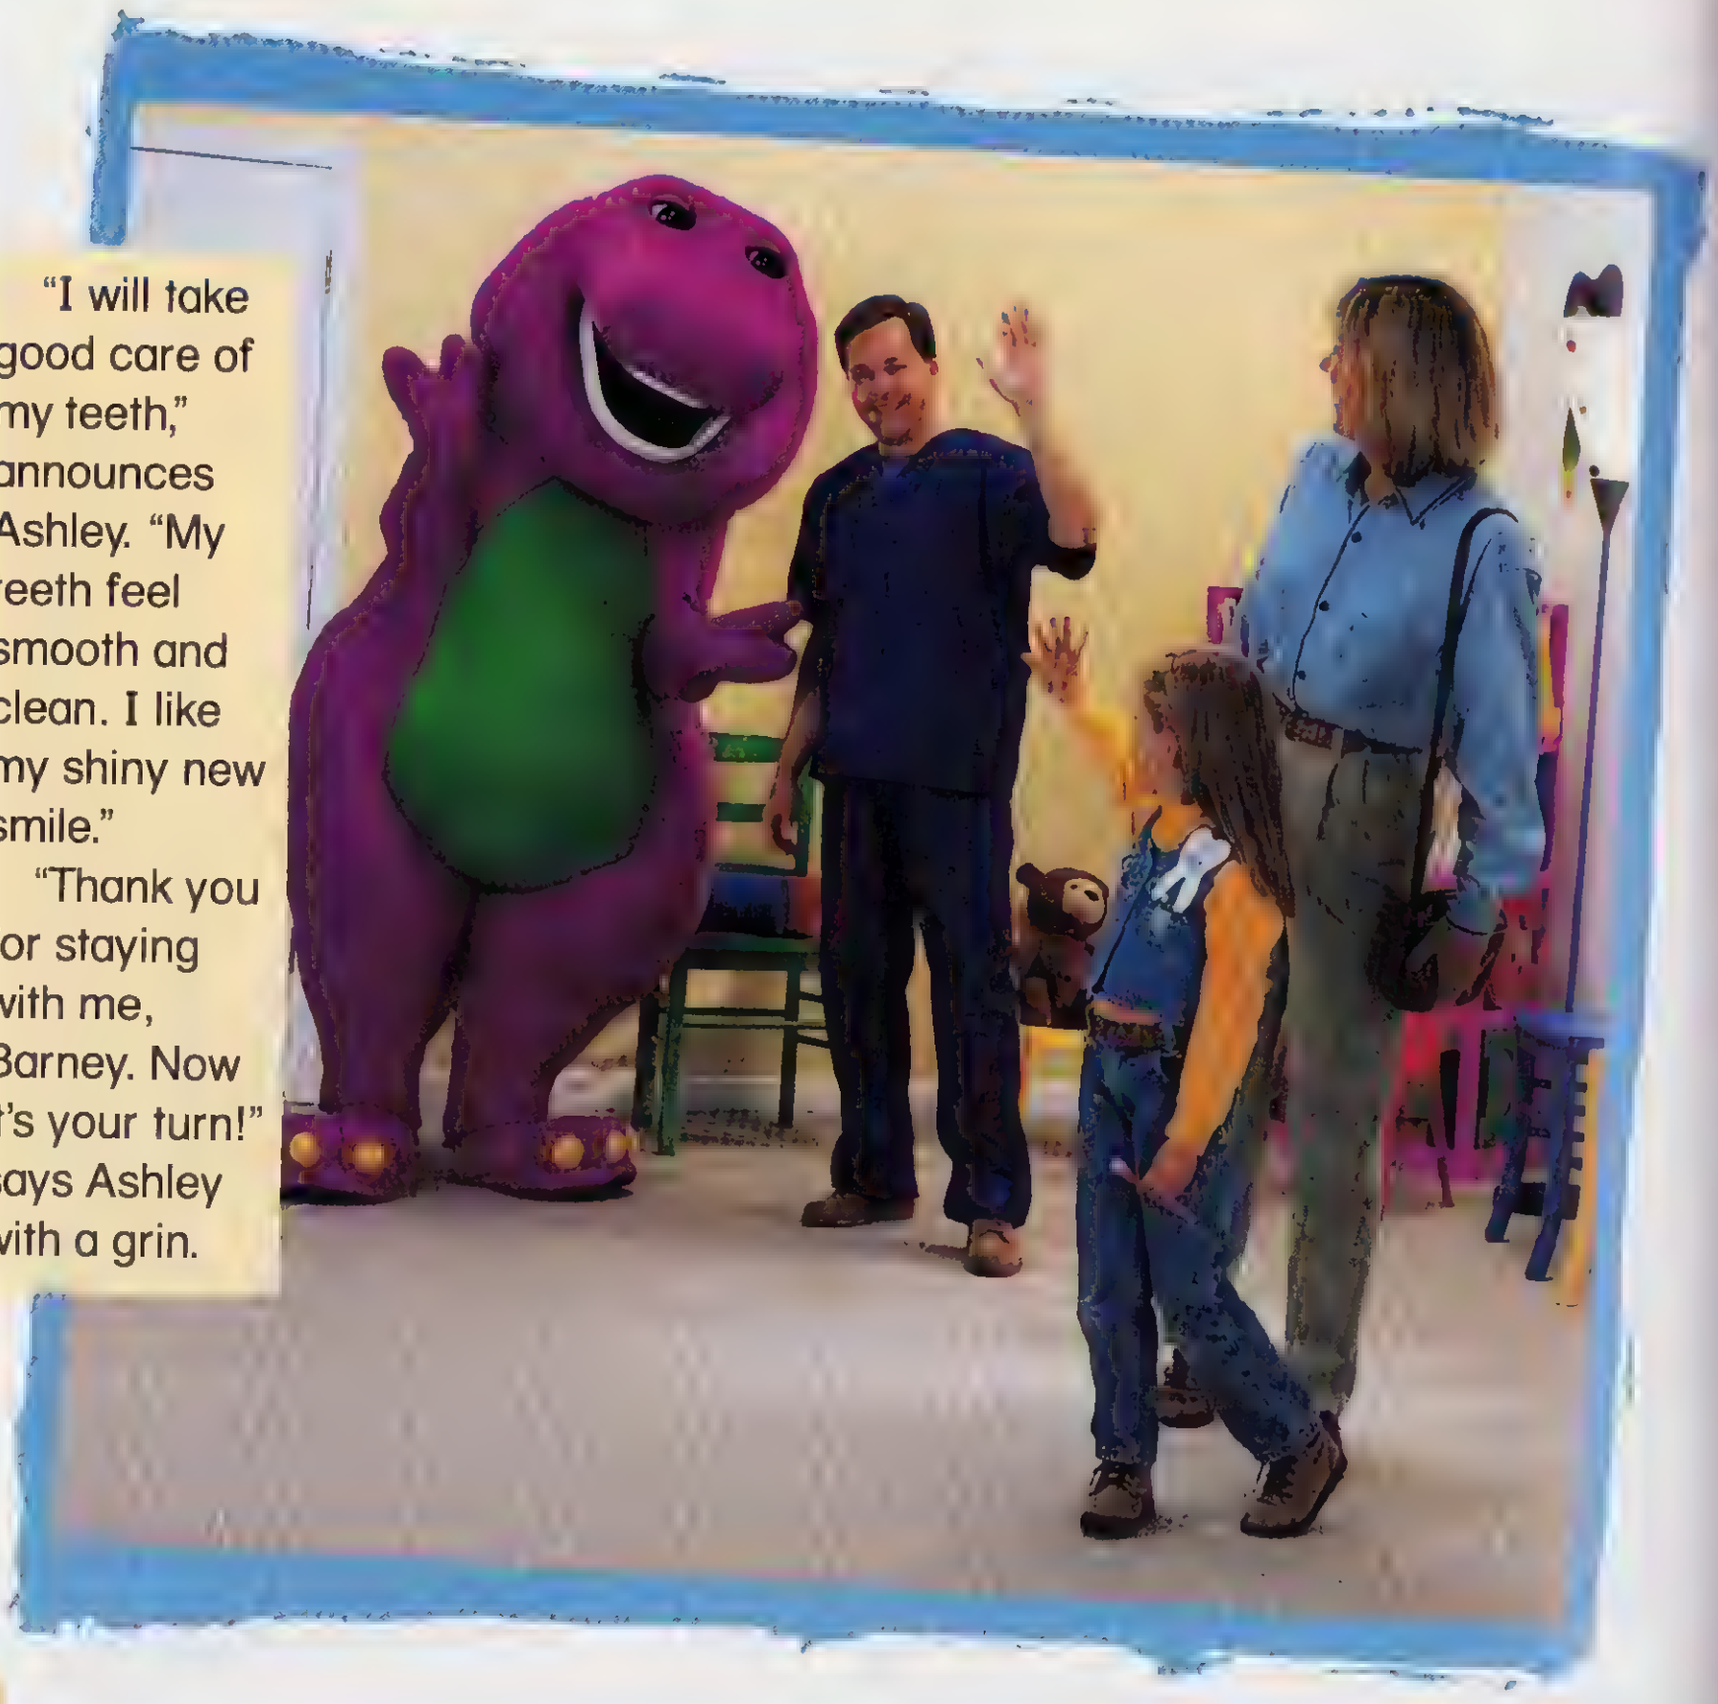
"We all want to have strong teeth, so brush two times every day," says Dr. Campbell. "Brush when you wake up in the morning and before you go to bed at night."

"Brush back and forth and up and down," says Barney. "Eating healthy foods will help keep your teeth strong, too."

"You were a super patient today. Take good care of your teeth until I see you again," says Dr. Campbell.

Ashley smiles her biggest, brightest, shiniest smile!

"The dentist is very nice," Ashley tells Barney.



"I will take good care of my teeth," announces Ashley. "My teeth feel smooth and clean. I like my shiny new smile."

"Thank you for staying with me, Barney. Now it's your turn!" says Ashley with a grin.

"Come on, Firefighter BJ! I'll take you to visit a real fire station," says Barney. "Oh, boy!" says BJ happily.

BJ is excited as they arrive at the fire station. "Wow! Look at the shiny red fire trucks, Barney!"

Barney introduces BJ to his good friend Firefighter Bill. "It would be fun to drive a real fire engine," says BJ.

"This engine pumps water to put out the fire," says Firefighter Bill. "And these gauges show the firefighters how much water is flowing."

The ladder truck helps firefighters rescue people. "That's the longest ladder I've ever seen!" says Barney.

"At the station, firefighters usually wear a uniform like mine. When we're fighting a fire, we wear special clothes to protect us," explains Firefighter Bill.

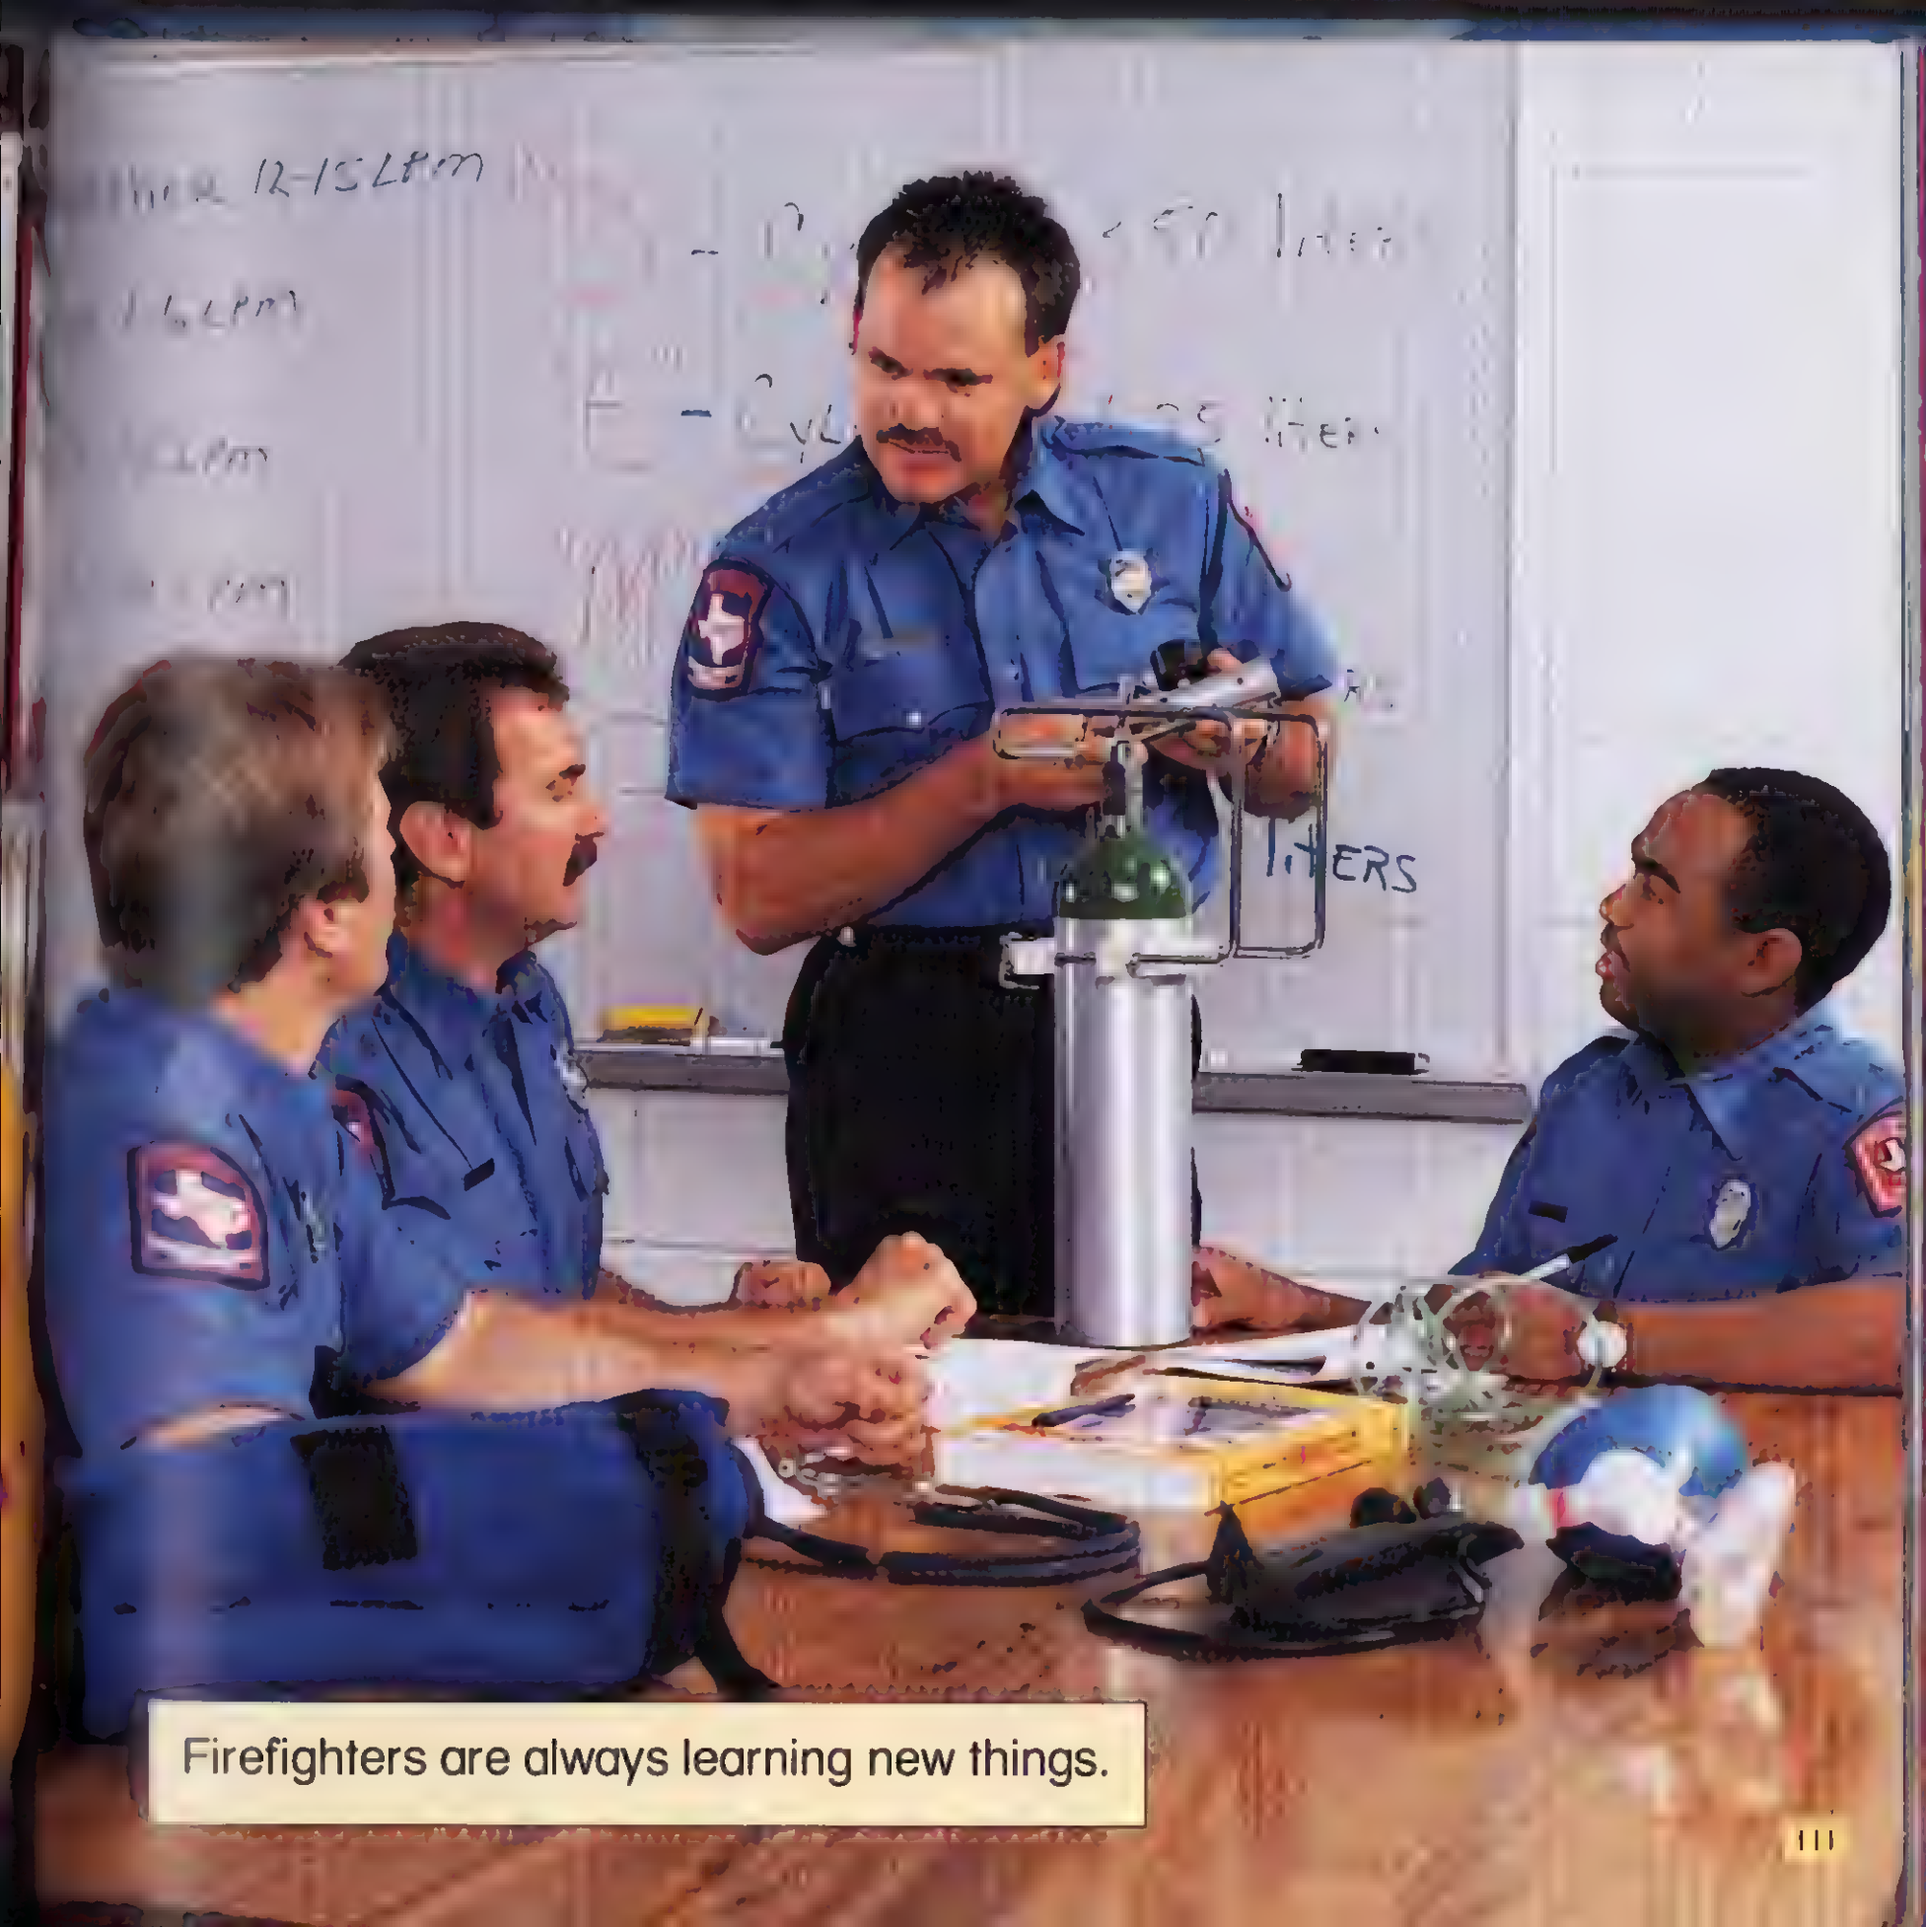
"BJ, this is a smoke detector," says Firefighter Bill. "It makes a noise when there's smoke from a fire. If you ever smell smoke, tell a grownup and get out fast."



Firefighters are always learning new things.

There is always a lot of work to be done. Equipment is cleaned so it will be ready when it's needed again.

Firefighters take turns living at the fire station.
They have to be ready to go to a fire, day or night.

Suddenly, the alarm rings, and all the firefighters rush to their trucks. "They're fast!" says BJ.

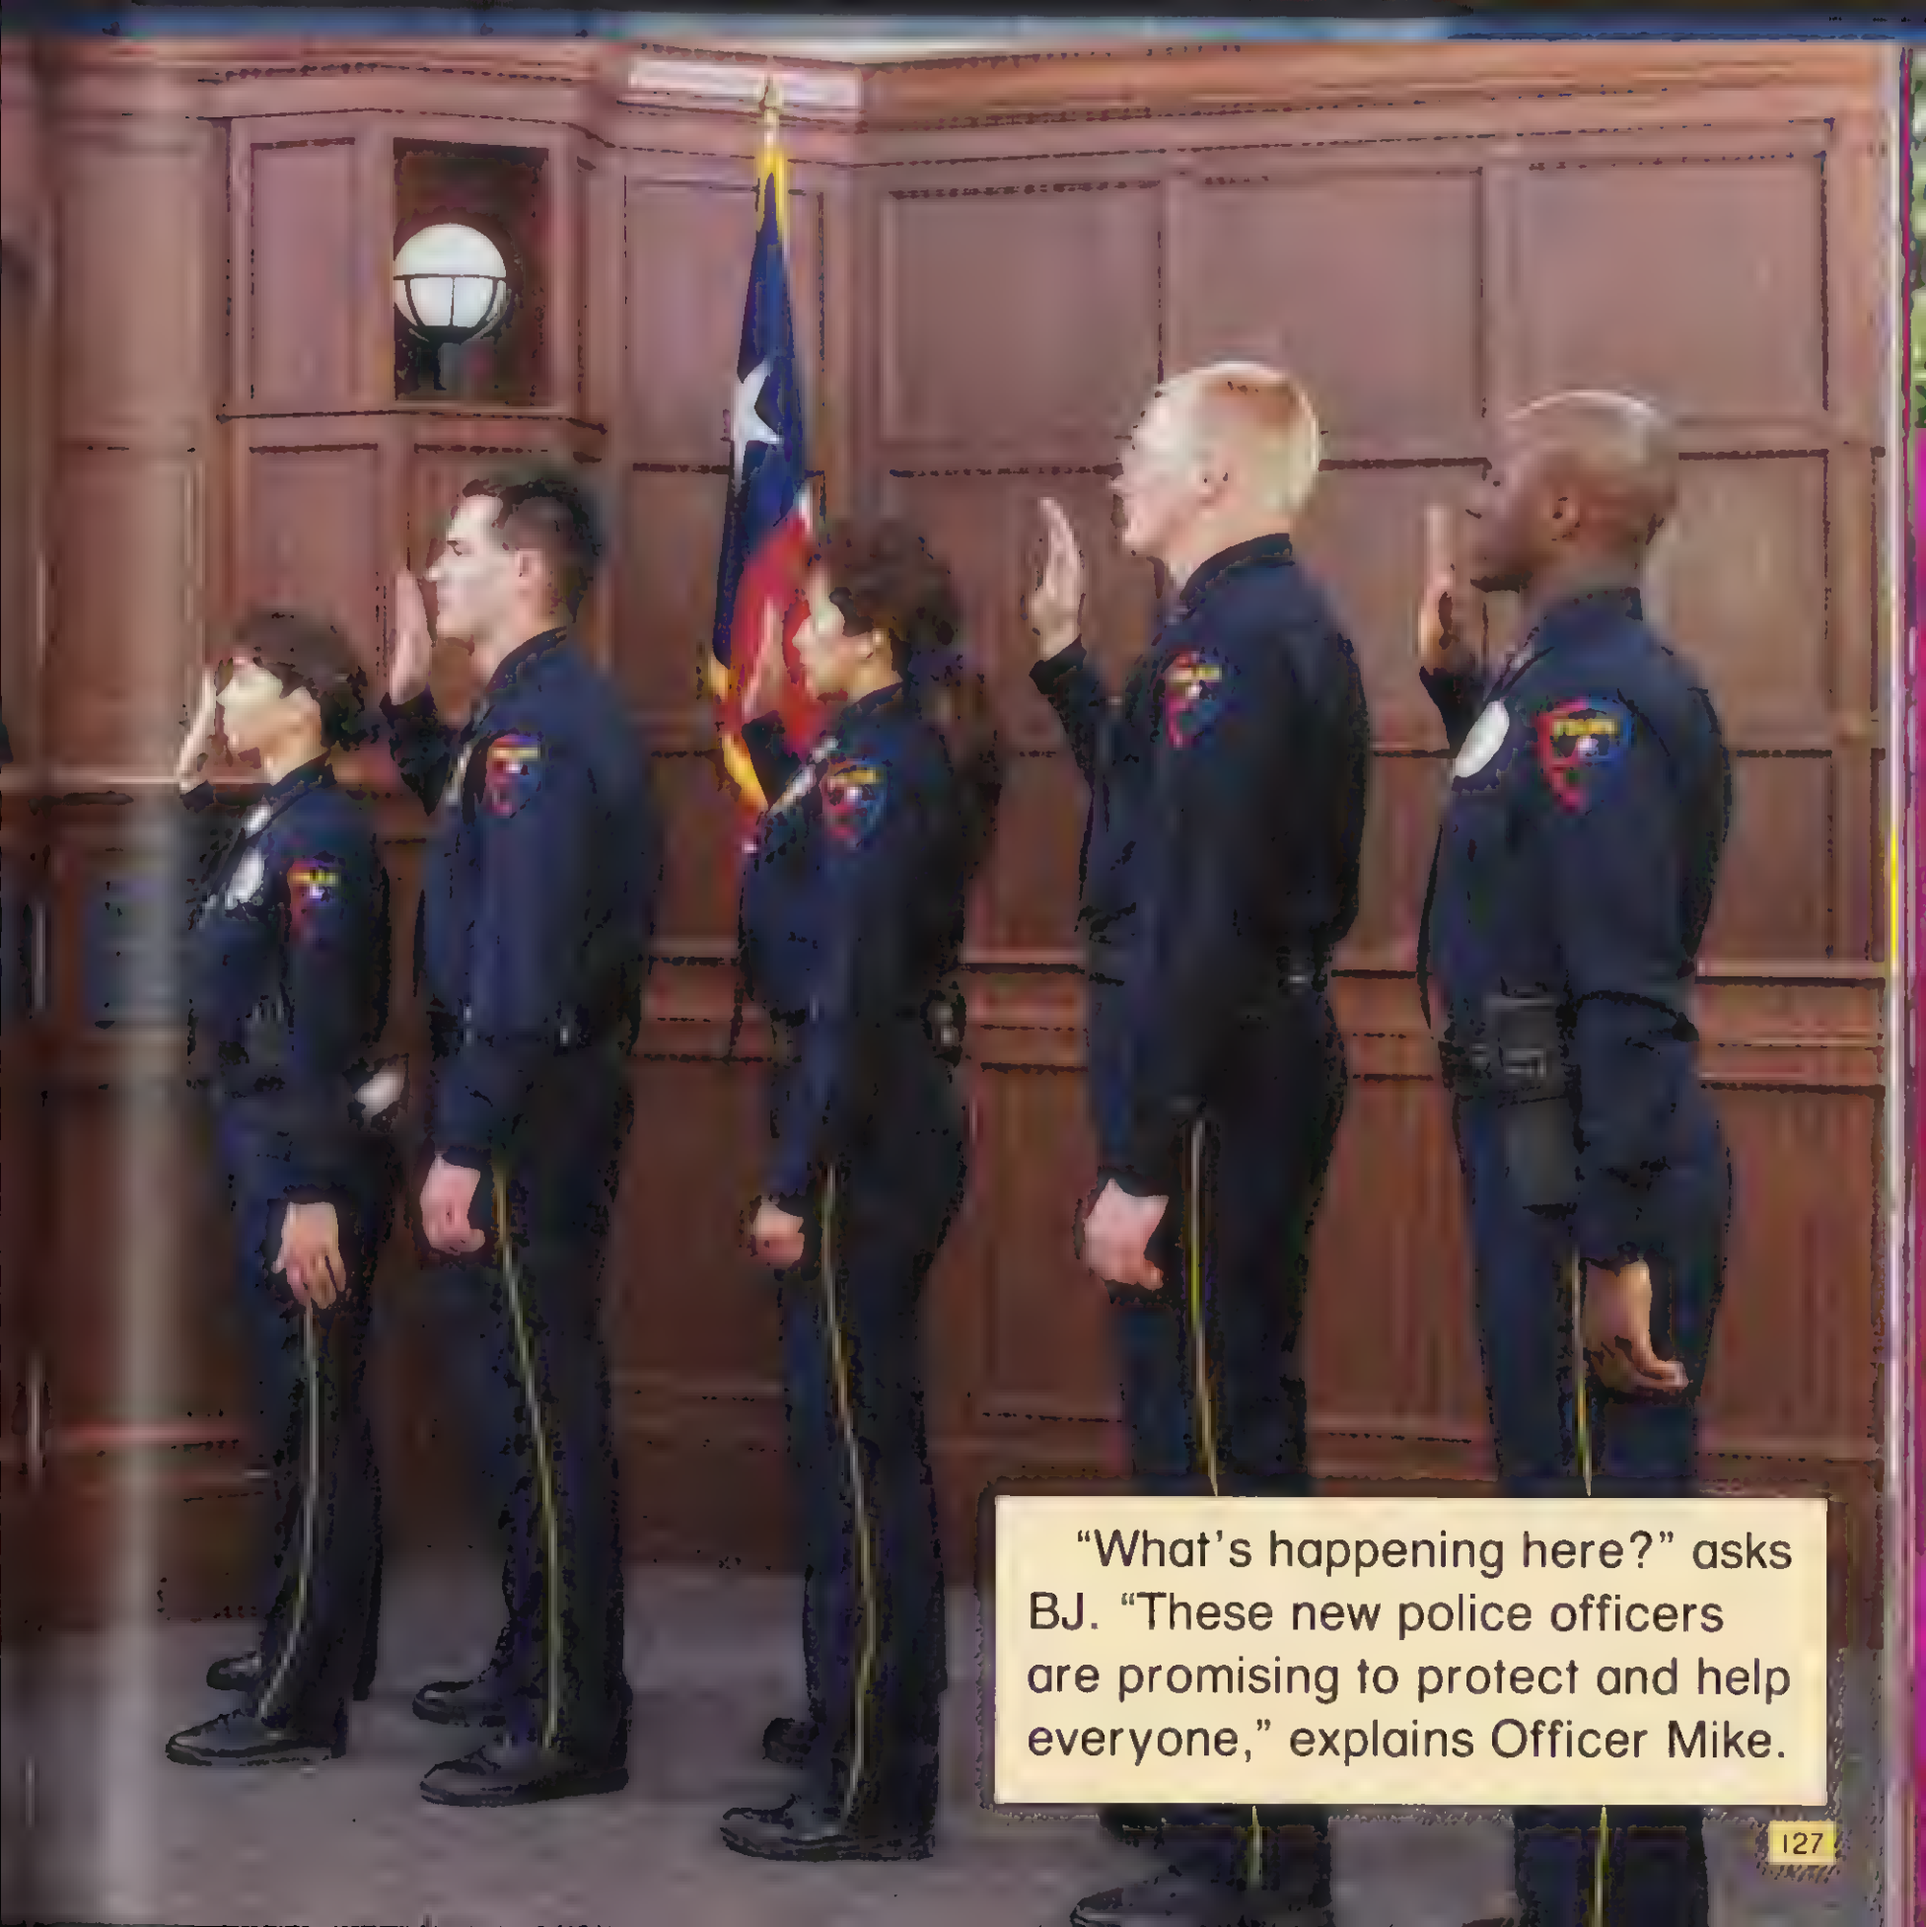
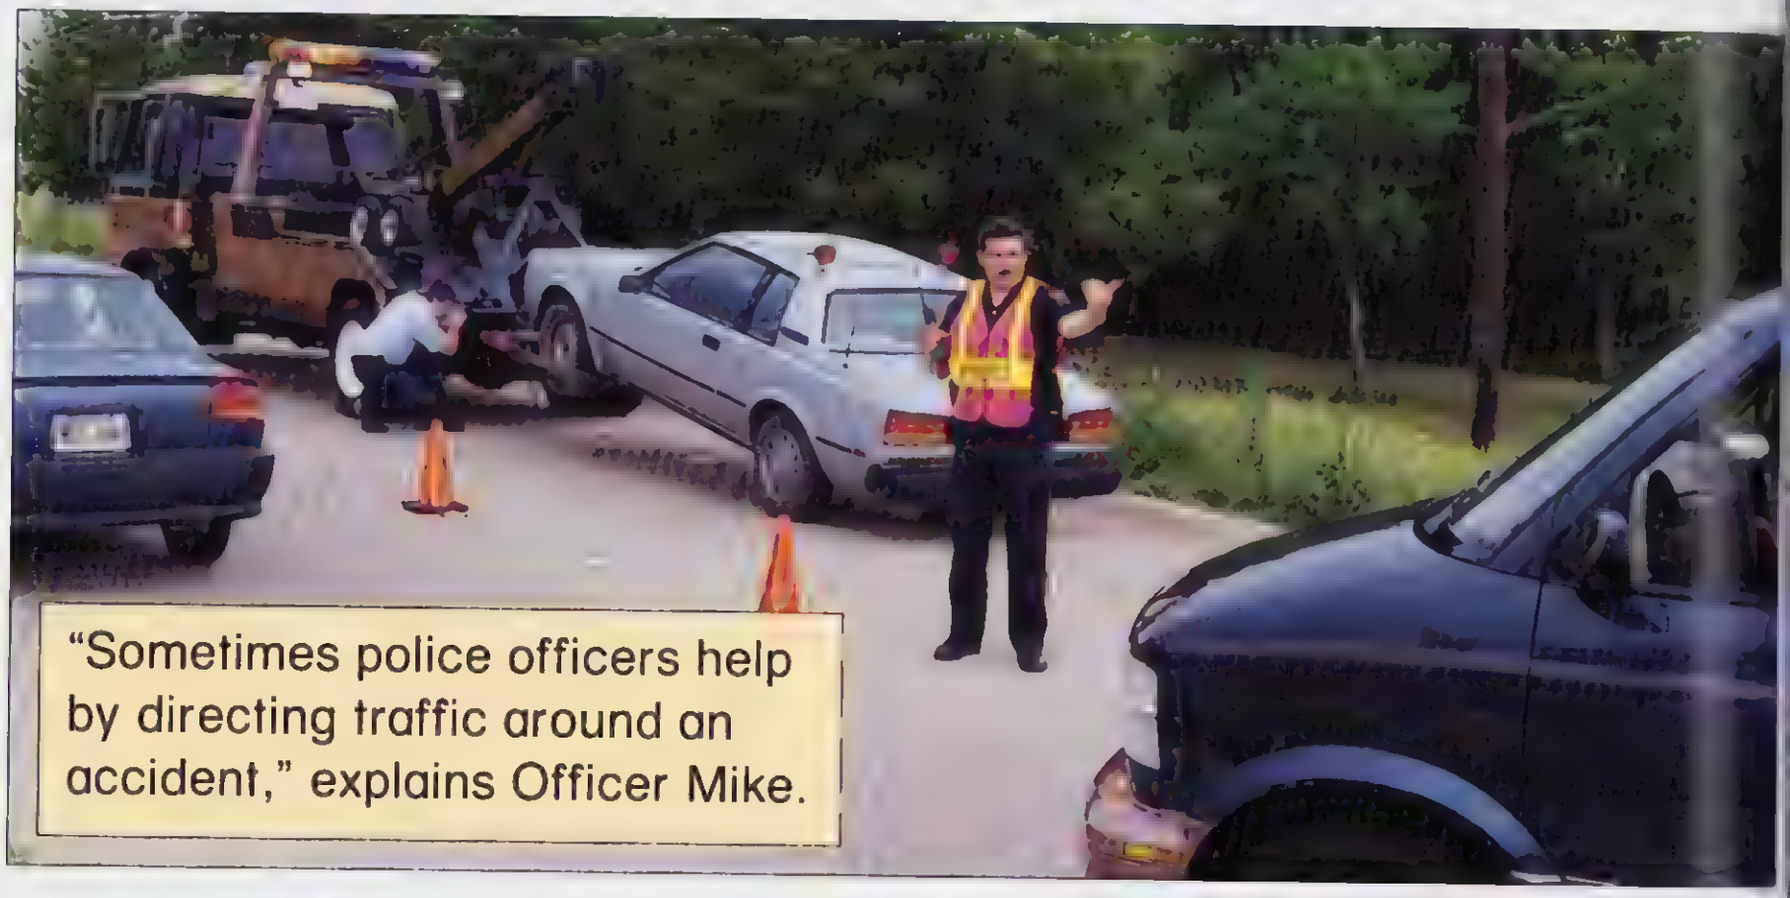
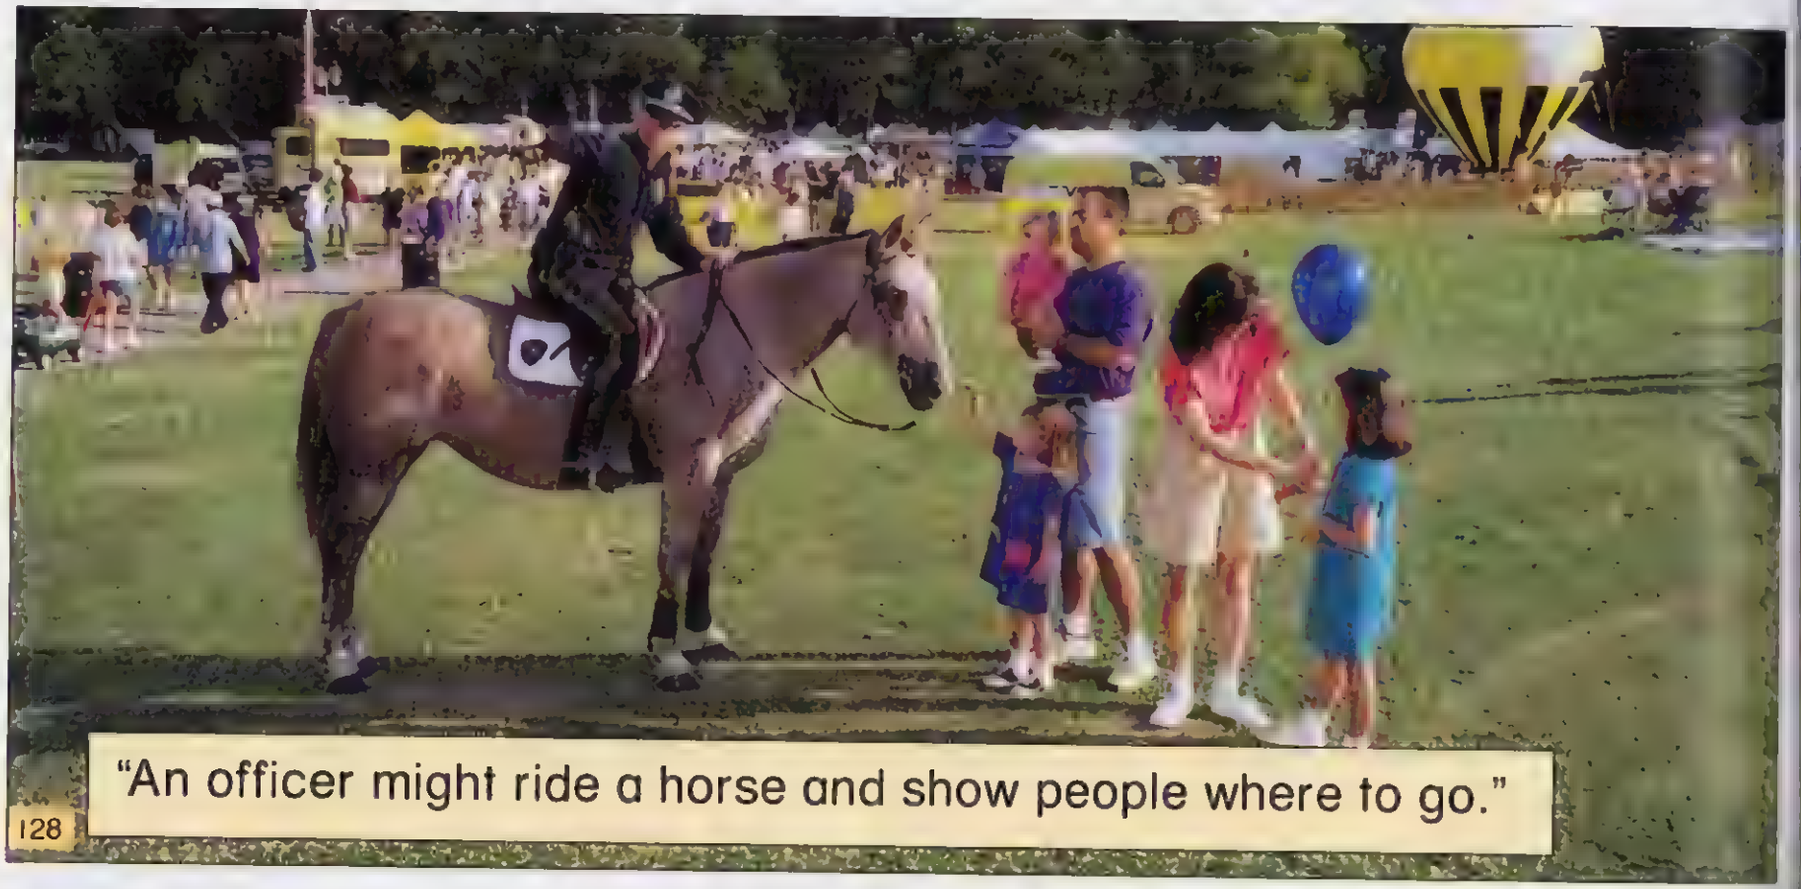
Barney introduces BJ to his friend, Officer Mike. "Welcome to the police station," says Officer Mike. "I'll show you around!"



"What's happening here?" asks BJ. "These new police officers are promising to protect and help everyone," explains Officer Mike.



"Sometimes police officers help by directing traffic around an accident," explains Officer Mike.



"An officer might ride a horse and show people where to go."

"Some officers ride bicycles..."

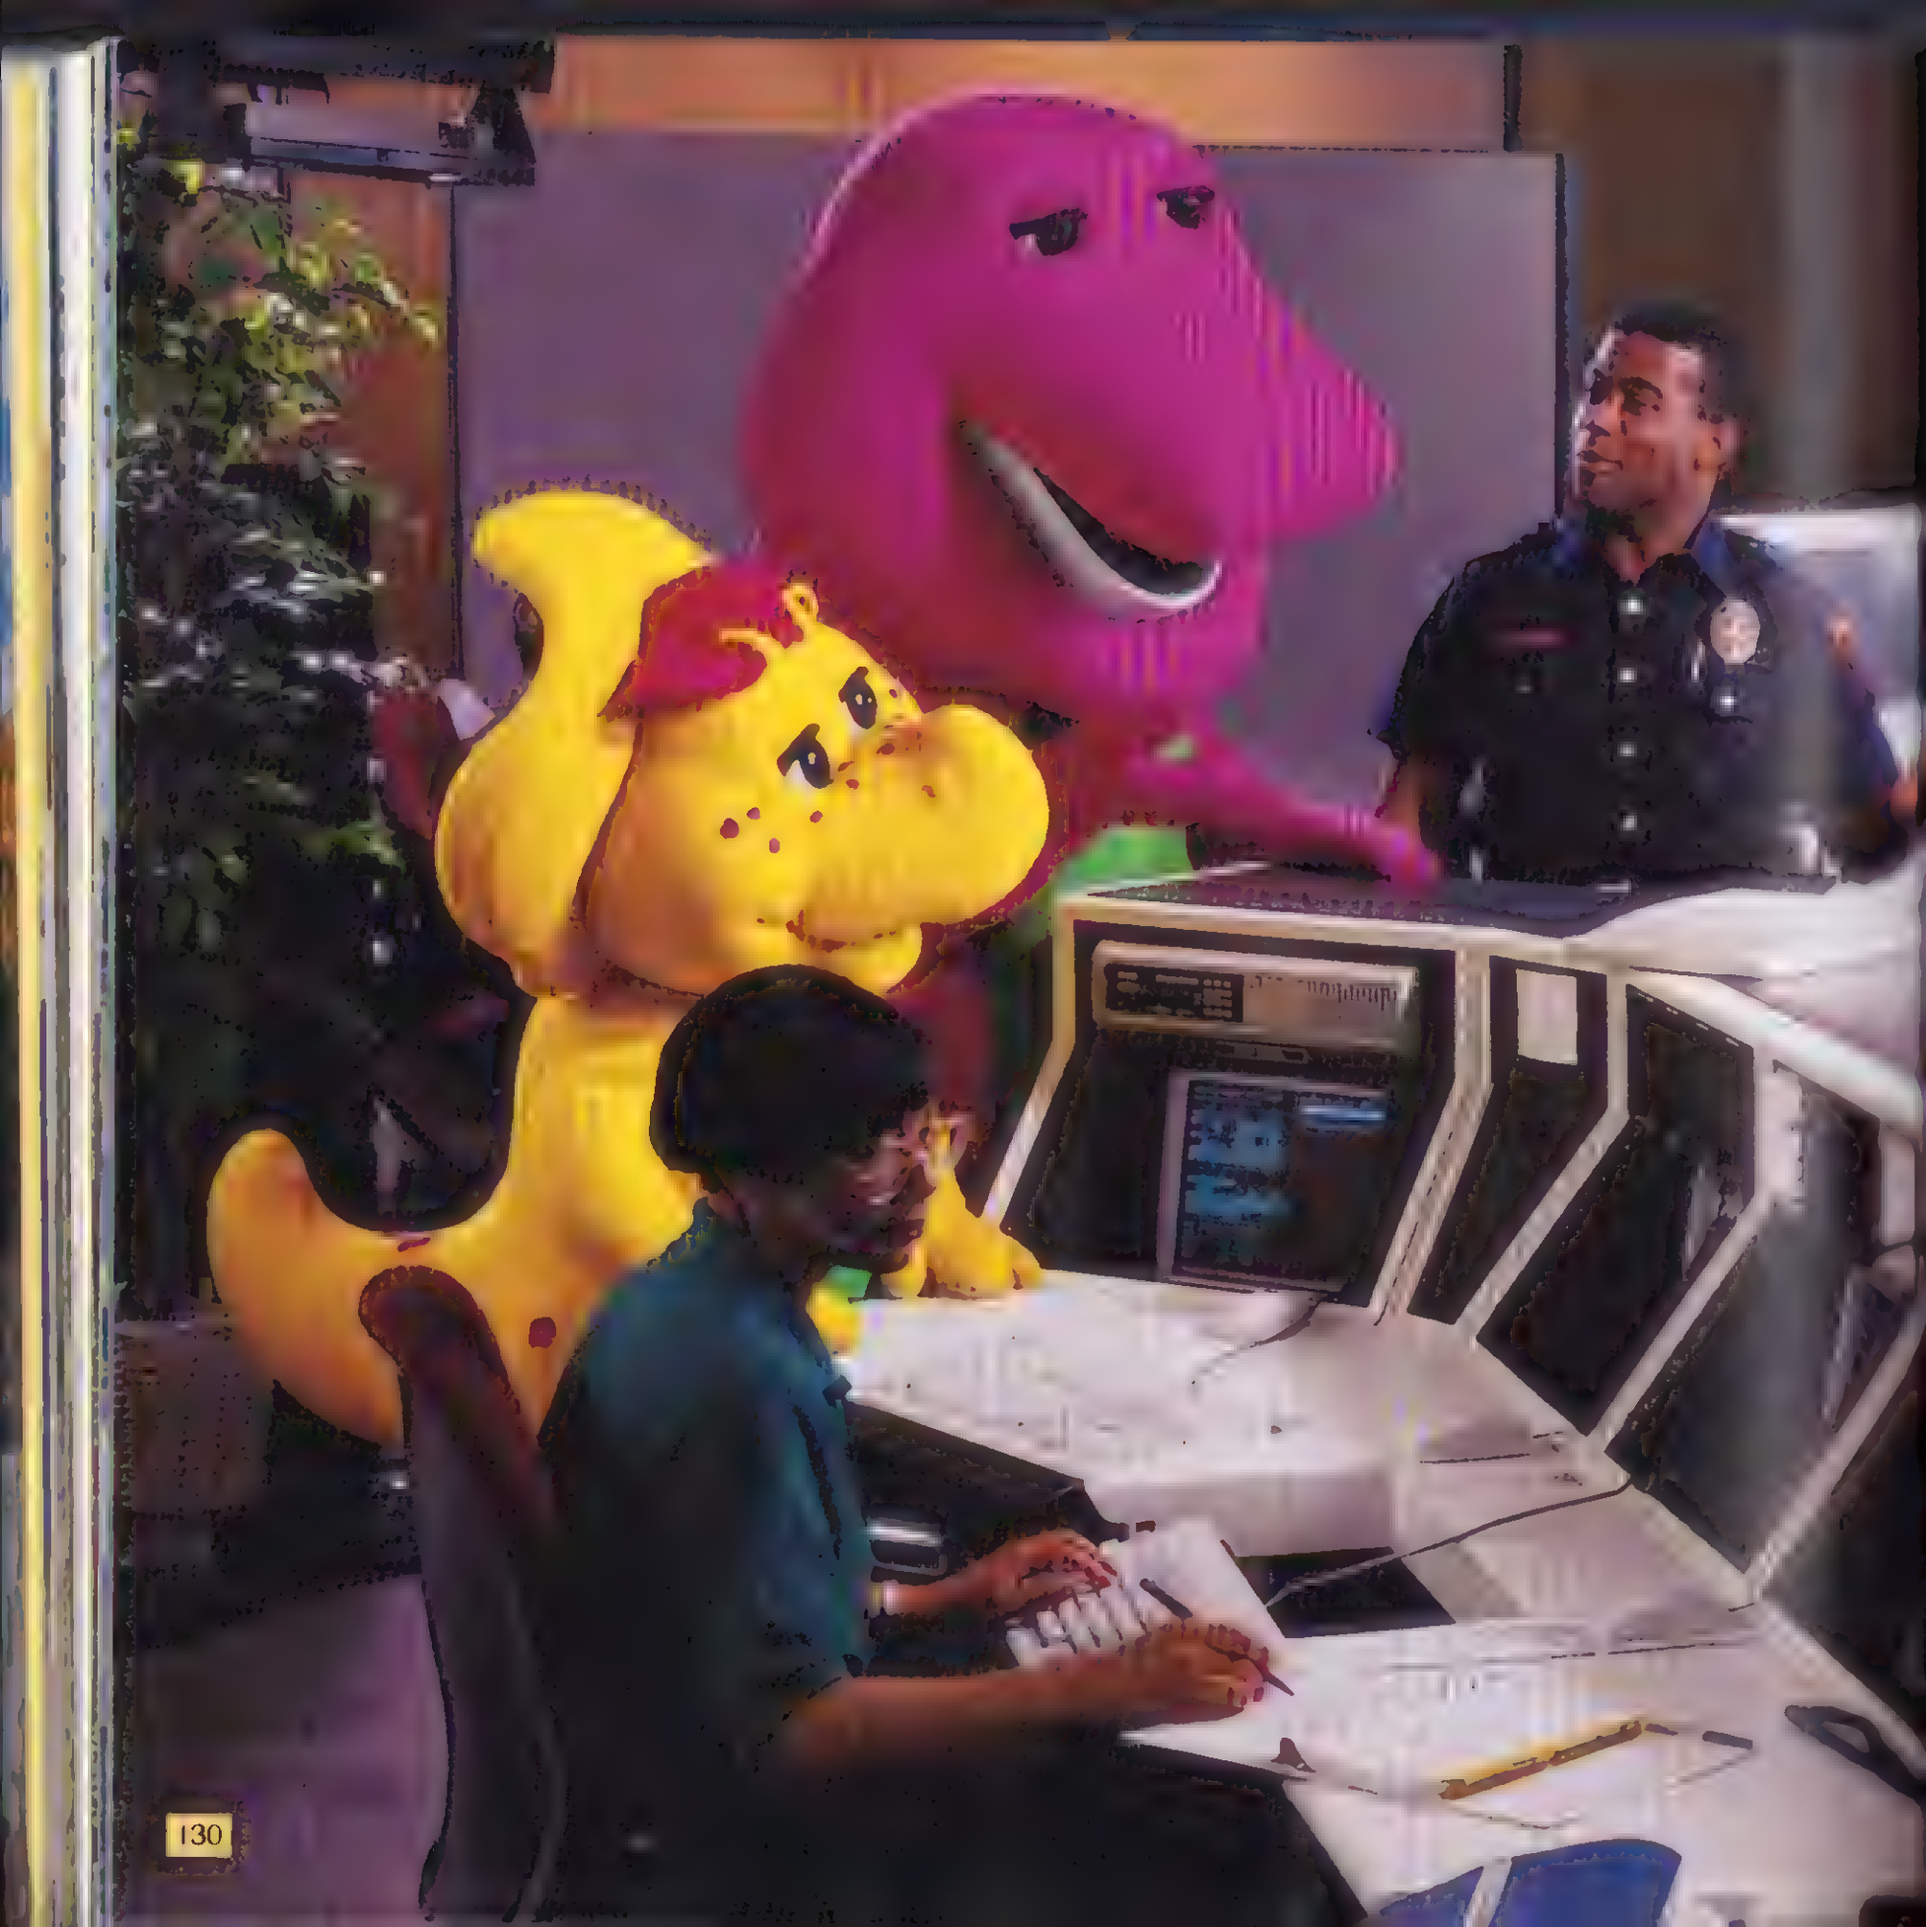
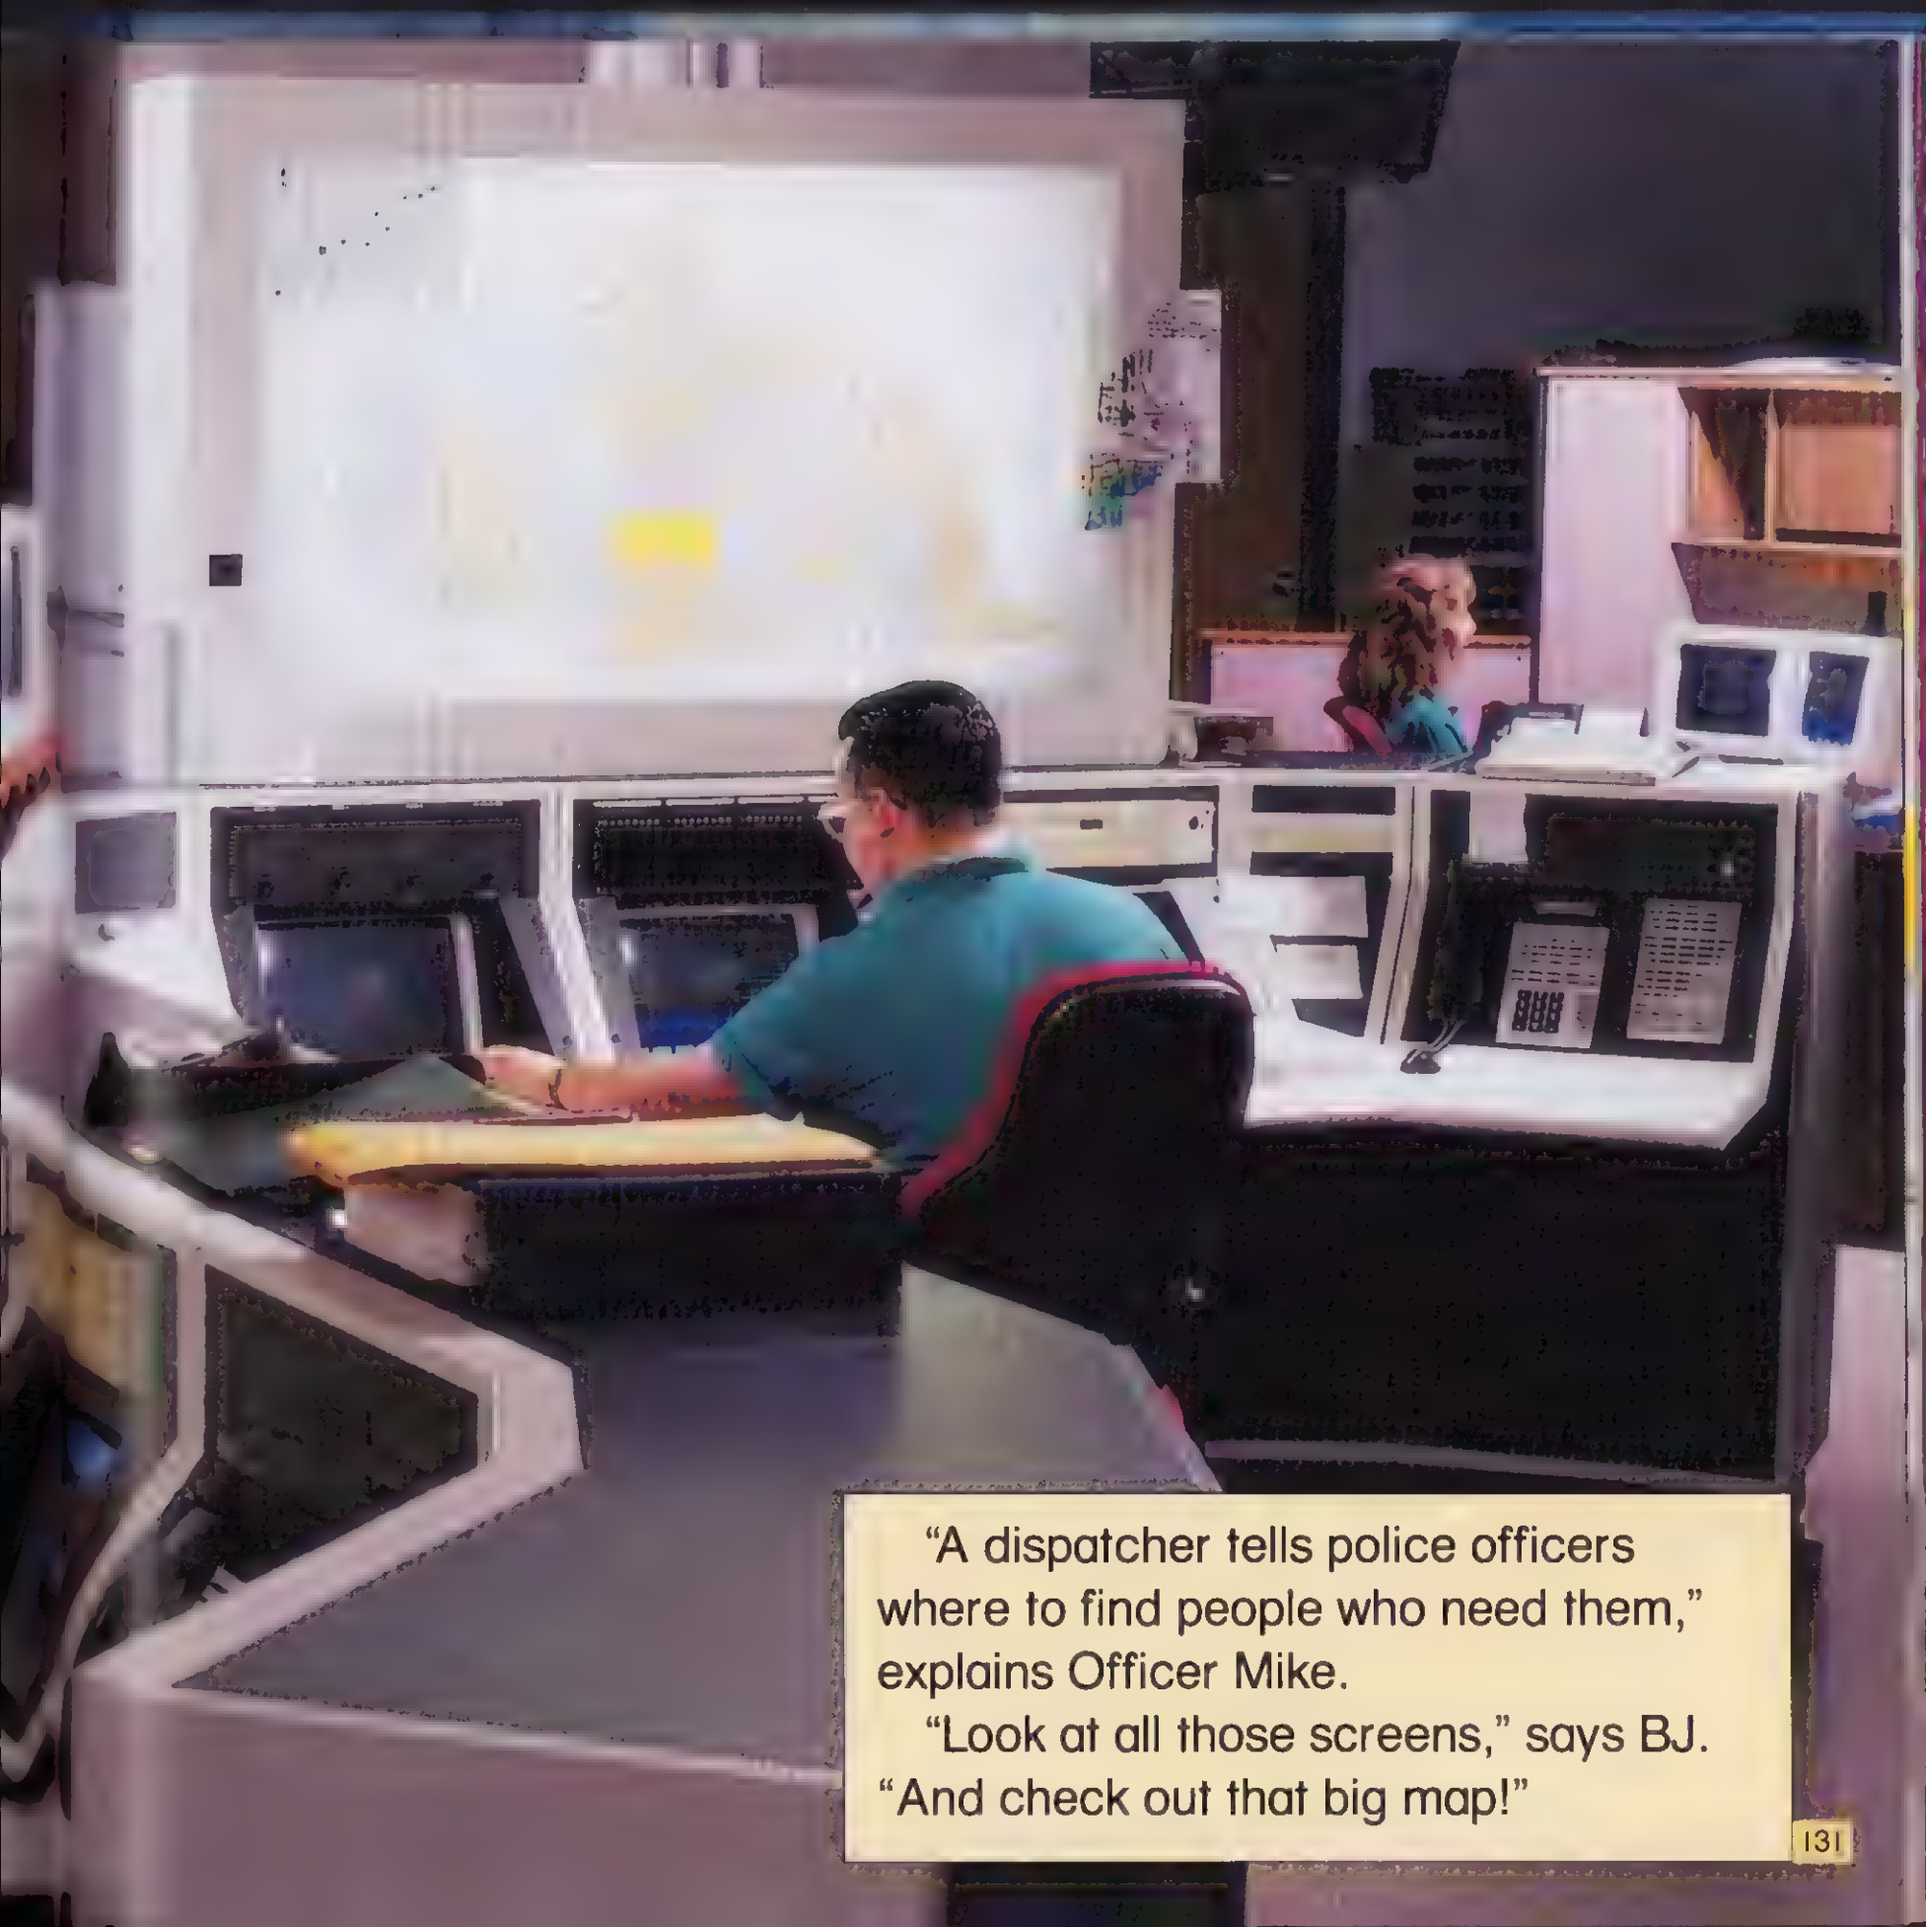
"Awesome!" shouts BJ.





"A dispatcher tells police officers where to find people who need them," explains Officer Mike.

"Look at all those screens," says BJ. "And check out that big map!"

"That dog is a police officer, too!" exclaims Barney. "Yes," replies Officer Mike. "He's specially trained to find people or things by his sense of smell. He also protects police officers. But we shouldn't pet him while he's working."

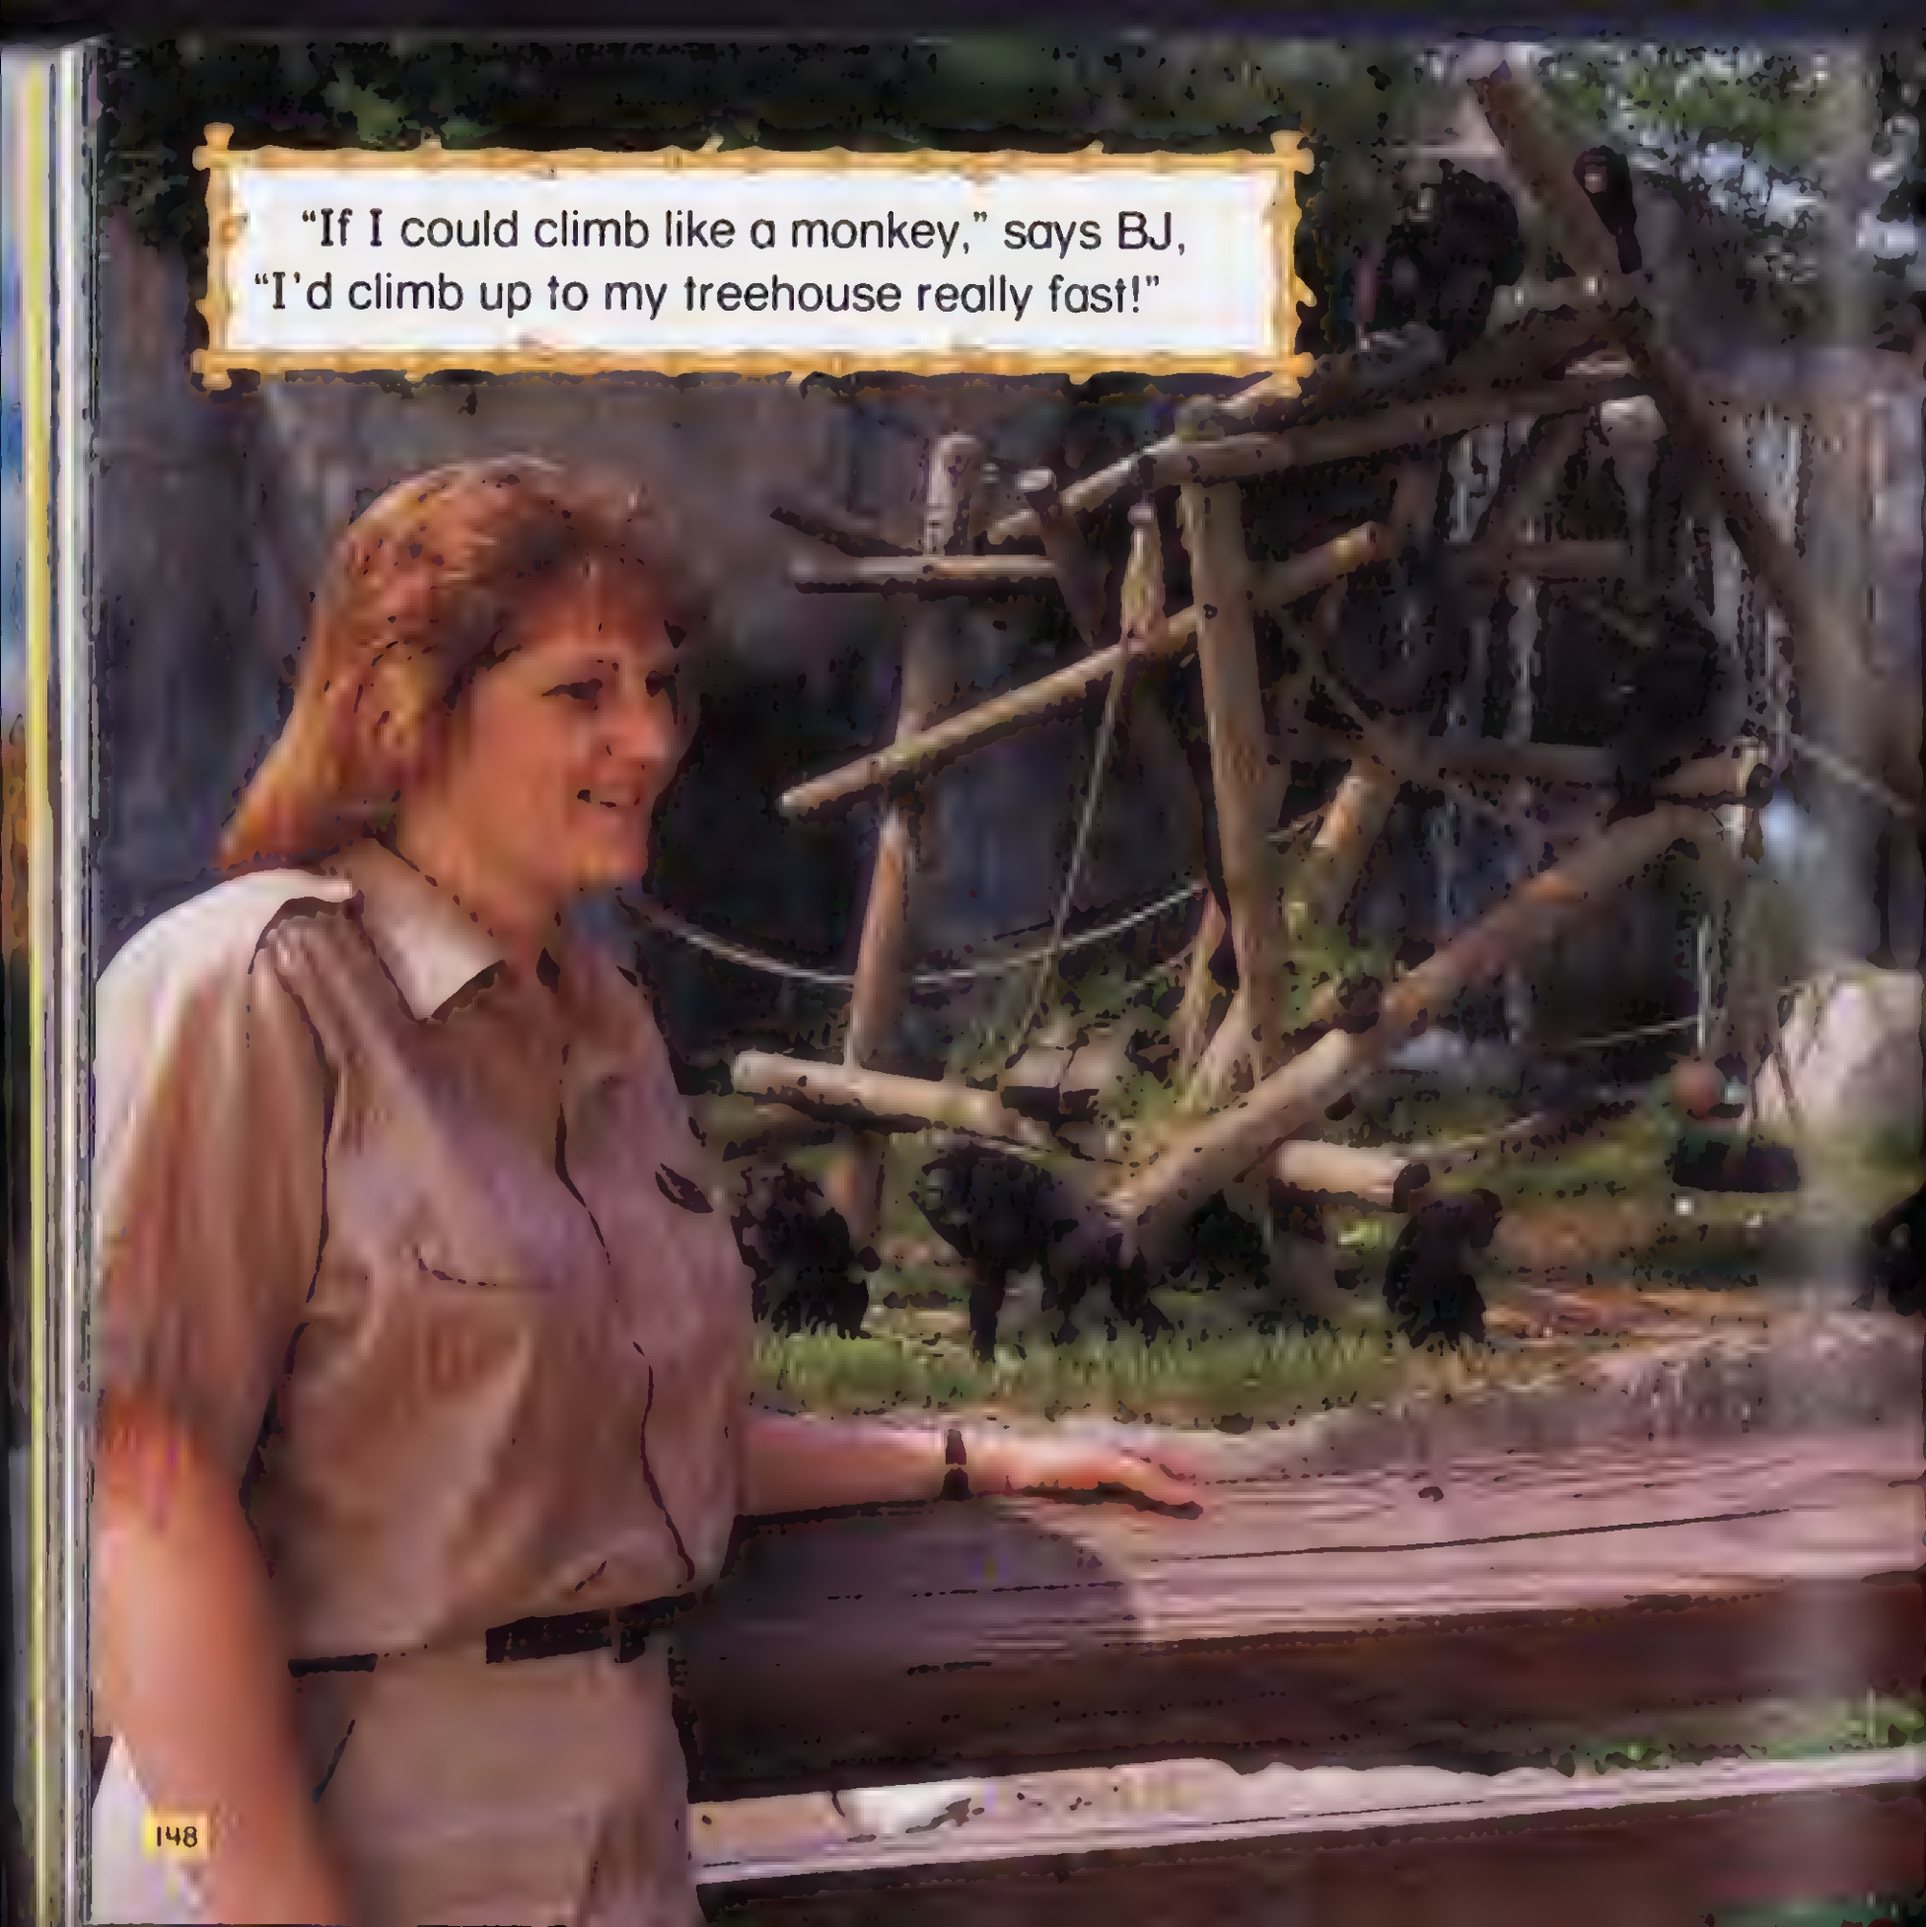
BJ wants to see the lions first. As one roars loudly, Barney exclaims, "No wonder the lion is called the 'king of the jungle!'"

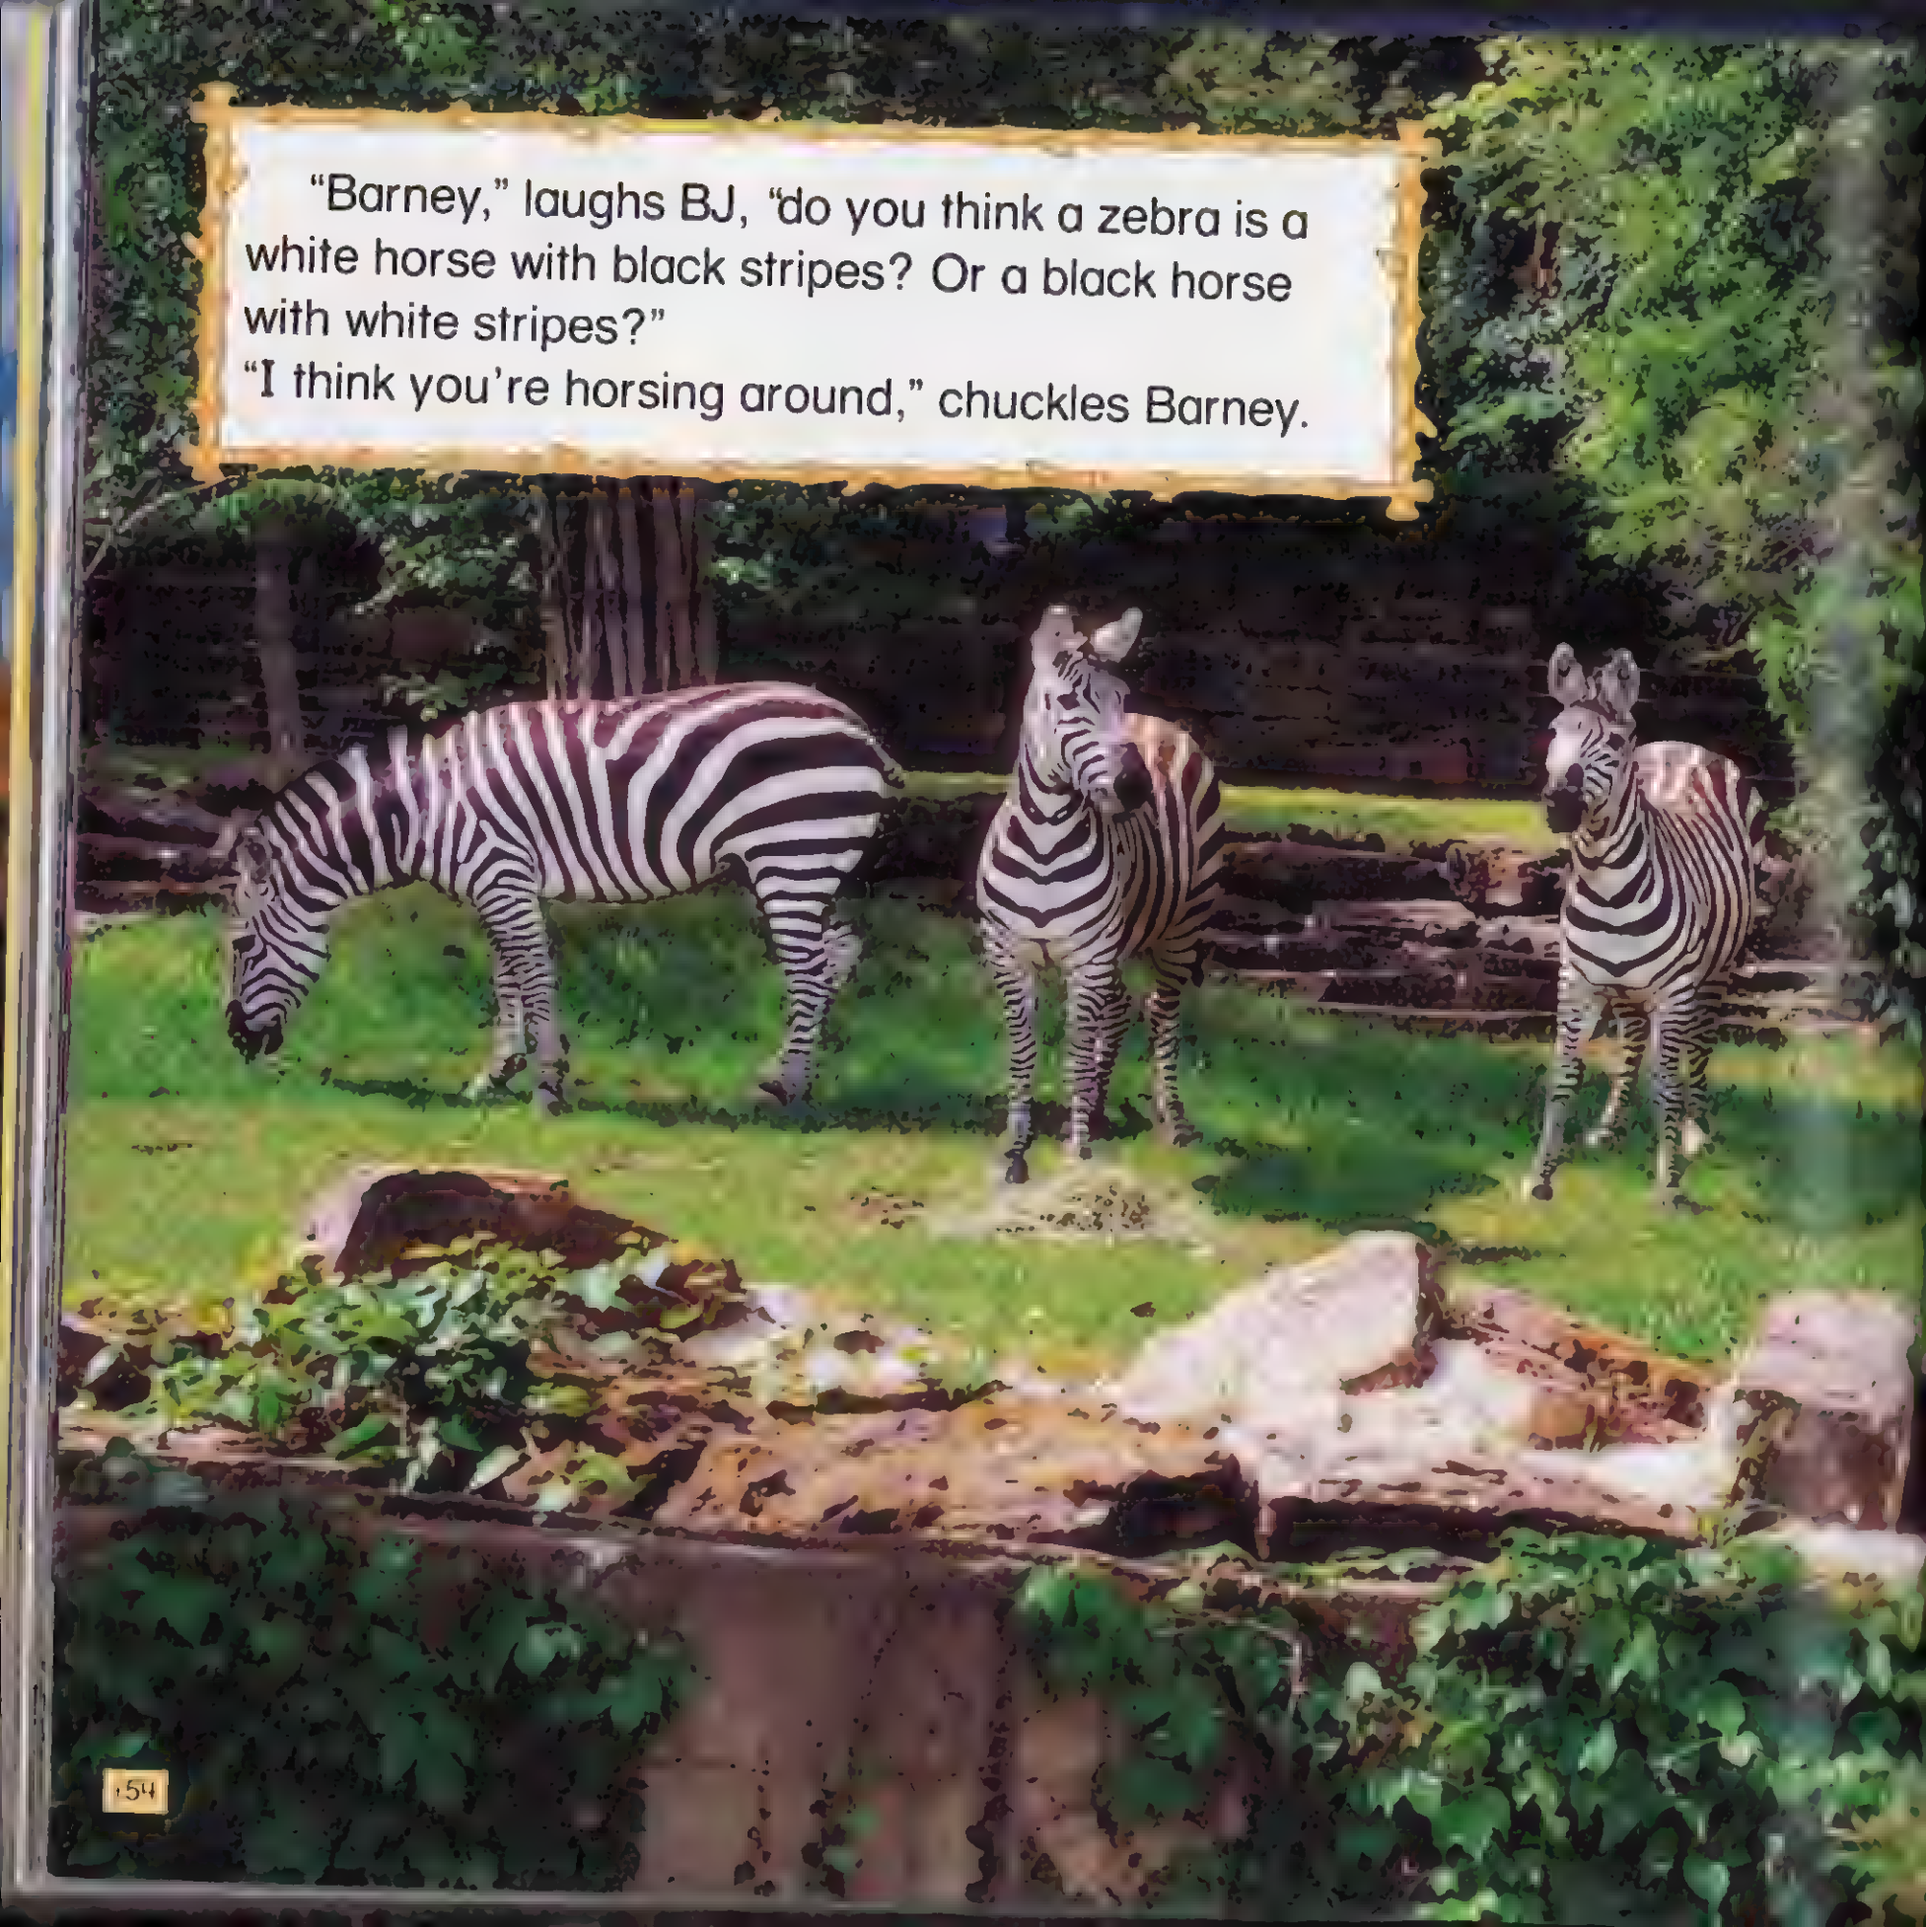


"If I could climb like a monkey," says BJ,
"I'd climb up to my treehouse really fast!"

"These pink flamingos are beautiful!" says Barney.

"Zoos have lots of animals from all around the world!" says the zookeeper proudly.

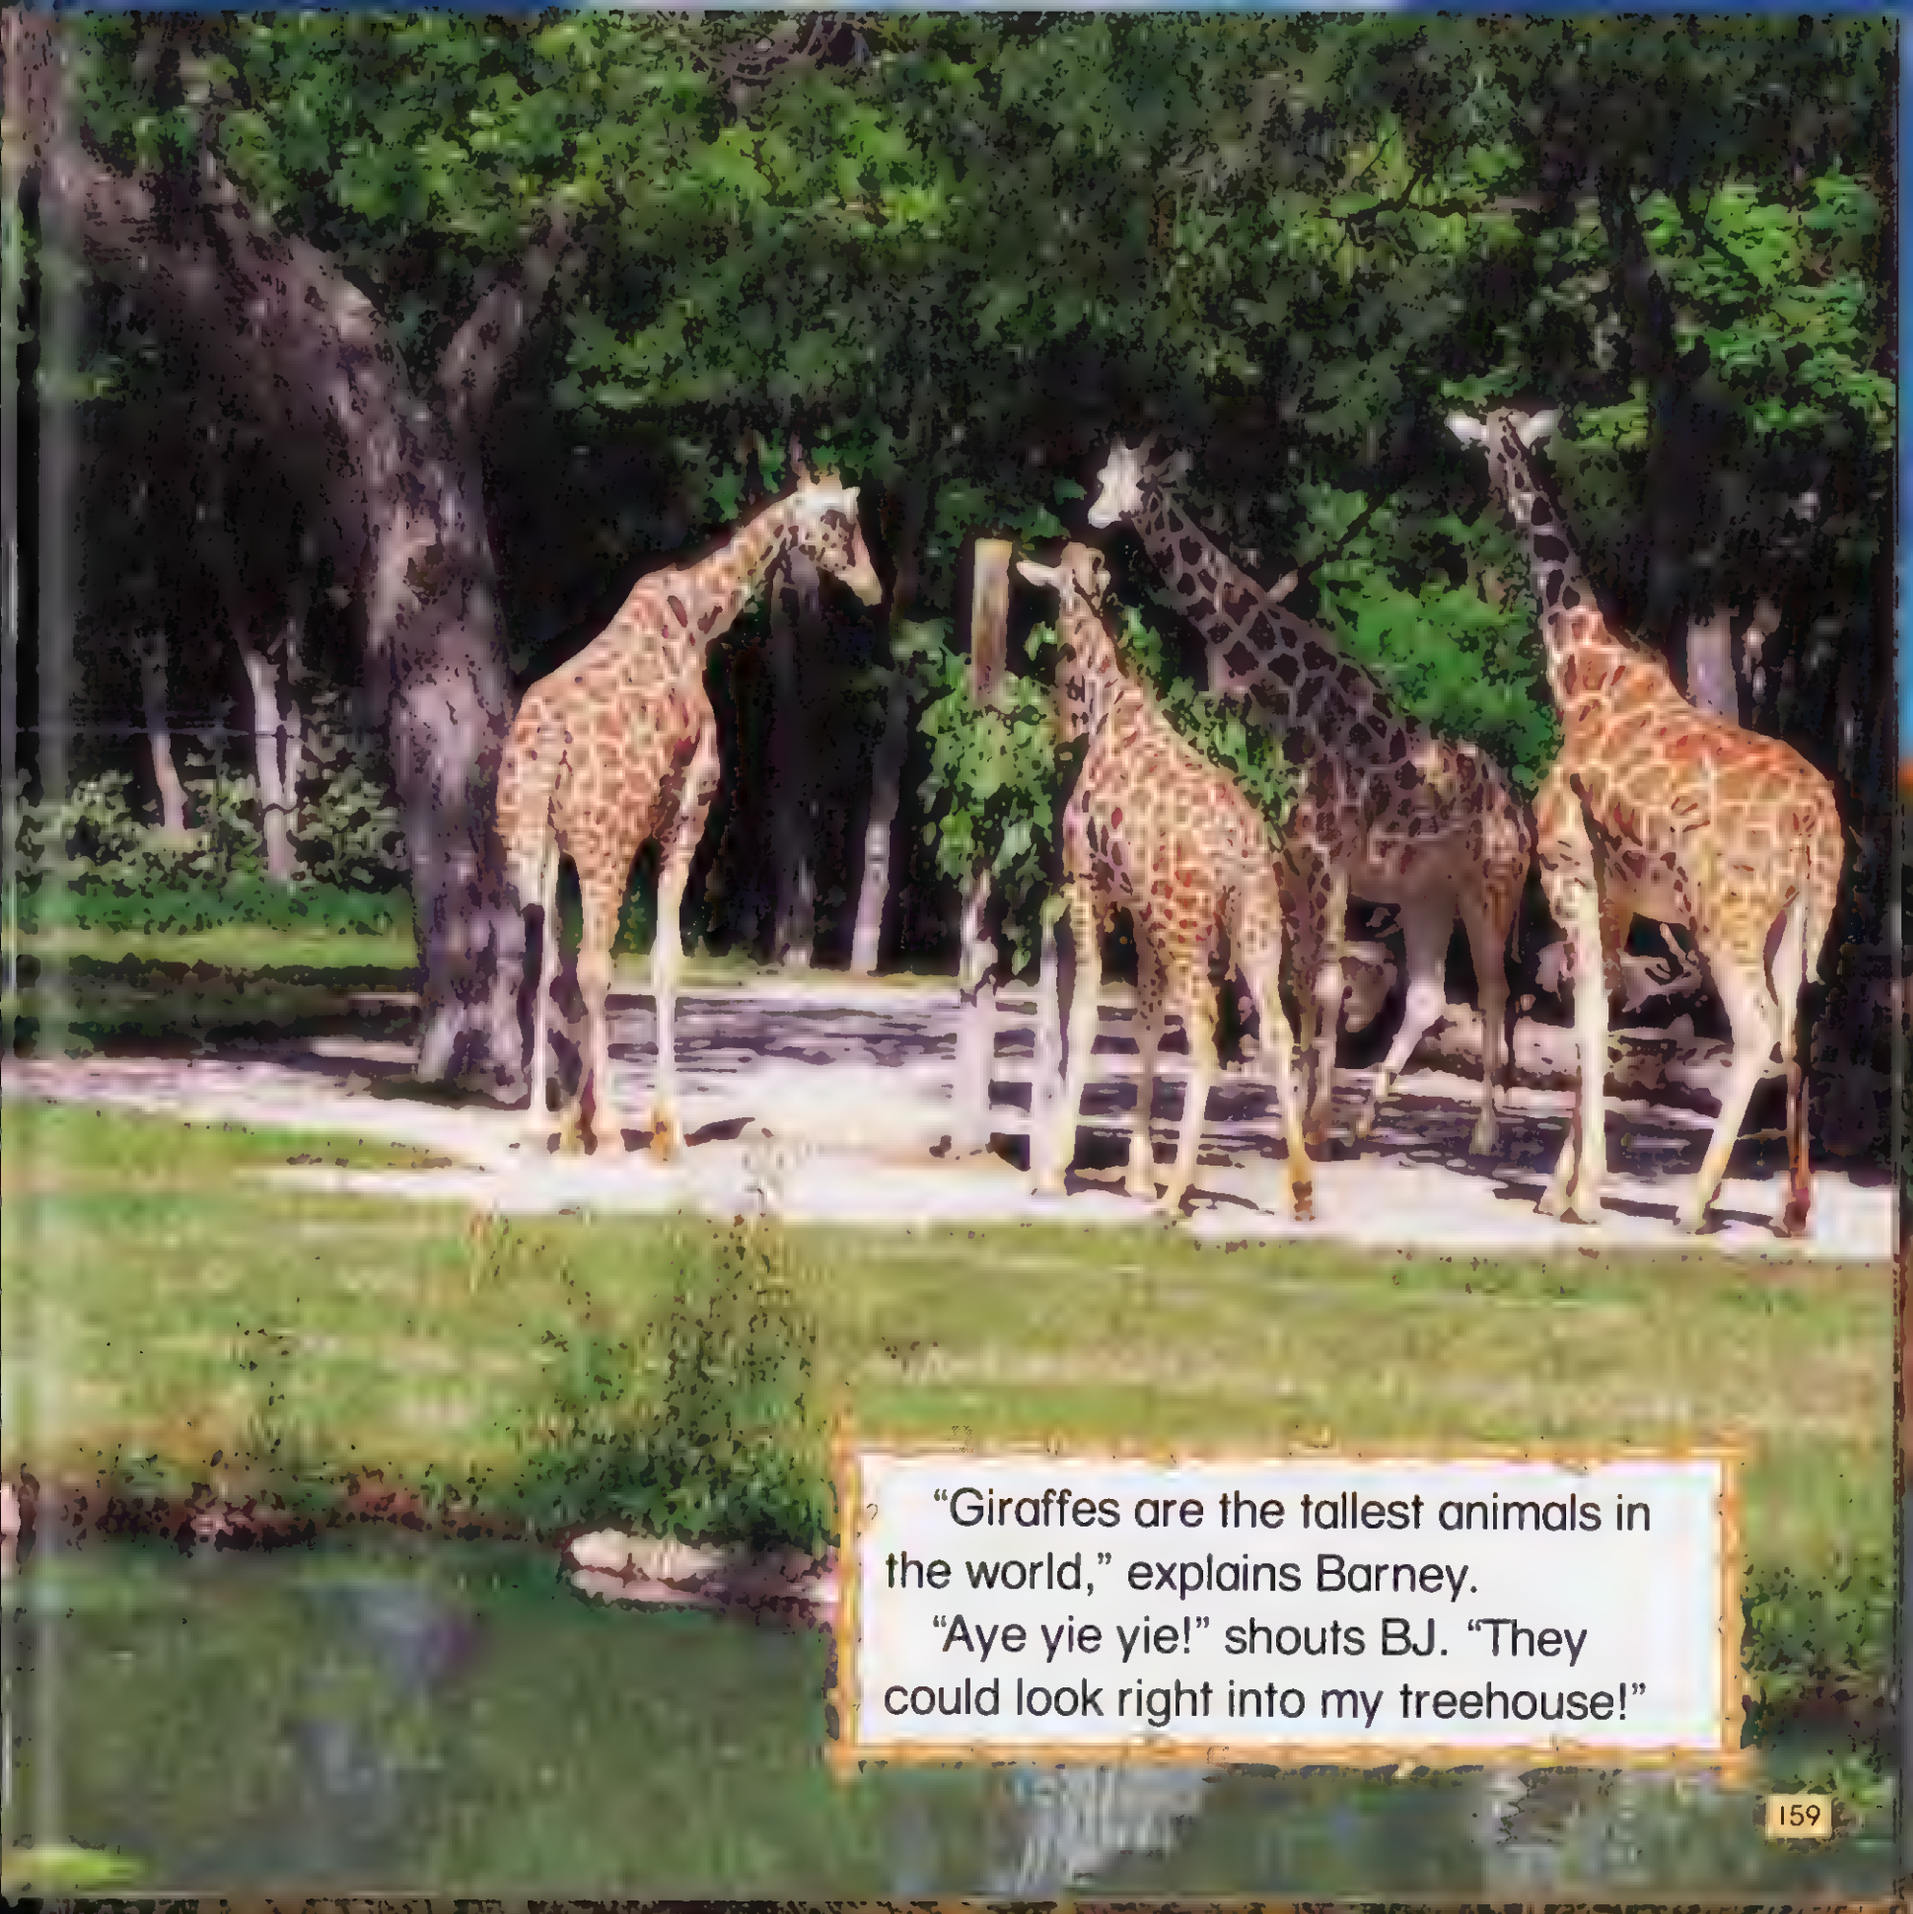
"Aren't those rhinos cool?" asks BJ.
"They sure are," answers Barney. "Come on, I'll show you some animals with stripes!"



"Barney," laughs BJ, "do you think a zebra is a white horse with black stripes? Or a black horse with white stripes?"
"I think you're horsing around," chuckles Barney.

"Zookeepers help keep the animals and their homes clean," Barney explains, as they watch a zookeeper bathe the elephant.

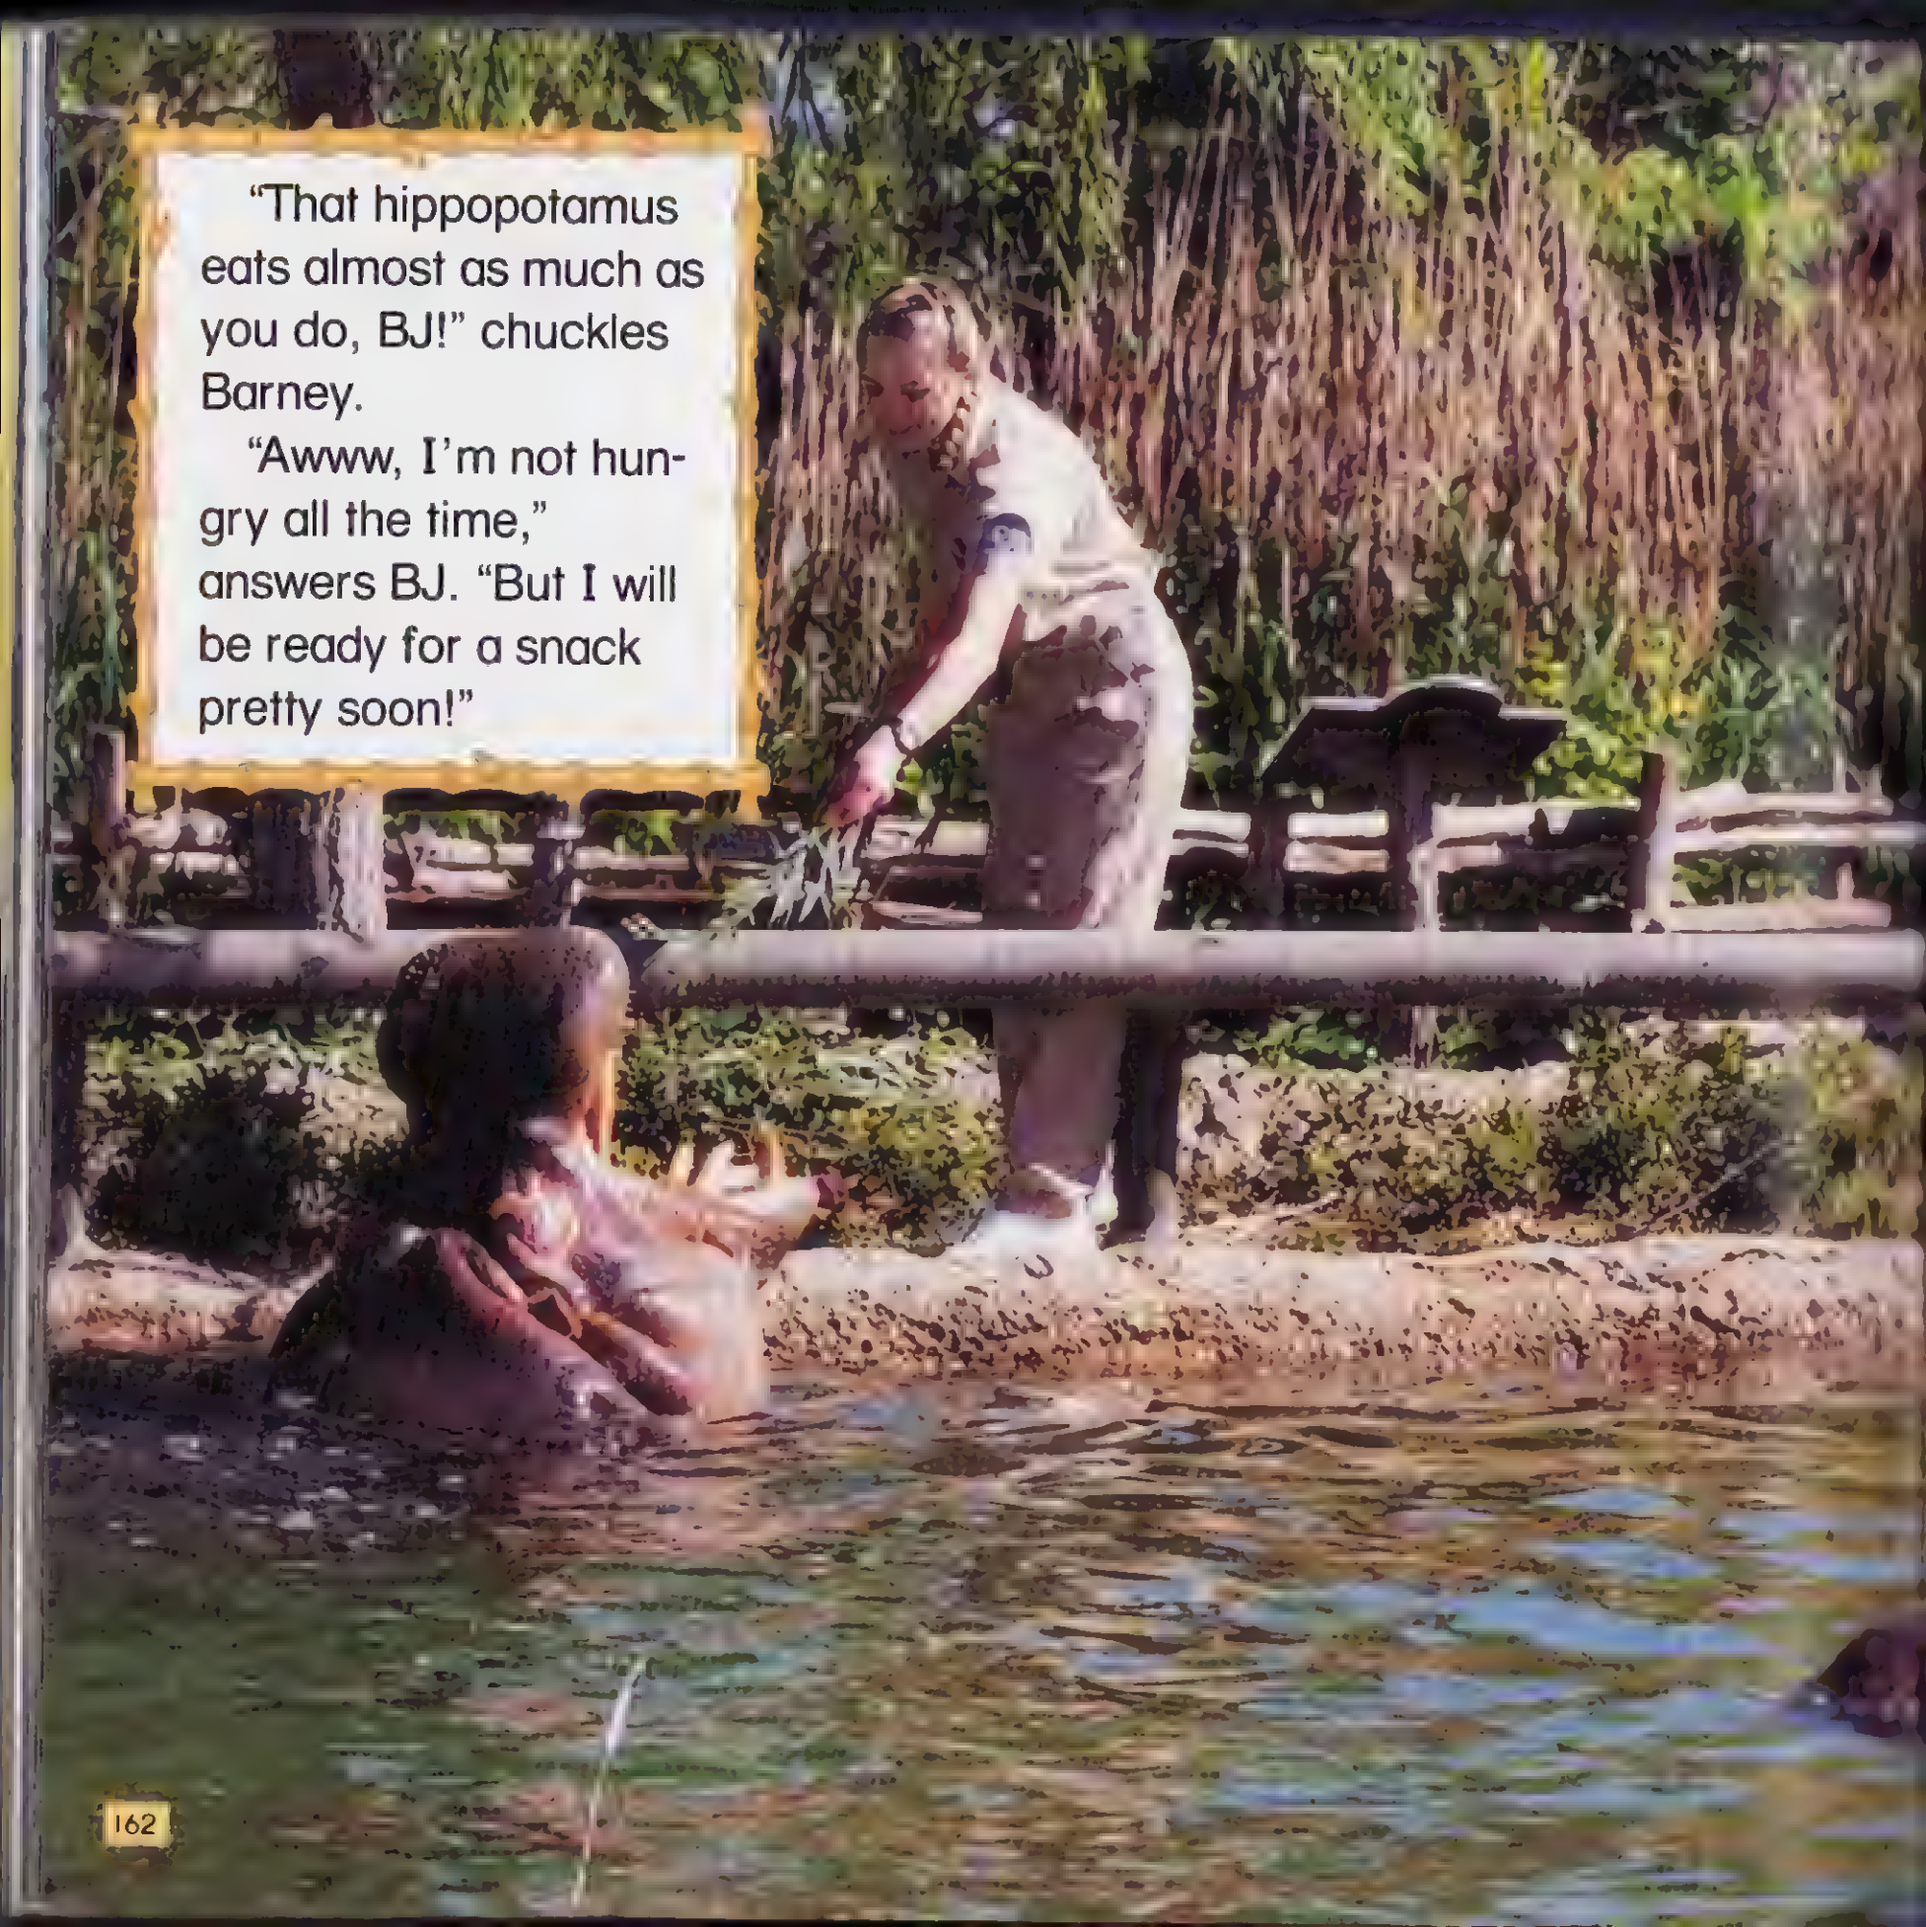
"Where's his rubber ducky?" jokes BJ.



"Giraffes are the tallest animals in the world," explains Barney.

"Aye yie yie!" shouts BJ. "They could look right into my treehouse!"

"I wonder if all that climbing makes those bears as hungry as I am!" exclaims BJ, as he rubs his tummy.



"That hippopotamus eats almost as much as you do, BJ!" chuckles Barney.

"Awww, I'm not hungry all the time," answers BJ. "But I will be ready for a snack pretty soon!"

"Sounds like it's time for some popcorn," laughs Barney.
"Lions and monkeys and bears and popcorn!" says BJ. "I love to visit the zoo!"
